

A Word With Subscribers

It is a misconception that in times of War a newspaper makes money. As a matter of fact, any newspaper which tries to do its duty by its subscribers, loses money during war time. This is true of The Daily and Semi-Weekly Mail. Both of these papers, in spite of their tremendous increase in circulation, are not making any profit out of the war. This being the case, we have to ask our subscribers who are in arrears to be good enough to REMIT. If we are properly doing our duty toward you as a subscriber, we have to ask that you will carry out your duty to us by remitting promptly any amount that may be owing to us.

If you want to help us make our paper better, send us your subscription in advance. We assure you that we will spend it in improving our news service.

Accounts are now being sent out, and we will be very much indebted to you if you will give the same your prompt attention.

A NEGLECTED COLD WILL VERY OFTEN TURN TO CONSUMPTION.

Never neglect what at first seems to be only a slight cold. Perhaps you start to cough, a little irritation in the throat ensues, then it gets lower down, settles on the lungs and bronchitis sets in, and you start to raise phlegm of a greenish, yellowish color, and you cough persistently.

If you let the simple cold run it will surely develop into something very serious, and perhaps consumption.

On the first sign of a cold or cough go to your dealer and procure a bottle of

A few doses will convince you that it is just the remedy you require.

Mrs. J. W. Pearsons, Amherst, N.S., writes: "Some time ago my daughter had a very bad cough which settled on her chest. She had no rest day or night. I gave her everything I could think of, but without doing her the least bit of good. At last I thought of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle for her. She had not taken half of it before she got relief, and with the remainder she was completely cured. Now when any of the family have a cough we always know what to get for it."

Dr. Wood's is 25c and 50c.

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Iapse of Enoch Wentworth

ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolverton"

Illustrations by Ellsworth Young

Copyright, 1914, by F. G. Browne & Co.

"We have saved this confession, ladies and gentlemen," he began gravely, "not to create a sensation or to further advertise the play, but each one of you must realize how the public distrusts a jack-of-all-trades. Many of you doubted the ability of a Merry Andrew to touch human emotion ever so lightly, and came that first night with eager curiosity to see him in the character of 'John Esterbrook.' How much more would you have hesitated if you had known that this same Merry Andrew was the author of the play? Hence the secret, to deceive you until an honest verdict had been rendered. Tonight I release my friend Enoch Wentworth from the role he has carried for ten months. I also wish, before you, to acknowledge a large indebtedness to him. For years he has been the truest friend a man ever had. He has believed in me, encouraged me, and to his untiring labor you are indebted for much of the perfect detail which carried 'The House of Eastabrook' to success. He has helped me in the dark hours when success in my profession seemed to be something I could never achieve. When I have been dragged down by the devils of despair his was the hand that lifted me up and with kindly deeds and encouraging words has kept me striving for the place which at last seems to be not entirely out of reach. I need not speak of his last great proof of his friendship for me, you all know how he almost lost his life in saving me from almost certain death. Good people, I owe much to Andrew Merry, and it is a great pleasure to acknowledge it in this public manner."

The audience saw Wentworth stare as if in utter amazement when Merry began his confession. Then his eyes grew misty, and when the young actor turned to him with an affectionate smile, he gripped the hand held out to him as a man does when he cannot put love or gratitude into words. Across the footlights men and women realized vaguely, through the strange human insight we call intuition, that another drama was being played before their eyes; a life-and-blood drama, where the feelings of strong men were deeply stirred.

"Good Lord!" said Singleton, Oswald turned with a start as if he had been aroused from sleep. The newspaper man stood at his elbow with a look of blank astonishment in his eyes. It passed quickly, however; he was a trained newspaper man, all his news instincts were aroused, he was on the track of a story. Here was something he must get to the bottom of. He scented a mystery and was immediately on the alert for anything that might give him a clue to start on. His paper must have this big story, it was big, he was sure of that. He turned suddenly to the man at his side.

"What's back of all that?" he asked. "I can understand that Merry wrote the play, I've known Enoch Wentworth for years, and I was never so staggered in my life as the first night when I saw 'The House of Eastabrook.' I went to the theatre afterwards to write my stuff and I sat for ten minutes—dumb stupid—trying to figure out how Wentworth, the Enoch Wentworth I knew, could have written it. How long have you known this?"

"I have known it," answered Oswald quietly, "just as long as you have."

"Then I'm right," cried Singleton. "I knew Merry was lying when he stood there on the stage giving us that bluff about Wentworth carrying the secret for him. Merry wrote it all right. I might have guessed it long ago. I say, do you know there's a devil of a big story back of all that?"

Oswald's face grew stern. "You see I know both of the men so well," went on Singleton eagerly. "Why, they were a regular David and Jonathan pair ever since I met them first. Enoch was forever setting Merry on his pins. The actor would go off, Heaven knows where, throw over a part, and drop off the edge of the world. I don't believe he dissipated exactly; he simply tossed his money away and went downhill. Wentworth would hunt him up and drag him back where he belonged. He straightened up suddenly when he began to play 'John Esterbrook.' You can't even pull him into a poker game now. I guess I took the winnings at the last game he stood in for. That night I had a great mind to hand the money back to him. We said 'Good-by' about daylight. He looked pessimistic and glum. No, he wasn't glum either; Merry never gets glum. He had a down-and-out, don't-give-a-damn expression that morning. I can see him yet. Suddenly he disappeared again. When he came back Wentworth and he cut each other dead. That Paget woman affair began, then Wentworth saved Merry's life. Why, it's a tremendous story!"
