INGENIOUS FOOD-MAKING FRAUDS RECENTLY EXPOSED

Some food faking frauds that have been recently exposed in England show that in point of ingenuity the resourceful Yankee cannot give many points to the canning capacity of John Bull.

It was noticed that some person on this side of the Atlantic had been sending over to the United Kingdom cases of tinned salmon that were on analysis found to be neither more nor less than common cod dyed pink. This set the authorities busy.

The Right Hon. John Burns president of the Local Government Board has had a report prepared which states that one of the Government inspectors laid hands on a quantity of tins of "potted lobster" which had not the least trace of lobster in them. Their contents were some kind of cheap fish ground up fine mixed with bread and colored a bright red with a common coal tar dye. It may be mentioned that these extraordinary productions were seized in Blackpool.

The same report speaks of blackberry throat lozenges which went under the fine sounding name of "demulcent glycerine and black currant pastilles." These contained neither glycerine nor black currant. Their artifice manufacturer had used gum and sugar and colored them with cochineal.

"Best strawberry jam" seized about the same time was found to consist of apple juice, 45 per cent; corn syrup, 40 per cent, sugar, 1 per cent; coloring matter—a good rich scarlet—1 per cent.

PEAS ARTIFICIALLY COLORED GREEN

What would the poor food faker do without his paint box? Truly he would be in a bad way. One man tackled by the committee appointed to investigate the use of preservatives in foods, boldly declared that it was quite impossible to sell such things as tinned peas, beans or spinach unless they were colored a good green. He informed them that sulphate of copper was the dye.

It may be mentioned that sulphate of copper taken in sufficient quantities, produces a most painful form of stomach ache rather resembling a severe attack of colic.

Glassed cherries which come from France owe their beautiful hue to carmine and less harmful matter for coloring preserved fruits are saffron and annatto.

The medical officer to the City of Westminster made the cheerful discovery that a certain brand of cheap cocoa owed its rich brown hue to oxide of iron. Oxide of iron is simply iron rust and is not exactly the

FAMILY RUNT
 Kansas Man Says Coffee Made Him That

"Coffee has been used in our family of eleven—father, mother, five sons and five daughters—for thirty years. I am the eldest of the boys and have always been considered the runt of the family and a coffee top-

"I continued to drink it for years until I grew to be a man, and then I found I had stomach trouble, nervous headaches, poor circulation, was unable to do a full day's work took medicine for this, that, and the other thing, without the least benefit. In fact I only weighed 116 when I was 28.

"Then I changed from coffee to Postum, being the first one in our family to do so. I noticed as did the rest of the family, that I was surely gaining strength and flesh. Shortly after I was visiting my cousin who said, 'You look so much better—you're getting fat.'

"At breakfast his wife passed me a cup of coffee, as she knew I was always such a coffee drinker, but I said, 'No, thank you.'

"What! said my cousin, 'you quit coffee? What do you drink?'

"Postum," I said, "or water, and I am well." They did not know Postum was, but my cousin had stomach trouble and not sleep at night from drinking coffee three times a day. He was glad to learn about Postum but said he never knew coffee hurt anyone." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"After understanding my condition and how I got well he knew what to do for himself. He discovered that coffee was the cause of his trouble as he never used tobacco or anything else of the kind. You should see the change in him now. We both believe that if persons who suffer from coffee drinking would stop and use Postum they would back to health and happiness." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

material to use for a cup that cheers. Luckily, being so heavy, it settles to the bottom of the cup and so the drinker of the doctored beverage escapes damage to his interior economy.

Iron rust was found as the coloring matter in a sweetmeat known as "aniseed balls" sold in a Poplar shop and it was also in East London that mustard was discovered consisting largely of wheat flour colored with bright yellow turmeric.

JAM MADE FROM TURNIPS AND SEAWEED.

Some time ago there was a Pure Food Exhibition at the Horticultural Hall, Westminster, and here the public learned a few of the amazing frauds commonly practised upon them. On one table stood a seven-pound pot of raspberry and currant jam sold at one and three-pence. The foolish individuals who fancied they could buy pure jam at such a price saw around the pot its real ingredients.

