FIVE VOTES FOR.....

FEAR THAT MONTREAL MAY LOSE GRAIN TRADE

Montreal, July 30—It is freely stated among many prominent grain men that Montreal will eventually share the fate of Chicago, which, up to seven years ago, held all the Great Lakes coal trade, but, being unable to handle it, Milwaukee took it practically away and has kept it. So they believe that Montreal will eventually lose her grain trade unless strenuous measures are adopted at once.

Montreal harbor grain facilities are at present so improperly equipped as to be utterly unable to handle her grain traffic at present coming this way from the northwest. So had have these conditions become that one line of steamships has been taken off the Great Lakes and Montreal trade entirely since July 2. These are the boats of the Great Lakes & St. Lawrence Transportation Company. This was done only after the Wallace, Keefe and David-sa boats of their fleet had lost a total of twenty-seven days waiting to unload their cargoes of grain here in port at a loss of $135 per day, a total of $3,645.

There is a Corn Exchange rule which says that $75 per day demurrage may be charged. But this condition would be rather unjust, and is seldom charged because of the fact that local consignees have no place to put the grain and therefore not liable for the congestion, but very willing to remove grain from the boats whenever storage room can be obtained.

Fort William has now nine grain elevators, and is to build three more next year. A reduction of a half-cent-freight rate to Buffalo, and the result will be that Montreal will lose her prestige as a grain port, and the huge Canadian grain crop will be handled through the United States ports.

There is practically no visible chance or hope to have the new Harbor Commissioners' elevator equipped in time for the fall grain crop, and, although the grain naturally moves faster near the close of navigation than at present, despite the fact that the present rates are lower, the congestion, it is believed, will be enormous.

PIN-MONEY MADE OUT OF LETTUCE GROWING

In the collection of short contributions to the May Woman's Home Companion, in which various writers give suggestions about home gardening, appears the following from a woman who lives in Wisconsin:

"My success in home gardening came about by glancing over the market reports of a daily paper. I noticed that head-lettuce was quoted at fifty cents per dozen. Then I decided to grow and ship lettuce. Labor being cheap, I hired a boy to do the heavy work, such as fertilizing and preparing the ground. Early in the fall I had it plowed again, and made into narrow but rather high beds. In these beds I planted my seeds, using the Big Boston variety. I planted every third row and when the plants had three or four leaves I transplanted them in the beds I had left vacant. As soon as the weather began to get cool the plants grew very fast. Lettuce requires a cool, moist atmosphere and light, rich soil. I had these conditions and my lettuce grew rapidly.

"As soon as the heads began forming I looked around for the best market. After hearing from several commission houses I was offered $5.00 per sugar-barrel of fourteen dozen heads. I packed and iced each barrel, carefully picking off all decayed leaves, and shipped to Milwaukee and Chicago houses.

"My first shipments netted me $1.20 commission; express, ice and barrels being about $1.40, seed and labor $3. Having and transplanting I did myself. When all of my lettuce was sold I had $83 to my credit."

FORSEES WAR IN CABINET CHANGES

London, July 30—Harold Spencer, writing editorially in the Daily News re Cabinet control of foreign affairs in conjunction with the dominions, points out that peace or war is now practically in the hands of the Cabinet, although it is even possible war might be declared by the Premier alone. Therefore if the dominions are given a statutory voice they would actually possess more power than the Commons or Cabinet.

CABINET SUPREMACY IMPAIRED

The article proceeds to speak of the remarkable change in the attitude of the British Government. If Canada is to have a voice it is clear the other dominions must have also, and any Council formed will have to be consulted on all important questions of foreign policy, and if there is any reality in the plan the British Cabinet in that event will have to accept their advice. In that way the supremacy of the Cabinet will be quite certainly impaired, and so far as the British Cabinet is impaired, to that extent a blow will be struck at the British Parliament, from which the Cabinet is drawn.

WOULD REMOVE RESTRAINTS

Would this fundamental change in government make for peace or war? It is to be feared it would make for war. The restraints on war arise chiefly from fear of the consequences of war, but as the dominions are far removed from the probable centre any European war would be far less liable there to restraints. It is perfectly natural that the home country should rejoice at the willingness of the dominions to help her both in defence and offence, but it was the dream of the earlier school that the British Empire should be a league of peace.

SIR WILFRID PRAISED

Laurier, that great man who guided the fortunes of Canada for nearly a generation, always had that end in view, and has always striven to save his country from the "vortex of militarism." Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been defeated and Canada has for the moment turned her back on his counsels; but will the present mood always last?
