This is careful and honest administration a la Borden.

The $16,000 graft organ takes a somewhat novel attitude in regard to the revelations made before the Dugal commission. It claims that the money collected by Berry from the lumbermen was for a campaign fund, and in the same breath it states that ' there is no suspicion of wrongdoing against the members of the executive. In private conversation Mr. Morrissy readily admits that he knew housecleaning but his efforts were be extracting a lot of useful information from unwilling witnesses before the royal commission. The little loan of $350,000 made by Mr. Gould Street and his associates from the Prudential Trust Tompany seems to have synchronized with the provincial elections of 1912. In that contest the Flemming purists carried all but two seats and some people are still wondering where all the money/came from
