GRAVES AT CHERBOURG DECORATED

Paris, June 19.—On the fiftieth anniversary of the battle between the United States ship Kearsarge and the Confederate steamer Alabama, a committee representing the American colony in Paris went to Cherbourg today and decorated the graves of the several American sailors buried there after the memorable engagement on June 19, 1864. The graves were only recently located and identified as a result of an exhaustive search conducted by Haason Cleveland Coze, the American deputy consul general in this city.

THE CRUISE FOR OHIO BANKERS

Cedar Point, O., June 19.—Many leading bankers and financiers of the Buckeye State were entertained at this resort today on the occasion of the annual convention of the Ohio Bankers' Association. After concluding their sessions tomorrow the bankers and their families will start on a week's cruise of the lakes.

SHEKEL DAY IN THE OLD COUNTRY

London, June 20.—The Jews of London and other great cities of the United Kingdom will hold their annual observance of Shekel Day tomorrow. The observance is of comparatively recent origin, but during the past few years it has become a well established institution in England. Its object is to provide financial aid for the Zionist cause. Throughout the Jewish district in the East End of London hundreds of workers will make a house canvass tomorrow morning to gather shekels from the earnest Jews who look to the Zionists to bring them into a new Jerusalem. A shekel, of course, is the oldest of coinage used by the Hebrews, and as revived by the Zionists its value varies in accordance with the standard coins of different countries. In England it is represented by a shilling, and every contributor of one shekel is entitled to a vote for delegate to the next congress of the Zionist federation.

PIANO POWER

Great Strength Developed in Fingers of Famous Players

The amount of power expended on playing on a piano has recently been figured out in a way which, if not altogether accurate, is at least interesting. Commenting on the statement that it already requires more force to sound a note gently on this instrument than it does to lift the lid of a kettle, it is easy to verify it if one takes a small handful of coins and piles them on a key of the piano.

When a sufficient quantity is piled on to make a note sound they may be weighed, and the figures will be found to be true. If the pianist is playing fortissimo, a much greater force is needed. At times the force of six pounds is thrown upon a single key to produce a solitary effect. With chords the force is generally spread over the various notes sounded simultaneously, though a greater output of force is undoubtedly expended. This is what gives pianists the wonderful strength in their fingers that is often commented on.

A story used to be told of Paderewski that he could crack a pane of French plate-glass, half an inch thick, merely by placing one hand upon it as if upon a piano keyboard and striking it sharply with his middle finger.

Chopin's last piece in C minor has a passage which takes two minutes and five seconds to play. The total pressure brought to bear on his, it is estimated, is equal to three full tons. The average "tonnage" of an hour's playing of Chopin's music varies from twelve to eighty-four tons. Wagner has not yet been calculated upon these lines.

PERFECT HEALTH DUE TO THE BLOOD

No Girl or Woman Need be Constantly Ailing or Unhappy

Nature intended every girl and every woman to be happy, attractive, active and healthy. Yet too many of them find their lives saddened by suffering—nearly always because their blood is to blame. All those unhappy girls and women with colorless cheeks, dull skins and sunken, lustreless eyes, are in this condition because they have not enough good red blood in their veins to keep them well and in the charm of health. They suffer from depressing weariness and periodical headaches. Dark lines form under their eyes, their heart palpitates violently after the slightest exertion and they are often attacked with fainting spells. These are only a few of the miseries of bloodlessness. Nothing can rescue girls and women from the inevitable decline that follows anaemia except a generous supply of new, rich, red blood, and nothing has ever proved so successful in creating red, good blood as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Thousands and thousands of girls and women owe their good health and charming complexion to the use of this medicine. Here is one example of its power to cure. Mrs. Rose Ralli, Toronto, says: "For a long time I suffered with anaemia, nervousness and general debility, in fact I was beginning to feel a positive wreck. I tried several medicines and emulsions. For a time I would feel better for taking them and then the effect would wear off, leaving me worse than before. The continued drain on my health altered my appearance, my friends telling me I had a haggard and worn appearance. This naturally did not help to improve me, as you know no woman likes to be told she looks 'worn out.'" Finally Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were suggested and my husband got me a supply. I used them and found the result good—not only good, but the benefit lasting, and I am now enjoying perfect health, have a good color and have regained my natural buoyancy. I trust my letter of gratitude may be the means of helping others who are suffering as I was."

