ECLIPSE OF THE SUN TODAY

Washington, Aug. 20—The eclipse of the sun tomorrow—total in part of Europe and Asia and a part eclipse in northwestern America—has been attracting some widespread attention among astronomers and scientists, but now it is feared that the European war will seriously interfere with, even if it does not entirely prevent the observations which the scientists had planned to make of the phenomenon.

The eclipse will be observable along a line extending from Alsteno, on the west coast of Norway, through Hernosand on the Swedish coast, Kiga on the Baltic, Minsk and Kiev in Central Russia, and leaving Europe at Theodosia on the Crimean coast.

Many scientific expeditions had been planned to observe the eclipse. The most of these expeditions were designed to take their observations from points in Russia, where the duration of totality will be longest. Under existing conditions it will, of course, be impossible for the scientists of other lands to visit Russia at the present time. At the present time it will be equally impossible for the scientists to change the base of their operations to the Scandinavian Peninsula, for the reason that weeks of preparations are necessary to set up their instruments and make other necessary preparations. The difficulty of reaching Norway and Sweden at the present time is so great that it is unlikely that any expeditions to those countries will be undertaken. In view of the existing circumstances, it is probable that no noteworthy observations will be made of the eclipse, with the possible exception of those that may be made by the Russian astronomers themselves.

Before the outbreak of the war, nearly all the civilized countries of the world were preparing expeditions for the study of the eclipse, and a number of private expeditions were also being fitted out. As previously stated the most of them had chosen Russia for their goal. Among other German cities, Hamburg was fitting out an expedition, while a second one, subsidized by the Prussian State, was being planned by Professor Miethe of the Charlottenburg Technical School.

Tomorrow the moon will pass exactly between the earth and the sun, and there will be a total eclipse. It will not be observed in America, except as a small partial eclipse at sunrise in the northern States and Canada, but in Persia, Russia and Scandinavia the full effect will be seen.

In tomorrow's eclipse the diameter of the cone at the earth's surface is only about eighty-five miles, so that the eclipse is visible as total only in a belt about 85 miles wide, stretching over the countries already named. As a partial eclipse it will be seen over a very wide area, including northwestern America, Greenland, Europe, half of Asia and half of Africa. Within this region only a part of the sun's disk will be hidden by the moon.

One of the new deamas of the coming season will be "Consequences," a satire on the intermarriages of Jew and Gentile.

Bruce McRae is to have the feature part of "Newly Married," the Edgar Selwyn farce which will tour the principal cities the coming season.

THE WAR CORRESPONDENT IS ESTIMATED THIS TIME

The Story of the Burial of General Wauchope During the Boer War Told by the Late George Washington Stevens was a Masterpiece

The present war will be conducted without the presence of war correspondents. In most of the great wars of the past, the war correspondent played an important part, and some of their writings, such as those of Russell in the Crimean War, furnished by all odds the best account of that great struggle. By his writings Russell was able to mould public opinion and forced an inefficient government to properly equip and look after its soldiers.

In more recent times, the war correspondent has been shoved to one side, until in the Balkan war he played little or no part. Even in the Russian-Japanese war very little latitude war furnished the war correspondent. In South African war, correspondents were given more latitude, and some very fine writings resulted from the presence of these men with the army. As a matter of fact, one of the finest pieces of descriptive writing ever penned, appeared in the papers during the Boer War.

This was from the pen of George Washington Stevens, the correspondent of the London Daily News and depicted the attack of the Highland Brigade upon Magersfontein and the subsequent burial of General Wauchope and his slain soldiers.

A MASTERPIECE

The story of the burial follows:

Three hundred yards to the rear of the little township of Modder River, just as the sun was sinking in a blaze of African splendor on the evening of Tuesday, the 12th December a long, shallow grave lay exposed in the breast of the veldt. To the westward, the broad river, fringed with trees, runs murmuringly; to the eastward, the heights, still held by the enemy, frowned menacingly; north and south the veldt undulated peacefully; a few paces to the northward of that grave fifty dead Highlanders lay dressed as they had fallen on field of battle; they had followed their chief to the field, and they were to follow him to the grave.

How grim and stern those men looked as they lay face upwards to the sky, with great hands clutched in the last agony, and brows still knit with the stern lust of the strife in which they had fallen. The plaids dear to every Highland clan were represented there, and as I looked out of the distance came the sound of pipes. It was the general coming to join his men. There, right under the eyes of the enemy, moved with slow and solemn tread all that remained of the Highland Brigade. In front of them walked the chaplain, with bare head, dressed in his robes of office; then came the pipers with their pipes, sixteen in all, and behind them, with arms reversed, moped the Highlanders, dressed in all the regalia of their regiments, and in the midst the dead general, borne by four of his comrades. Out swelled the pipes to the strains of "The Flowers of the Forest," now ringing proud and high, until the soldiers' heads went back in haughty defiance, and eyes flashed through tears like sunlight on steel, now sinking to a moaning wail like a woman mourning for her first-born, until proud heads dropped forward till they rested on heaving chests, and tears rolled down the wan and scarred faces, and the choking sob broke through the solemn rhythm of the march of death.

Right up to the grave they marched, then broke away in companies until the general lay in the shallow grave with a Scottish square of armed men around him. Only the dead man's son and a small remnant of his officers stood with the chaplain and the pipers while the solemn service of the church was spoken.

GOD HELP THE BOERS

Then once again the pipes pealed out, and "Lochaber No More" cut through the stillness like a cry of pain, until one could almost hear the wail in her Highland home, moaning for the soldier she would welcome back no more.

