THE GERMANS ARE IN DIFFICULTIES

New York, Oct. 24—The Telegram publishes the following:

"A letter taken from a German prisoner shows the difficulties the Kaiser is having in manning his battle line with first-class men. The letter, written in Dusseldorf two weeks ago, says:

"With us officers and soldiers are becoming rare. We have no more men than are adequate. Volunteers and men are all we have today. If you saw these soldiers you would turn your head. Everybody is being taken. It is Germany's last hope. All the aged men are becoming soldiers. Have you bread? Many complain they have none."

"Reports from Belgium have told of white-haired men and young boys in the German ranks. Opposing them are the first-class men and toughened fighters of Great Britain, France and Belgium. In commenting on the opposing armies, Lieut. Colonel Rousham Bek, the military expert, says:

"Germany's last man is at the front and Great Britain is only beginning to move," and follows this by asking: "What's the answer?"

"Alfred Stead, the correspondent at the front for The Express, says he believes that by arming every available man and sending him to the front the Germans have gained numerical superiority, but the German forces, swollen with raw levies, have lost fighting efficiency through pressure. He says that there is reason to believe that the Kaiser is massing his best troops now for another effort to break through the lines at Verdun."

"In a few days, he says, the serious attack will begin there. The siege guns sent south from Antwerp, he says, were destined for Verdun instead of Belfort, as reported."

AUTHOR OF A GREAT STORY

Isabel Gordon Curtis.

Isabel Gordon Curtis, author of "The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth," is one of the best-known literary women of America and for years her name has been familiar to readers of household and farm periodicals and of fiction. She was born fifty years ago in Huntley, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and after receiving an academic education in that country, came to the United States in 1885. For several years she did general literary work, and then she was successively literary editor of the New England Homestead and Farm and Home, dramatic editor of the Springfield Homestead, associated with her husband, Francis Curtis, as editor of the Elphinstone Chronicle, associate editor of Good Housekeeping, and editor of the woman's department of Success Magazine. In addition to all these activities, she has found time since 1903 to do a great deal of general magazine work and juvenile story writing, and in recent years has written several novels that proved highly successful and popular. Some of these deal with official and social life in Washington, with which Mrs. Curtis is thoroughly familiar and which she portrays with reality.

The greatest work Mrs. Curtis has produced, "The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth," is a story of the New York stage and New York newspaper life. It is a story with a high moral purpose, and one which holds the interest of the reader to the end. The reviewers generally have pronounced it one of the greatest of American novels.

It is with considerable pleasure that we are able to announce that we have arranged for the serial publication rights on this story, the first installment of which will appear soon. We earnestly advise all readers to watch for it.

The opening chapter of This Great Serial will appear in the Daily Mail Tomorrow

Seven German and five Belgian vessels complete the list. Forty nine of the vessels are freighters and twenty are passengers. The remaining five are not designated. Eleven vessels secured provisional registry through American consuls.
