BEST STORIES OF THE WAR

Correspondents at the front or marooned in obscure places while the great European conflict rages manage daily to get through the wary censors some little grimly humorous or tragic sidelights of the war. Here are the best that have come over the cables recently:

GERMAN A FRENCH HERO.

"Among the wounded men from the fighting on the Yser was a young German with a bloodless, intellectual life," cables a correspondent. "His head was a mass of bandages. He had just been taken from a Red Cross train and placed tenderly in a bed in an improvised hospital. The nurses gathered around him, some of them in tears."

"He saved the lives of seven French soldiers." This, written on a blood-stained sheet of packing paper pinned upon a blanket, told that the young German was a hero. That was all the French ambulance men found time to tell us."

FOES JOKE BETWEEN FIGHTS

Despite the horrors and discomforts of the situation on the French and German soldiers who have been facing each other for many weeks in the trenches on the banks of the Aisne occasionally indulge in a little pleasantries.

Germans sheltered in concrete lined quarries chased toward the French lines a horse around whose neck hung a large placard and several well thumbed German newspapers. The placard bore this inscription:

"Good day to the Frenchmen. Lo you know Russia is beaten all along the line and Antwerp is taken!"

The Frenchmen smiled. A French junior officer says that in the enemy's trenches, not more than thirty or forty yards away from his own, the Germans try to prove which of them can sing the loudest.

"On both sides," says this subaltern, "we have excellent musicians, and they accompany their own songs; that is when they are not chaffing one another across the intervening ground."

"We can often hear quite clearly commands given in the German trenches. We also frequently chaff each other and play tricks when we can, without omitting to use our rifles."

"IT HAS ITS HUMOROUS SIDE."

A young English officer of the Army Service Corps writes:

"I had my first experience of shell fire on Monday last. One burst practically at my horse's heels as I was galloping across an open space. I was glad when it was over, as they sent six in to myself and my two wagons within forty-five seconds."

"The people here cannot do enough for you. Incidentally, I brought in a spy myself about two weeks ago. He was in a wretched funk and I felt a perfect swine for having to keep a revolver on him the whole time."

"I used to wonder what active service would be like but the picture I drew was entirely wrong. However, it has the humorous side and I have howled with laughter at some of the extremely funny things that have occurred."

"The conduct of the women and the children in these villages is wonderful. Yesterday, when I was in the Germans bombarded the town. I only saw one woman and two children running. The rest were as cool as we were."

"The noise of the shells is devilish. It's a long drawn out whistling whine—a pause—and then a bang! The worst is that you hear them coming and do not know when or where they will burst. Still, like everything else, we get used to them. No amount of dodging could do the slightest good, so why try?"

A NEW ONE OF TOMMY.

In a tramway car from Camberwell to the Elephant and Castle, London, was a wounded soldier, discharged from the new King's College Hospital. As he talked about the fighting in Belgium—where, he said, "I got it in the left thigh, and never even seen a German"—and of the kindness of the French people, he kept looking at his hands and gently rubbing the back of one with the fleshy palm of the other.

"Did you get hurt in the hands, too?" a man asked him.

"No," he said, and then, breathing on the back of his fingers, rubbed his nails upon the khaki sleeve of his other arm.

"What's the matter with them, then?" his questioner went on; "they look funny to me, somehow."

The wounded man spread out his two hands, palms down, with the fingers spread wide apart. His finger nails glowed like pink opals.

"There's nothing the matter with them," he said, "only they've been manicured. They done it in the hospital. The nurse done it. 'Shocking fingers,' she says, 'for a young man to go about with.' So she fetches a bowl of soapy water and a box of tools and this is what she done to them—not half bad, I don't think. You can take it from me, it's the most wonderful, up-to-date hospital in the world. It's worth getting a plug in the leg to go in there and to look at the place."

"You'll have to roughen them nails up a bit before you get home," a man in the car told him, "or your old woman will be wanting to know what you've been doing in France."

A SUPER-BELGIAN.

A young Belgian lancer who was promoted in one day from private to sergeant and from sergeant to second lieutenant, is recuperating at Marple in Cheshire.

His name is Renier and he is not yet eighteen years old. He speaks six languages.

When the war began he was living at Harrogate. He took the first boat to Belgium and after being rejected several times was admitted to a regiment in which his brother was a captain. His brother was killed early in the war.

PIMPLES APPEARED ON HIS

FACE AND HANDS.

The primary cause of pimples arises from the blood not being in a good condition. When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples will break out all over the body, but more particularly on the forehead, nose and chin, and although they are not a dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself. What you need, when these pimples break out, is to get a real good blood purifying medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. One that will build up the system by cleansing the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Mr. F. A. McKenzie, Portage La Prairie, Man., writes: "Last summer I was all run down and unfit for work of any kind. All kinds of food seemed distasteful to me. Pimples appeared on my face and hands, and I seemed to grow worse every day. One day a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. Half-heartedly I did so, and the results obtained were marvellous. I regained my health, I took on flesh, and in a short time the pimples and skin eruptions disappeared entirely; thanks to the healing powers of B.B.B. I freely recommend it to all sufferers."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The first day that young Renier went out on patrol he was captured and tied up, but he undid the knots, sprang on the sentry when the sentry was lighting a cigarette, cut his throat and escaped, wearing the German's helmet and tunic. On regaining the Belgian lines he was arrested as a German but was soon released and promoted to a sergeant.

Later in the day he carried a wounded soldier out of a hot fire and was promoted to second lieutenant for gallantry. Next day, in a charge in which his brother was killed, young Renier was wounded in the thigh and the forehead.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The thirty-first annual convention of the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Sunday School Association will be held at Sussex from Tuesday to Thursday of next week. A special feature of this year's convention will be the attention given to work among boys of the teen years, two sessions being devoted entirely to consideration of this particular department. Another feature of the convention, a little off the beaten path, will be an hour on the second day devoted to denominational rallies in which the delegates of the several churches will get together in church groups to discuss under a leader the work of their own respective denominations. Mrs. Havelock Coy of this city, is among those who will take part in the elementary conference.