Then, as if touched by the magic of one thought, the soldiers turned their tear-damp eyes from the still form in the shallow grave towards the heights, where Cronje, the "Lion of Africa," and his soldiers stood. Then every cheek flushed crimson, and strong jaws set like steel, and the veins on the hands that clasped the rifle handles swelled to almost bursting with the fervor of the cry, and that look from those silent armed men spoke more eloquently than ever spoke the tones of orders. For on each frowning face the light of vengeance set, and each man's eye asked silently for God God help the Boers when next the Highland pibroch sounds; God rest the Boers' souls when the Highland bayonets charge; for neither death, nor hell, nor things above, nor things below, will hold back the Scots from their blood feud.

As the head of the grave, at the point nearest the enemy, his officers groined around him, while in line behind him his soldiers were laid in double rows, wrapped in their plaids. No shots were fired over the dead men resting so peacefully, only the salute was given, and then the men marched campwards as the darkness of an African night rolled over the far-stretching breadth of the veldt.

ASSISTING WOOL-GROWERS

Sheep-raising Industry to be Further Improved and Developed

The live stock branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture is prepared to offer practical assistance to associations of wool growers in the preparation and display of their wool clips for market. Associations, in order to receive aid, must be organized in accordance with the regulations of the branch, and membership is limited to actual owners of sheep. West of Fort William an association must contain at least 3,000 sheep, or sufficient to comprise one carload of wool; east of there, a relative number. The services of expert wool classifiers, who will take charge of and perform the grading, classification and preparation of the wool, will be provided.

This proposal represents more than a mere continuation of the work that has already been undertaken. It means the introduction of a definite scheme whereby wool producers may be actually assisted in preparing and presenting their wools upon the market in the most acceptable fashion, and thus be in a position to cater more directly to the requirements of the market. Moreover, it should prove effective in developing and improving the general status of sheep-raising and in creating an impetus to the production and preparation of an improved grade of wool, and indirectly, a better class of mutton.

COLD CHEERLESS HOME

Igloos of Eskimos Crowded and Unsanitary

The igloos used by the Eskimos of the bleak north are small in size, necessarily overcrowded, and every crevice is carefully sealed during the long winter months in order to maintain a comfortable temperature within. The different forms of dwellings on the Arctic coast are the sod igloos, which are the standard and are constructed on two different plans.

The first type of igloo, with windows and doors in the walls, is a frame structure of logs or lumber. The walls and roof are covered thickly with sod, and one or two windows are set into the walls. The home contains two separate compartments, which are connected by a small door, the living-room proper and the entry or shed. The shed is somewhat smaller in size than the living quarters, and is used as a storeroom for provisions, clothing, sleds, and other articles too numerous to mention. The entrance into the igloo is also constructed of timber, and covered with sod, but the plan of construction differs somewhat from the one just described. This igloo also has two compartments, a living-room and a storeroom, connected by a low passageway. The entrance into the home is through an open hatch in the roof of the entry by means of a ladder. Then by passing through the tunnel one enters the living-room.

The living-room of some of the igloos are curtained off to separate the sleeping quarters from other parts of the household, but the majority have no such arrangements, all the household duties being conducted in the single room. The furniture equipment usually consists of a small stove, a few dishes, and improvised beds. The board floor, which is usually fairly clean, serves the purpose of chairs and tables. A few of the families own sewing machines and occasionally a phonograph.

100,000 COPIES OF REMARKABLE BOOK DESCRIBING PECULIAR PSYCHIC POWERS TO BE DISTRIBUTED POST FREE TO READERS OF "THE FREDERICTON MAIL."

"The wonderful power of Personal Influence, Magnetism, Fascination, Mind Control, call it what you will, can surely be acquired by everyone no matter how unattractive or unsuccessful," says Mr. Elmer Ellsworth Knowles, author of the new book entitled: "The Key to the Development of the Inner Forces." The book lays bare many astounding facts concerning the practices of the Eastern Yogis, and describes a simple though effective system of controlling the thoughts and acts of others; how one may gain the love and friendship of those who might otherwise remain indifferent; how to quickly and accurately judge the character and disposition of an individual; how to cure the most obstinate diseases and habits without drugs or medicines; even the complex subject of projecting thoughts (telepathy) is explained.

Miss Josephine Davis, the popular stage favourite, whose portrait appears herewith, declares that Prof. Knowles' book opens the door to success, health and happiness to every mortal, no matter what his or her position in life. She believes that Prof. Knowles has discovered principles which, if universally adopted, will revolutionise the mental status of the human race.

The book, which is being distributed broadcast free of charge, is full of photographic reproductions showing how these unseen forces are being used all over the world, and how thousands upon thousands have developed powers which they little dreamed they possessed. The free distribution of the 100,000 copies is being conducted by a large London institution, and a copy will be sent post free to anyone interested. No money need be sent, but those who wish to do so may enclose 5 cents (stamps of your own country) to cover postage etc. All requests for the free book should be addressed to: National Institute of Sciences, Free Distribution Dept. 1532 B, No. 258 Westminster Bridge Road, London, S. E., England. Simply say you would like a copy of "The Key to the Development of the Inner Forces," and mention The Fredericton Mail.

John Deere Spreader

We have just unloaded another car of these splendid machines.

It has been proved beyond question that for a farmer who has a reasonably large quantity of manure to handle, a spreader is a profitable investment. It will almost double the value of the manure, to say nothing of the great saving of labor.

The John Deere is the most profitable spreader because of its strength, its extreme simplicity, because it is so easy to operate both in loading and unloading.
