ADMIRAL DRURY'S LEGACIES

(Canada, London)

The late Admiral Sir Charles Carter Drury, R. N., (retired), G. C. B. G. C. V. O., K. C. S. I., aged 67, of Homewood, Tenterden, Kent, a Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor, a Lord of the Admiralty, 1903-7; and subsequently Commander in Chief at the Nore, Mayor of Tenterden (a Canadian by birth), left unsettled property to the gross value of $34,060. In addition to several charitable legacies, he left the double-handled silver cup made from lace worn by him from his entry into the Navy until he attained Flag rank and (in the event of his leaving no issue, whereby the following heirlooms became his absolute property) the set of diamond and blue enamel studs presented to his uncle, Charles Drury, by King Edward VII, when Prince of Wales, on his visit to Canada, a silver tankard, and a silver snuff box, each with the Drury crest, to Colonel Charles William Drury, of the Royal Canadian Artillery, Halifax, N. S., whom failing to his issue.

Fashion in China.

The Chinese have always had a "philosophy of clothes;" their garments are symbols. Consequently, if a Chinaman is a revolutionist, and wishes to express his frankest criticism of the old regime and to indicate that he is open as day to all the influences of the west, he cuts off his queue, steps into a little tailor's shop and orders a straw hat, a celluloid collar and a pair of cuffs, colored socks, a safety razor and a pair of American boots. These modes of Europe are China's "dernier cri." So much so that the "tailors' shops" producing crude semi-foreign apparel, which here (according to the British consular reports) "spring up in almost every important street," are inundated with orders to supply "outward manifestations of a progressive spirit," and the local agents of British sewing machines are not able to supply fast enough the machines required to keep pace with the demand.

It's Nature.

"We started out on a joy ride, but found the car was a deep disguise for something else."
"What was it a disguise for?"
"The trouble wagon."

RECESSIONAL

God of our fathers, known of old,
Lord of far-flung battle-line,
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The captains and the kings depart;
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far-called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headline sinks the flag;
Lo, all the pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe,
Such boasting as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the law—
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not Thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word—
Thy mercy on Thy People, Lord!
—By Rudyard Kipling.

BOTTOM OF LAKE PAVED WITH IRON ORE

Sawtooth Reef In Stormy Superior
Sewn With Many Thousands of Tons of the Mineral

A veritable open pit iron mine of immense richness lies off the shores of Keweenaw Point, which juts out into Lake Superior from the southern shore a distance of fifty miles. Sawtooth Reef, off Keweenaw Point a mile, and throwing its cruel points up from a hundred fathoms of water to within twenty feet of the surface, has caught and held many ships that have lost their course in thick fogs on dark nights or have gone ashore because of deviations of the compass. The steamer George S. Baker of the Steel Trust fleet, which was picked up by Sawtooth Reef during a dense fog recently, went on the rocks because of the compass "running away." The same was true in the case of the Moreland, which was destroyed on Sawtooth Reef three years ago, although the Moreland went on the rocks during a clear, cloudless, and fogless night, according to residents of Eagle River, who sat on the porches of their homes and watched the big ship swing in onto the reef. Whether it is the jettisoned cargoes of iron ore that cause this deviation of the compass cannot be said.

From the ill-fated Moreland, which was just off Eagle River on her maiden trip, nearly 12,000 tons of ore were jettisoned. A cargo of 10,500 tons was thrown overboard from the hold of the George S. Baker. A half-dozen other ships which have stranded along the Keweenaw west and north shore have contributed large cargoes. The steamer Waldo gave 8,000 tons of ore toward this "under the lake" mine at Gull Rock, ten miles off the point. A score of wooden ships which have gone down around the point in twenty years or so have lost their cargoes there. It is estimated that lying loose in the waters of Superior about the shores of Keweenaw are from 100,000 to 150,000 tons of perfectly good iron ore, all to be had for the taking. The copper peninsula is rusted, along its shores, from the wastings of the jettisoned cargoes of iron ore.

ONE MAN'S LIFE OUTLAYS

Frenchman Spent $10,200 on Cigars,
and $5,520 For Drinks

What the average man spends, during his lifetime, on little luxuries and trivial necessities, may seem to him but a matter of small moment. As Canadians, we have been trained to spend judiciously, nevertheless if we were to realize the colossal figures into which our little expenditures run during the course of our respective lives, we might be appalled.

An eccentric personage has just died in a town in the west of France at the age of 77. When he was 18 years of age he began to keep a book of personal expenses. For fifty-two years he jotted down every item.

During this period he smoked 628,713 cigars. Of this number 43,692 were presented to him by friends. For the remaining 581,021 he spent the sum of $10,200.

He had bought 80 pairs of trousers which cost him $460; 75 jackets and waistcoats, for $330, and 63 pairs of shoes, for $230. He used 300 shirts and 354 collars, for which he paid $265. His omnibus and train fares came to $260. In fifteen years he drank 23,875 bottles and 40,303 small glasses of liqueur, and spent on them $5,520, plus $1,245 in tips.

The Champion Cigar Smoker
What is believed to be a world record has just been set up at a congress of South German smokers, held at Frankfurt.

A special trophy, consisting of a silver eagle on a red and white ribbon, was offered to the smoker who took the longest time to turn a Mexican cigar into grey-white ash without letting it once go out. The competition began at eleven o'clock, and very nearly 200 people contested for the award. By twelve o'clock only twenty competitors were in the running—the rest had regretfully finished their "weeds" or had laid them at rest in the ash-tray for too long.

The rivals dropped out rapidly, and by one o'clock only one smoker was left—Herr Henz, a Sachsenhausen business man, who actually puffed away in peace until he perforce had to throw his diminutive cigar stump away, two hours forty-six minutes and seventeen seconds after he had set light to it. Herr Henz was therefore proclaimed smoker laureate.

EVENING SMILES

A tango lit on a one-step's knee,
With a view to a song and a dance;
And the audience shrilled in evident glee,

Mr. Debonair—"I understand it but I've no use for it. I always take the best hat I can find after dinner."—Judge.

THE SEASONABLE EXCUSE

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer

"Yes."
"Then how in Tophet did the accident happen?"
"Easy. I had to sneeze."