FIFTY TONS OF NEGATIVES

In the Sale Were More Than 100 Royal Sittings

Over 500,000 photographic negatives were included in the sale of the stock of Messrs. Byrne and Co., of Richmond, for many years photographers to the Royal Family. More than a thousand of the negatives are of Royal sittings. One is of King Edward in Highland costume, and accompanied by his famous dog Caesar. Ten men were engaged for nearly a week in moving the negatives. There were twenty-six pair-horse vanloads, and as each vanload weighed about two tons there must be fifty tons of negatives.

Story of a Goose Fight

At Hillstreet Petty Sessions an amusing case was heard in which James Noone charged John Gill with assault. The men are neighbors, and ganders belonging to them quarrelled. Instead of separating the "combatants," Noone made a bet with Gill that his gander was the better of the two. Gill accepted the bet. The ganders fought it out, and eventually Noone's bird succeeded in killing the other. When Noone demanded the forfeit it was alleged that Gill instead of paying him, struck him and knocked him into a boghole. Gill was fined $50.

Guns Recovered From Sea

While fishing thirty-five miles off Sunderland, the steam-boat "Lord Chancellor" brought up from the ocean bed a huge bundle of muskets. Antiquarians who examined the find consider that they date from before Nelson's time, and that they are relics of some futile gun-running venture by a Dutch galleon.

Horses Pulled Trains

Locomotive-drawn trains have recently taken the place of those drawn by horses on the North British line between Drumburgh Junction, near Carlisle, and Port Carlisle, on Solway Firth, which have run daily since 1856. Engines were used on the line between 1854 and 1856, but were superseded by horses.

On a recent date all four games in the New England League were extra inning contests.

Lawrence won from Lynn in 14 innings, Worcester defeated Portland in 13 innings, and Lewiston and Lowell walloped Fitchburg and Haverhill in games of 11 innings each.

MISERY OF WORLD DUE TO MUDDLE

Lord Milner's Ideal Socialism—Advocates Heavier Emigration of British People

Lord Milner made an interesting speech at the Royal Society of Arts when he presided at a lecture on "The need for a better organization of economic and industrial resources," given by Mr. C. R. Enock.

The president said he did not think that under present conditions we had discovered the means of making the British Isles support forty or fifty millions of people in reasonable conditions of human existence. His own deepest conviction on the subject was that 95 per cent. of the misery of the civilized world was absolutely due to muddle.

He was on the side of State Socialism in principle—he was in principle a Socialist—but he had not got the knowledge, capacity, character, and regulating power necessary to carry out such a system. It was not the physical difficulties which appalled him, but questions of administration. He looked with some alarm upon schemes which seemed to make the whole of life the sphere of public administration.

Impressed as he was by the enormous amount of waste to be found in every direction, and especially waste of human material, when he came to consider what was required to prevent this waste, Lord Milner said he found himself surrounded by a network of administrative machinery with only 10 per cent. of the problems which needed attention being dealt with. This was not from any want of resources or lack of physical conditions, but from the inadequacy of human powers.

We were unable at present to create tolerable conditions of existence to fifty millions of people in Britain. These conditions did not exist, and they could not be made to exist, as it was, therefore, necessary that we should spread out the surplus population in the least developed parts of the world. We had in the British Empire vast tracts of little developed country which were crying out for population, and which in the absence of that population not only remained undeveloped, but were actually not safe from foreign attack.

Lord Milner urged the desirability of an organized plan for the transference of the surplus population of this country to the self-governing Dominions. Something more should be done to aid the emigration of the young men and young women, a large proportion of whom were now deteriorating in the great cities.

Young Sharkey and Tommy Allen are to clash at Brown's Rockaway show on June 23.
