Jimmy's Excuse

James: "Please, sir, can I get off this afternoon about half-past two?"
Head of Office: "Whose funeral is it to be this time, James?"
James: "Well, to be honest, sir, the way the morning papers have it worked out it looks as if it's going to be the home team's again."

Uncle Eph. Remarks:

I KIN — REMEMBER

when every well-regulated family had a china cuspidor in the parlor and a codfish box filled with ashes in the kitchen—an accurate spitting was a art."

The New Criterion

"The idea of my marrying Blanco" said a girl. "Why, I wouldn't know what to do with him. He doesn't know one of the new dance steps."
"He's a splendid swimmer," said her friend.

"Humph!" said the girl, "do you think I want a husband that I've got to keep in an aquarium?"

The Little Lisper

Peering over his counter the whiskered chemist perceived a diminutive girl waiting in an attitude of patient expectation.

"A pennorth o' pills, please," she lisped, brightly, as she caught his eye. "Antibillious?" queried the chemist.

"No, sir—uncle!"

No Sympathy

"Waiter," said the man in the hotel diningroom, "there's a fly in this ice cream."

"Serves him right, sir," replied the waiter. "Let him stay there and freeze to death. He was in the soup yesterday."

WHITE LEGHORNS ON FARM

Upon close analysis it will be found that Leghorns are better adapted to artificial conditions of poultry keeping than are most other breeds, says M. A. Jull in Weekly Witness. They are a small, active, breed with a nervous disposition, and they will stand crowding more than will general purpose or meat breeds. Under average conditions they will give better success when artificial conditions of hatching and rearing are employed than with heavier breeds. The chicks are easy to raise. For two years in succession we have raised far more White Leghorn chicks in proportion to the eggs set than can be said of our utility classes of poultry, so that, all things concerned, the White Leghorn will probably stand a little rougher use and more careless treatment than other breeds, although this is not to be considered as a distinct advantage. On the other hand, it is doubtful if the Leghorns will stand our winter weather quite as well as our Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, or White Wyandottes. I think they should be given warmer houses, and then they will do practically as well. We have had some White Leghorn cockerels with some Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels in a colony house 8x12 feet, and it dropped to 20 below zero in the house during our cold snap. The Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels had their combs frozen, while the Leghorn cockerel had their combs frozen off almost entirely.

The chief value of the White Leghorn lies in its ability to produce broilers quickly, and more especially to produce a large number of eggs rather cheaply. Leghorn, of course, is not a good table bird except as a broiler, and the broiler business must be considered as a side line in poultry keeping. No attempts should be made to fatten Leghorns for roasting purposes, as such attempt usually results in loss of time and money. The great asset of the White Leghorn is its egg-laying ability, and this is the factor which should be considered chiefly in keeping of White Leghorns on the farm or on commercial poultry plants. Then, above all, more important than breed is the strain, and by all means great care should be taken to select and breed as good a strain of Single Comb White Leghorns as is possible to obtain.

Fable of a Land-tiller

Once there lived a farmer who worked so hard he was too tired to go to church on Sunday. His hired men refused to stand for the first and last call to breakfast at 3.45 a.m. and left before the end of the week. His wife milked the cows and hoed the garden because help was so hard to keep. The farmer voted against hard roads, and when he was elected to the School Board hired for teacher a young girl just out of High School, because she would take the job for thirty dollars a month. In short, he squeezed the dollars so hard the eagle screamed. He would steal acorns from a blind pig.

When the farmer was fifty he had a half section of good black land in the corn belt and money in the bank. He moved to town to enjoy a hard-earned rest. But his stomach was so tired of corn bread and bacon that it went on strike, and the farmer ate milk toast. He could predict a storm before the first cloud appeared, by the creaking of his joints, and he had to call for help to turn over in bed. One day his doctor said he had made enough money to buy a new touring car, and the farmer died of heart disease.

Moral: It's a losing proposition to make a human barometer of yourself.
