YORK COUNTY TEACHER HONORED

A correspondent at Garden Prairie, Alberta, writes: The 9th of June, being the 20th Anniversary of Miss M. E. Greenlaw's birthday, her scholars planned a surprise for her.

By a ruse she was led to believe she wanted at the phone of a neighboring house. While she was gone the school flowers, a birthday cake and other refreshments. When she returned she was pleasantly surprised being totally in ignorance of the plan.

Her scholars also presented her with a gold clock. Several of the young people of the community were invited and the trustees being petitioned by the scholars, granted a half-holiday, which was spent in playing games and having a good time. Lunch was also served. Miss Greenlaw is a native of Millville, N. B. and has been teaching school in Alberta a year.

MANY LIVES LOST

DEATH LIST OVER 200.

"The explosion was in No. 1 mine. This is the mine where most of the men work. No. 2 mine is where our new development is going on. Two hundred and thirty-two men went into the mine this morning at seven o'clock. The explosion occurred at nine-thirty o'clock. At four o'clock in the afternoon thirty men had been taken out alive and thirty-two dead bodies recovered. The missing at present number one hundred and seventy. The work of rescue is progressing rapidly and artificial respiration constantly and vigorously applied to those brought up. Excellent order prevails and the best of equipment is available for rescue work."

Considerations as to how the disaster would affect the business of the company were not discussed yesterday officials of the company being overwhelmed by the reports of heavy loss of life. Supplementing what is contained in the formal statement above J. M. MacKie, who spends part of each year at the property, stated all development work had been carried out in such a way as to guarantee a maximum of safety and in the absence of more detailed information he could form no idea as to how an accident had happened. In addition to the two main entries, there were some eight outlets, which were of easy access at important points in the workings.

Mr. MacKie will go west tomorrow and personally superintend the handling of the unexpected situation which has developed.

MR. VOTER ITS UP TO YOU

There's a flutter in New Brunswick They are raking in St. John Raking down the political dung-heap With the province looking on.

The stench is getting stronger And the rake is deeper plunged And the stains on many fingers Will never be expunged.

When the hawks get in the barnyard 'Tis the helpless things they choose Heeding not the chickens "squawking" Or the pigeons frightened "coo's."

And so the hawks political Flying high and looking far Spied a bunch of helpless pigeons And laughed a low "Ha! Ha!"

"Why here's some easy plucking 'We'll rustle every bird, 'And shake down some of their feathers 'For they daren't say a word.

"They've more than they need to fly with, 'And we have not enough. 'We've got to feather our own nests 'Ere the feathering gets too tough."

The hawk that managed the plucking Of his kind was the "berry" best For he'd got a line on each pigeon And he knew where to find each nest

He flew around, got them started The feathers began to fall And the hawk who held the "bag" below, Was the smallest hawk of all.

The plunder was quickly divided But foxes, hawks and such vermin The hawks only knew where it went Are everywhere known by their "scent."

And the watchdog had his suspicions He "dug all" over the place Then awakened the farmers by barking He'd discovered a "scent" he could trace.

The "berry" best hawk heard a whisper Says he, "I am sick, not insane. 'It's getting too warm in New Brunswick. 'I'll e'en try the climate of Maine"

So the farmer rakes in the dung-heap And the scent is getting strong The hawk thought he'd hidden his traces, But they won't stay hidden long.

Will the trail lead upwards or downward? To the king hawk or just smaller fry?

We may get to know in the future, But we've got a "bunch" now, you and I— Something is rotten in New Brunswick.

The political sky looks black. It may be that this is the reason The "berry" best hawk won't come back.

The New Brunswick barnyard is dirty And fouled by a hawkish crew It's time for the axe and the shot-gun Mr. Voter, it's up to you.
