C. H. CAHAN SAYS CANADA NEEDS BETTER DEFENCE

(Montreal Herald)

"The authorities who are responsible for the defence of Canada cannot long ignore the military and naval preparedness of our peaceful neighbor to the south. They must, sooner or later, take adequate measures for the protection of our internal waterways and great transcontinental lines of railway communication," declared Mr. C. H. Cahan, K. C., at the luncheon of the Canadian Club to-day.

"While there has been one hundred years of peace between the two countries," Mr. Cahan said, "the possibility of its breath is omnipresent. There are obvious questions of vital concern to both which may arrive between the United States and Great Britain that would make war between the two countries inevitable.

MONTREAL NOT PROTECTED

"The Island of Montreal, with its population of 600,000 people is at present time utterly undefended against the possibility of attack from across the border, forty miles to the south of us. Near that border lies Plattsburg, within striking distance of Montreal, which is more completely supplied with all the modern munitions of war than any other military station within the confines of the United States. Within similar striking distance of our border are located similar arsenals, similarly equipped.

GREAT LAKES DANGER

"On the great lakes there are several hundred of American steamships, including wholebacks [land freighters of every description, which are capable within a few hours of being transformed into an effective naval force; while in the American lake ports, and in arsenals in connection by rapid railway communication with those ports, there are adequate supplies of all the munition of war for the equipment of these ships."

Mr. Cahan said that he fully appreciated the hundred years of peace and the probability of the arbitration treaty's adoption, but the great increase of population in the Republic, and its need for expansion, for the acquisition of unexploited stores of natural wealth, must be the source of an ever-increasing danger to this country.

NEED GEORGIAN CANAL

He would welcome the completion of the Georgian Bay canal as a work of supreme military and naval importance of Canada.

Mr. Cahan's subject was "Colonial Responsibilities," and he declared that the defense of our own territory must be undertaken with the twofold object of protecting our own homes against foreign aggression; and also to fulfil in some measure the responsibilities which are imposed upon us as one of the colonies of Great Britain. When Great Britain is at war, Canada cannot be at peace, and a declaration of neutrality by Canada would be equivalent to a declaration of independence.

SHOULD FORTIFY HARBORS

Canada, with her chief harbors adequately protected by land defenses relying upon her internal resources, could defy the strongest European power and protect herself against invasions, except through the United States of America. He believed that the fortification of Atlantic ports, St. John, Halifax, Sydney and the entrance to the river St. Lawrence, and Esquimaux, and Prince Rupert on the Pacific, would be more than equivalent, so far as naval strength is concerned, to a contribution of several Dreadnoughts to the effective naval force of Great Britain.

To leave Canada's Atlantic ports undefended would be almost equivalent to a surrender of England's command of the sea, for her command of the sea, next to the protection of the British coasts against possible invasion, is absolutely necessary to provide sustenance from the Empire's granary to the people of the British Isles.

THE IMPERIAL FRANCHISE

On the subject of England's attitude to the Colonies, Mr. Cahan said he could not conceive that a voice and a vote in Imperial affairs should be conceded to belligerent suffragettes and at the same time denied to a million and a half male selectors who are laying the foundations of the Dominion. We are called upon to assume, in whole or in part, the obligations and responsibilities of Empire, we must not be denied admission to the corresponding rights and responsibilities of Imperial citizenship, the right to participate in the Imperial Councils, and in the administration of Imperial affairs. This he said had an important bearing on Canada's contribution to Empire defence.

CHURCHILL MAKES CHANGES NOT LIKED BY EVERYONE

purity has not at all times been maintained. I should like to record my sense of the great services of Admiral Wilson to the navy and the state, which gained for him the respect of those who had the good fortune to serve under him or have the honor to be associated with him. Lord Thinn said that Mr. Churchill had not dealt with the reason for Admiral's Egerton's resignation and asked whether the three lords had resigned on their own initiative, or whether they were removed, also whether there was any precedent for trying to synchronize the appointments of three sea lords. Mr. Churchill replied that he had to consider the constitution of the board as a whole. He informed the house Admiral Egerton was to be appointed chief commander at an important home port upon the first vacancy. No reproach or slur rested upon his public or professional reputation. The change was necessary in order to produce a board which should be a complete unit, and which as a whole, would be the most effective working means in the interests of general administrative efficiency, that the sole reason for Admiral Egerton's resignation.

Regarding the question whether the sea lords had resigned or were removed, he thought the procedure followed was perfectly regular. When he appraised the sea lords that His Majesty had assented to the change they naturally accepted these changes in the spirit of the naval service, which was not to put personal consideration over the interests of the service.

CHANGES ANNOUNCED.

London, Nov. 29.—Important changes in the admiralty are announced tonight. Admiral Sir Francis Charles Bridgeman, commander-in-chief of the home fleet, is appointed first sea lord, replacing Admiral of the Fleet Sir Arthur Fyvet Wilson; Vice-Admiral Prince Louis of Battenburg becomes second sea lord, replacing Vice-Admiral Sir George Le Clerc Egerton; Captain William C. Pakenham, commander of the battleship Collingwood, becomes fourth sea lord replacing Rear Admiral Charles Edward Madden. Rear Admiral Charles John Briggs, the present third sea lord, retains his position.

Admiral Wilson has been offered a peerage, but declined, while the command of some important home port will be given to Vice-Admiral Egerton on the first vacancy.

Several changes in the first commands incident to these promotions are also announced.

The changes in the admiralty command as a surprise to the public, and are evidently the outcome of Winston Spencer Churchill's transference to the admiralty.

The changes are not held to imply any radical change in the naval policy, but rather the development, on progressive lines, of the reform policy instituted when Admiral Wilson was appointed to head the disorders caused by the reluctance of the older officers to accept the reforms. The new board is a particularly strong one, with three officers fresh from service afloat.

Mr. Churchill has ignored the seniority rule and placed the navy in the hands of comparatively youthful oficers.

Prince Louis of Battenburg has a great reputation as a scientific and practical officer. Captain Pakenham has an unique experience as naval attaché on Admiral Togo's flagship throughout the Russo-Japanese war.