These were turnips, seaweed, refuse apples from the cider presses, sawdust for pips and red ochre for coloring matter. Truly a delightful compound.

Sausages and black puddings are boldly dyed to make them look attractive and milk from which almost all the cream has been abstracted is touched up with an aniline dye, which gives it a beautifully creamy hue.

Even tea is not safe. Leaves that have actually been used are dried and "faced" or colored with plumbago and magnetic oxide of iron.

THE EVOLUTION OF A CANADIAN FARM

(Newton Wyle in Toronto Globe)
 Seldom do we hear of a thickly-wooded area being converted within a year into a practical farm. Generally the transformation extends over a number of years, often a life-time. But that depends entirely upon the capital of the settlers, and in the case of the Dominion Government the matter of mere money is a trifling consideration. The new Dominion Experimental Farm being established near Kentville, N.S., is a striking illustration of what can be done in a short time in the way of changing landscape from the purely picturesque to the strongly utilitarian, when the funds were available to cover all expense. A piece of the Annapolis Valley, stretching over 300 acres, which lately came into the possession of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, is rapidly undergoing that change. The transformation will not be complete, however, for of that area scarcely 200 acres is arable land, and the remainder must serve the aesthetic more than useful. A ravine cutting across the newly-made farm, measured in surface at one hundred acres, but in beauty immeasurable, will be converted by the Government into a park, and placed at the disposal of the citizens of the neighborhood. Properly speaking, the entire area will be made useful.

The portion of the farm requiring clearing is to be planted in orchard with about fifty acres reserved for demonstrations in mixed farming particularly beef production. The idea in procuring the land was to establish a demonstration ground where the Annapolis fruit-growers might see an orchard planted and cared for under modern methods by a practical horticultural expert. The land was purchased in the summer of 1910 by the Nova Scotia Government and later turned over to the department of Agriculture at Ottawa. Since then the work of clearing has been going on, and this spring twenty acres were set out in young apple trees. Prof. William Saxby Blair, for a number of years in charge of the Horticultural Department of Macdonald College, at St. Anne's, Que., and one of the foremost men in his line on the continent, has been chosen to be Superintendent of the new orchard farm, and will shortly enter upon his duties.

The converting of the "forest primeval" (the writer may be pardoned for this quotation since the farm is less than ten miles from the scene of Evaneline's home) into a revenue-producing spot affords especial interest by reason of the fact that the timber taken from the land is being turned into use right on the farm. Fifty acres is now cleared, and already 500 cord of firewood, valued at $3 per cord, has been piled away, and from the large pines, spruces, and hemlocks have been made some 200,000 feet of lumber which will be employed in erecting the necessary buildings on the farm. The price paid for the land was $12,000, or forty dollars an acre. The work of clearing it of timber and replanting fruit trees will cost, after the value of the products is reckoned, more than fifty dollars per acre. The total cost of establishing Kentville Experimental

J. CLARK & SON FREDERICTON and ST. JOHN

ROOSEVELT AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived here at 8.53 a. m. He was given an enthusiastic welcome, and hurried to headquarters in the congress hotel. The crowd cheers as the Colonel stepped from the train. He was received by a delegation of progressives headed by Geo. Perkins and Governor Johnson, of California.

The streets along the route, were lined with crowds and as the Colonel swept past cheer after cheer was raised.

Standing in his auto. in front of the hotel, Col. Roosevelt said:—

"I am very pleased to be with you in Chicago again, and this time at the birth and not at the death of one. I am convinced that the people will not stand for the convention of seven weeks ago, especial ly as it was against the interest of the people. By November the men nominated at that convention, will not be a factor in the race. The days of corrupt political boss and the crooked financier, who stands behind the boss, and the newspapers owned by the boss, and the channels of information have been choked by the opponent of popular government in the effort to prevent the people from finding out where we stand. We intend to see that the facts are known and that the people find out what this movement really is, and decide for themselves what their government shall be."

After completing his speech, Col. Roosevelt went to his headquarters, where he would remain all day consulting with the leaders concerning the convention. He said he did not intend to go to the coliseum today.
