Lord Roberts Has Ended His Career

national hero without rival in the affections of the people.

Despite his years, he had never ceased hard work since his nominal retirement, and, as he had often remarked, he lived a rigidly abstemious life, that he might preserve his strength for the service of his country.

During the past five or six years he prosecuted an active campaign to persuade the nation to adopt a compulsory military service. His belief was that Great Britain required the training of the whole male population in arms, rather upon the plan of Switzerland, than the longer terms of conscription enforced in the case of continental military nations.

By speeches in parliament and addresses before meetings throughout the kingdom, by magazine writings and letters he preached unceasingly and untiringly the necessity for the nation to have its men trained in the rudiments, at least, of the soldier's work, so that they could be called quickly to arms to defend the country against invasion.

In private conversation, he expressed the conviction that Germany was planning to make war on Great Britain when she found an advantageous moment, and he believed that the supposed menace of civil war in Ireland was a factor in setting alight the present European conflagration. Lord Roberts commanded none of the arts of the orator and usually read his addresses. His popular nickname, "Bobs," implied no lack of personal dignity. Although only five feet, three—a shade shorter than Field Marshal French—his figure and bearing were the embodiment of soldierly character.

His home at Ascot was a modest unpretentious villa. For society, he had neither time nor inclination. But he was the president of the Pilgrims' Club, and presided over many of its gatherings.

Field Marshal Roberts worked day and night for the welfare of the soldiers from the outbreak of the war. He took the greatest interest in the Indians and issued an appeal for funds for their wounded and sick. He also made requests for sportsmen to contribute saddles for the army, which brought a ready response. He made other requests for the loan of field glasses to officers during the war. He wrote personal letters of thanks to all contributors.

One of the last speeches was made at a review of a battalion of volunteers when he referred sarcastically to young men who played football and cricket at this crisis.

King George and Queen Mary were greatly shocked by the news that Field Marshal Earl Roberts had succumbed last night to a swift attack of pneumonia, while on the front in France whither he had journeyed to see once more the Indian troops, of whom he was so proud.

Immediately upon receipt of the intelligence, Their Majesties sent messages of condolence to Lady Roberts and her two daughters, Lady Aileen Mary and Lady Ada Edwina Stewart. The question of a public funeral for Britain's great soldier, with services at St. Paul's, is under consideration, but it is understood that in deference to the wishes of Lady Roberts for a private service, this will not be pressed.

REVIEWED CANADIAN TROOPS.

London, Nov. 15.—The Canadian troops count themselves fortunate in having been the last body reviewed by Lord Roberts, whose words of praise and encouragement, given at Salisbury Plain on October 14, will sink deeper now that the veteran has passed away. The fact that the banquet given in honor of the Canadian minister of militia, on the eve of his return to Canada, was the last occasion Lord Roberts made a notable utterance concerning the present crisis, is also of particular interest.

Besides being honorary colonel in chief of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, Lord Roberts was honorary colonel of the Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto. In the field, as well as at home, Lord Roberts had the affection of the newspaper men, because of the courteous treatment he always extended. In the Boer war he told the correspondents that he had the utmost confidence in them and afterwards stated that his faith in the London daily papers had been justified.

MEMORIAL FOR THE LATE VICTOR HATHEWAY, R. N.

their country in this sad but righteous war. Among those who lost their lives on the Good Hope were four young midshipmen from our own shores. They have died the death of heroes. Dead heroes, like dead saints are not soon forgotten. Their memory lives on and their deeds do follow them.

ALL MUST DIE.

Every man must die. How can man die better than by laying down his life for his country and his God? A young man, not yet of age, in his short life may live longer and do more than another passed the allotted span of life. The memory of those young men—among the first Canadians to die for their country—will live in the minds of future generations as an example of courage and sacrifice.

A GRACEFUL TRIBUTE.

Victor Hatheway—only yesterday it seems a boy of my Sunday School—was a good type of Canadian young manhood, and a young man of much promise. His manly qualities and a happy disposition justly endeared him to all. His ability—and he was a boy of no mean ability—soon won him a position of honor which he was well qualified to fill—a midshipman in His Majesty's navy. High principle and a strong sense of duty would in due time have won for him rapid advancement in his chosen career, but God needed him for a higher service.

For his family and the families of his comrades there is a nation's sympathy, from the King down to the little children. To his father and family I extend the deepest sympathy. I know the place he holds in their hearts and the great loss they are called upon to bear with patience and courage. I know, too, they can look beyond the grave and see the hope and glory of the resurrection victory. Death is swallowed up in victory.

A GLORIOUS DEATH.

A heathen poet said: "How sweet and pleasant a thing it is to die for one's country." Surely we Christians, the sure and certain hope of the risen Christ's victory over death, can say with His apostles, "Death is swallowed up in victory." The nobler the death the greater the victory. The shock is greater when death comes so sudden and so near home, but in the midst of life we are in death.

There are young men in this Cathedral this afternoon who would have then and would now have gladly given what this young man gave. There

MARYSVILLE NOTES

Marysville, Nov. 12.—Miss Leddy, of Montreal, who represents the St. Lawrence Flour Mill Co., spent a short time at this place recently.

Mr. Robert Seymour, of Rumford Falls, is visiting his sister, Mrs. John McInnis.

Mr. Luther Manzer of Medicine Hat, N. W. T. is at this place, being called by the death of his mother.

Mrs. N. E. Stewart is shipping today two cases of goods for the Belgian Relief fund. Following is the list of those contributing: Mrs. N. Elder, clothing; Miss Titus, clothing; Bradford Pond, clothing; James Gilmore, overcoat; Mrs. Joseph Capen, coats; Mrs. Nickerson, coats; A Friend, clothing; Mrs. Geo. Tapley, clothing and boots; Mrs. N. E. Stewart, clothing; Mrs. Marshall, clothing and boots; Mrs. Codran, clothing; Mrs. Clark, clothing.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Capen was buried today. Service was conducted at the house by Rev. C. G. Pincombe. Interment was made at the Methodist Cemetery.

The Marysville General Store, the leading establishment doing business here, under the management of Mr. E. B. Staples, is doing a rushing business. But Mr. McNaughton and his staff are equal to the task. Mr. H. E. Lint, who always meets his customers with a smile, is almost certain of a sale. We might say that Mr. Lint is an old veteran dating back somewhere close to the time of the landing of Christopher Columbus, but he is always there with the goods. Last, but not least, comes Jack Fletcher, a young man of great promise and a general favorite of the staff. The goods are delivered by auto. Mr. Fullerton performs that duty in a very creditable manner and very much is due to him for the prompt way in which he delivers the goods. The ladies department is looked after by Miss Logan, an expert saleslady whose equal cannot easily be found. The remains of the late Mrs. Christopher Manzer, were taken to Nashwaak Village for burial today.

are men here, too, who would have been proud to give what this young man's father gave—his son—for this most righteous cause. This is the price of victory—death. Death of his only son was the price God paid to prove that love is the greatest and most precious of all things and that death is swallowed up in victory. Everywhere throughout the British empire loved ones have laid down their lives that the victory of right over might should triumph. Their deaths are swallowed up in victory. In our pain and in our sorrow it is our duty to turn for comfort and for strength to these words: "I am the resurrection and the life." Death is swallowed up in victory. Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."
