Rousing Rally at Reciprocity Committee Rooms last Night—Address of A. F. Bentley, M. P. P., Heartily Received—R. W. McLellan Shows how Anti-Reciprocity Party has Tried to Injure Local Industries—Speech by W. J. Osborne

The Reciprocity Committee Rooms in the Pitts Building, York Street, were crowded last night by an audience of voters which gathered to hear the issues of the present campaign discussed by Mr. A. F. Bentley, of St. Martin's, M. P. P. for St. John County, and by others. The rally was one of the best that has yet taken place during the campaign. The audience was attentive and enthusiastic. The hall remained full during the entire evening, the places of those who were compelled to leave while the speaking was in progress being taken by others. Many remained standing at the door being unable to get seats. Mr. Bentley's able exposition of the benefits to be derived from Reciprocity by the farmer and lumberman were cheered to the echo. St. John County's able member making a fine impression. Owing to the fact that he was called to his home on business, Mr. Bentley had to cut his address short to catch the C. P. R. train for St. John much to the regret of the audience. Messrs. R. W. McLellan and W. J. Osborne and others also spoke. Mr. A. H. VanWart was in the chair.

A. F. BENTLEY, M. P. P.

Mr. Bentley received a hearty reception when he arose to address the audience and from the first showed that he had a firm grasp of the facts with regard to Reciprocity. He discussed the benefits the farmer would receive from better trade relations with the United States. A market of 90,000,000 people lay before the Canadian farmer to be opened to him by Reciprocity. Mr. Bentley spoke also of the effect the repeal of the Pike Law would have on the lumbering industry of the St. John River. Large quantities of logs had been cut in the State of Maine under the provisions of that law, had been driven down the St. John River, rafted at the booms near Fredericton and manufactured in the mills at St. John. With that act repealed those logs would be manufactured in the State of Maine and the stream-drivers raftsmen and millmen of New Brunswick would be deprived of the employment furnished by the American lumber. Reciprocity would furnish the means of preserving for New Brunswick that important part of the lumber trade. Surely every voter who had the interest of the province at heart would vote for that measure. Anyone could find in the Telegraph and Mail of that date an interview with Mr. F. C. Beattie of St. John, a mill-operator and practical lumberman in which he showed plainly what the loss of American lumber meant to the St. John mills. In conclusion Mr. Bentley said that he had no doubt as to the result of the election on September 21st. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had guided Canada's destinies since 1896 with such honor and distinction would again be the Dominion's premier. (Cheers.)

W. J. OSBORNE

Mr. W. J. Osborne followed Mr. Bentley. He stated that he had been away from home some time but that his absence did not mean that he had done no work for the party. He had spent some time in Ontario recently and could say that the other parts of the Dominion would be heard from in the right way on election day. (Applause.)

Reciprocity was the great issue of the campaign and there was no part of the Dominion which was in a position to gain more by the lowering of the American tariff than was New Brunswick. (Applause) Everyone recognized the contrast between conditions under which farmers worked in Maine and those under which they lived in New Brunswick. Anything that could benefit the agriculture of New Brunswick would benefit all its inhabitants. They had been told what reciprocity would do for the lumbering industry.

Continuing Mr. Osborne said that when he opened his copy of The Mail while away in Ontario and saw on the front page the picture of Dr. A. B. Atherton the reciprocity standard bearer in York and read the account of the large and enthusiastic convention at which he was nominated he thought at once that there was the man to redeem York. (Cheers) Reciprocity in this constituency had a man who stood in the fore-front of his profession not only in his native province but in the Dominion. (Applause) He was the man who would be York's next representative. (Cheers)

R. W. McLELLAN

The next speaker was Mr. R. W. McLellan who delivered a rousing speech in which he showed just what Reciprocity meant to local saw mills and in which he also exposed the pretended anxiety on the part of the anti-Reciprocity candidate for the welfare of other local industries. Mr.

McLellan handled the matter with-out gloves and his points were cheered again and again.

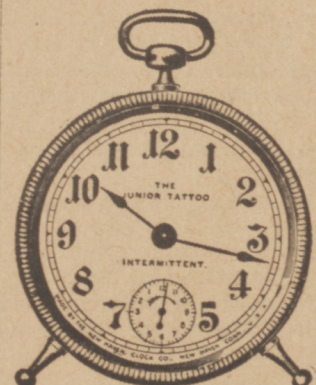

The speaker opened his address with reference to the fact that New Brunswick had for several decades remained almost stationary as far as population was concerned, the census returns actually showing that during one ten-year period the increase had been but thirty souls. The great cause for that pitiable state of affairs was that New Brunswick was cut off from its natural market furnished by the large centres of population of the United States and the situation had been aggravated by the fact that it had been those very centres which drew from New Brunswick the vigor of its manhood and womanhood to build up an alien nation. With Reciprocity there would be a change. The youth of the country would remain at home and help build up their native land.

THE LUMBERING QUESTION.

They had been told of the repeal of the Pike Law and the disastrous consequences which would be experienced by the lumbering industry of Canada. There was another point to which he would like to call attention and that was the condition of the shingle-sawing industry. It was well known that the United States was practically the only market for Canadian shingles and also that as a result of the increase of the American duty on shingles to fifty cents per thousand the shingle-mills of New Brunswick had filled their yards with shingles which could not be sold. Right in Fredericton was the Morrison Mill, which sawed shingles and furnished employment for a large number of men. Reciprocity would benefit that mill, for it would remove the duty.

At this point Mr. McLellan pointed out the inconsistency of Mr. O. S. Crockett. When the increase of fifty cents on shingles had been made by the United States, the lumbermen affected had, through Mr. Crockett, made a vehement protest concerning

FISHERIES CASES WERE SETTLED
OUT OF COURT

Defendants who Left Nets out over Sunday Wanted to Fight Case but did not

Two fisheries cases from Upper Southampton were to come before Police Magistrate Marsh this morning, but were settled out of court. The complainant was Fisheries Overseer J. D. McKay. The defendants were named Grant and Cronkite. The offense charged was that of permitting salmon nets to remain in the river over Sunday. The accused determined to fight the case and retained Dr. L. A. Curry of St. John to look after their interests. Dr. Curry arrived in the city last night and today, after conferring with local officials of the Fisheries Department, advised his clients to settle the case. At first they were adverse to doing this but finally agreed.

INFRACTIONS FEW.

During the salmon season of 1911 infractions of the fisheries regulations have been few. This is partly accounted for by the fact that the season has been very poor. The season for net fishing closed on the 1st inst., and during the summer, except at the very first, there was practically no run of fish. Within the past week, however, the fish have commenced to run. Poor summers are usually followed by a run of salmon in the autumn. Those who fish with rod-and-line have caught some fine fish, particularly at Hart's Island Pool. The extension of the season for rod-fishing to September 15th will enable such fishermen to enjoy an extra fortnight of sport.

SOME COMPLAINT.

The extension of the season from September 1st to September 15th, in accordance with a petition presented by residents of this city and elsewhere, has been very pleasing to the rod-fishermen, but the net-fishermen are rather inclined to consider themselves unjustly treated and want the netting of salmon permitted also until September 15th.
