Admiral Dewey on being complimented on his superb health, smiled and said: "I attribute my good condition to plenty of exercise and no banquets. One-third of what we eat, you know, enables us to live."
"In that case," said his friend, jestingly, "what becomes of the other two-thirds?"
"Oh," said the admiral, "that enables the doctor to live."

A newly married young woman had a gas cooker fixed in her kitchen. The gas company sent her a card of rules with instructions to study them well and what she couldn't understand they would explain to her. Imagine the clerk's surprise the next morning when he heard her say over the phone "I can understand all the rules except the one at the bottom of the card: 'See other side.' It's impossible to see the other side; the man has fixed it against the wall."

owe their singular effectiveness in curing Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica to their power of stimulating and strengthening the kidneys. AN ARCHBISHOP'S WIT.

In the Church of England no ecclesiastic has been the subject of a greater number of stories than the late Archbishop Temple.

He concealed beneath a somewhat rugged exterior and a decidedly brusque manner and essentially warm heart. But he was a man of impulse, and he could never resist the opportunity to make a joke.

On one occasion he was lunching at a vicarage when his hostess meekly asked him:

"May I give Your Grace some of this cold chicken?"

"No, you may not," was his reply. "Wherever I go they give me cold chicken and 'The Church's One Foundation' and I hate them both!"

One of his most pointed rebukes was delivered to a cab-driver. He was Bishop of London at the time and had been driven in a hansom to Fulham Palace. On alighting he tendered his bare fare.

"Cabby," enraged, ventured to inquire whether, if St. Paul had employed him, he would not have acted more liberally.

"No," said the bishop, "he would have been Bishop of Canterbury, and the fare to Lambeth is only one shilling."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"The worm will turn," quoted the sage.

"So will the fish if you keep him long enough," said the Fool.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
