Those Suspected of Illegal Sale of Liquor Had None on Premises--Police Watching Sharply for Pocket-Peddlers

The police are on the watch for pocket-peddling under the conditions now prevalent in the city as the result of the "lid" being put on by the police commission. In connection with their campaign against pocket-peddling, premises on King street, near Carleton street, were raided and searched Monday night. No liquor was found in the house, although the police had strong grounds for suspecting that there was liquor there. The man and his wife who live in the place are both suspected of the illegal sale of liquor both in and out of the house and further developments in the matter are expected although Monday night's raid proved fruitless. Sufficient evidence can be procured, it is thought.

A first offense against the Canada Temperance Act was charged in the police court yesterday against a local hot?l. The offense was acknowledged and the usual penalty imposed.
