A BIG SURPRISE FOR COMMERCIAL MAN

(Telegraph)

A good story is told of a local commercial traveller being given a surprise on an I. C. R. train the other day. He was reading in a newspaper the despatch telling of five to one bets being placed on the return of the Laurier government and scoffingly announced that he did not believe any such "nonsense."

He was given somewhat of a shock to see a hand extended over the back of his seat with a $10 bill held out invitingly.

"Cover this with a two spot," said another knight of the grip who had been listening quietly. With some hesitation and rather shamefacedly the first man produced his money and a third gentleman became the stakeholder.

Then other bets were proposed and one was made at even money that the Liberals would break even in Ontario, another at even money on the chances of the Liberals capturing all four seats in Prince Edward Island, while three to two odds were given by one commercial traveler who has spent some time in Nova Scotia recently that McLean and Blackadar would be elected in Halifax. There was also an even bet made that Horace J. Logan would defeat E. N. Rhodes in Cumberland County.

TOURIST PRAISES THE ST. JOHN RIVER

Editor Fredericton Daily Mail,

My Dear Sir:—In making a tour of New Brunswick, I find the trip up the St. John River to Fredericton, highly commended. It is brought to the tourists attention enough to ensure a large number of tourists to Fredericton. It seems to me that the most interesting place in Fredericton is the Old Government House and yet had it not been for the chance purchase of a pastoral and which your Jurist association has brought out I should have missed seeing what is one of the most beautiful buildings in Canada. I know of no other example in the Dominion of dignified and beautiful architecture amid such delightful surroundings. To my regret I could find no mention in Baedeker guide of this house although all other points of interest in your town are fully described, neither did I find any such literature in the town. The history and incidents connected with such a place would be of great interest to any stranger and it would seem that the people of Fredericton and of New Brunswick could find no greater object of historic interest than the restoration and use of only for a public museum of a building whose stateliness, dignity of design and old world beauty would be valuable anywhere. At least proper measures should be taken to inform and interest the "stranger with in its gates."

Very truly

A VERY MUCH SHORTER CATECHISM ON RECIPROCITY

Q. Why should they be disturbed?
A. Because they may fear that this slight taste of lower duties may lead to a demand for a general reduction of the tariff.

Q. Can you reconcile this with the idea that the reciprocity agreement will prove an injury to the people of Canada?
A. No; the two ideas cannot be reconciled.

Q. How will the reduction of duties or the putting of natural products on the free list affect wage-earners?
A. It will enable them to buy their foodstuffs at a lower rate; in other words, it will reduce their cost of living.

Q. Will not the farmers of Canada obtain higher prices in the home market than they now enjoy?
A. No; the free entry of American natural products will tend to lower prices.

Q. Wherein, then, will the Canadian farmer benefit?
A. In the addition of another great market for his goods.

Q. What markets does he possess at present?
A. The home market, in Canada, and the British market across the ocean.

Q. Is the American market worth much to Canadian producers?
A. It is a market of 90,000,000 of perhaps the best customers in the world.

Q. Is an extensive free list of natural products worth much to the Canadian householder and the citizens in general?
A. He would be obliged to vote for Laurier and Larger Markets!

A. It means simply an addition to the purchasing power of their wages.

Q. Have Canadian statesmen of the past taken the view that reciprocity in natural products with the United States would be a good thing for Canada?
A. They have; leaders of both parties have striven with all their might to secure a reciprocity treaty, since the abrogation of the one which ceased in 1866.

Q. Can you give the names of any of these statesmen?
A. Among Conservative leaders I would name Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir A. T. Galt, Sir John Thompson, Sir Charles Tupper and Sir Leonard Tilley.

Q. Were any of these men suspected of disloyalty to British institutions?
A. No; they were all regarded as eminently loyal.

Q. Yet they strove to secure reciprocity with the United States?
A. Yes; used every possible endeavor.

Q. Was the Conservative party in general favorable to such a measure?
A. Yes; Sir John A. Macdonald, as their leader, declared for "reciprocity of trade or reciprocity of tariffs," and they supported him to a man.

Q. If Sir John A. Macdonald were alive today and wished to vote in the coming election consistently with his party's record and his own oft-repeated opinions on reciprocity, how would he cast his ballot?
A. He would be obliged to vote for Laurier and Larger Markets!
