NOT SO BAD OFF IN

A broker brooding over the heavy expenses of maintaining his office, thought he would save money by having a cheap lunch.
He wandered into a little restaurant off Cheapside and ordered a frugal meal costing a few pence. Looking up, he recognized in the waiter an old stock broker.
"Halloa Harry, have you come down to this?" he asked.
"Oh, 'I'm all right. I only wait. I don't dine here!" was the reply—Tit-Bits.

RHEUMATISM CURED!

That Old Family Remedy "Nerviline" is Guaranteed for the Worst Cases

CURES NEURALGIA, BACK-ACH, LUMBAGO

Rheumatism today is unnecessary. It is so well understood and so readily curable that every day we have reports of old chronics being freed of their tormentor.

"I can speak confidently of the Nerviline treatment, for the simple reason that it cured me," writes Albert B. Cornblus, from Kingston. "You can't imagine how stiff and lame and sore I was. Nights at a time I couldn't sleep well. I followed the Nerviline directions carefully—had it rubbed into the sore region four or five times every day. Every rubbing helped to reduce the pain. The swelling went down. I got a fair measure of relief in a week. I also took two Ferrozone Tablets with my meals. They increased my appetite and spirits, purified my blood and toned up my system generally."

"I am as well today as a man could be—in perfect good health. I give Nerviline all the credit."

A large family size bottle of Nerviline costs only 50c, or the trial size, 25c, and is useful in a hundred ills in the family. Whether it's toothache, earache, headache, neuralgia, lamp back or a cold, Nerviline will cure just as readily as it will cure rickets. For family use nothing equals Nerviline.

SHYNESS CURED.

A shy young man had been calling on the sweetest girl in the world, for many moons, but being bashful, his suit progressed slowly.

Finally she decided it was up to her to start something, so the next time he called she pointed to the rose in his buttonhole and said: "I will give you a kiss for that rose."

"A crimson flush overspread his countenance, but the exchange was made after some hesitation on his part. Then he grabbed his hat and started to leave the room.

"Why were you going?" she asked in surprise.

"The—the—florist for more roses!" he called from the front door.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

HAS RAISED A GRAVE CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE

Tory Politician Who Pulled the Nose of a Tory Senator May be Summoned before the Bar of the Senate

(Halifax Chronicle.)
MIDNIGHT REVERIES.

(Of a guest at St. George's Dinner, when informed that Mr. Butts had pulled Senator Dennis's nose)

"I'm sitting here at dinner. To honor England's Rose, But I'd rather seen the "tweaking" Butts did on William's Nose."

They say he gripped it firmly, And squeezed with might and main While the bearded Dennis features Grew red with rage and pain.

There's music, wine, much laughter, Good food around the now, But I'd sooner been a witness Of the Butts and Dennis row.

When Mr. R. H. Butts, M.P.P. undertook to publicly massage the nasal organ of Senator Dennis on Thursday night, he probably did not know—or if he did, he obviously did not care—that he was raising a question without parallel in Canadian parliamentary history. Such, however, would seem to be the case and prominent constitutional lawyers spent many fruitless hours yesterday in endeavoring to untangle the maze of conflicting points arising out of this unique incident. The startling feature of the whole case is that it has brought about nothing less than a conflict of the respective dignities and privileges of the federal parliament and the local legislature. All the sea lawyers seem united on the fact that Mr. Butts, if he so desired, could pull the nose of every private citizen during the term of the provincial parliament, with perfect immunity. It was also equally clear that a member of the senate cannot be assaulted, or insulted, with immunity, during the sittings of the Red Chamber, and it now seems clear that under old English usage, a "tweak" is the deadliest form of insult.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL POINT.

However, the point which now arises is: Can Mr. Butts be dragged to Ottawa under a warrant from the Speaker of the senate and be forced to apologize at the bar of that body for the familiarities he took with the proboscis of the Honorable Mr. Dennis? Should the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, or the Golden Stick in Waiting, or whatever the private policeman of the senate is called, arrive in Halifax with a warrant for Mr. Butts, could the latter gentleman enlist the services of Sergeant-at-Arms McAskill with his cocked hat and sword in resisting the assault on his privileges? And could the civic police intervene if the House of Assembly's sergeant-at-arms and the senate's minion got into such an altercation as would be likely to provoke a breach of the peace in contravention of any of His Majesty's statutes as in these cases made and provided?

The only trouble is that there do not seem to be any statutes governing these particular cases and ere the constitutional points are clearly determined, an amendment to the British North America Act may be necessary. In fact, the possibilities of the whole affair are fully as great as those involved in the celebrated action of Jarydyce vs Jarydyce, which was repeatedly referred to yesterday for enlightenment on the situation.

A DUEL DEMANDED.

Even should the legal aspects be eventually arranged, there is no doubt that the honor of the senate demands a meeting with Mr. Butts on the duelling ground. The following from The Acadia Recorder last night, indicates what Mr. Dennis's colleagues obviously expect him to vindicate the dignity of the Red Chamber. (Esprit de corps runs high in the senate):

Ottawa, April 24—There was great indignation in government circles here when it became known that a senator of the Dominion of Canada had had his nose pulled by a member of the Nova Scotia legislature. The English rule is that where one man pulls another's nose it is a challenge to a duel. The Nova Scotia law may be different but the senate follows English practise as much as possible.

It is understood that the matter will be brought before the senate this afternoon for discussion. It is reported that Colonel Sam Hughes will act as seconds for both parties and the Ross rifles will be used. Day and hour to be arranged.

(The Recorder trusts that some other method of settling the matter will be resorted to but if no amicable arrangement can be made and fatal results follow, they should both be interred with military honors.)

"TWEAK HAS MANY MEANINGS"

The dramatic manner in which Mr. Butts revived the picturesque old English ceremony of the "tweak" has stimulated interest in the derivation of this word and all its manifold usages. Investigators have discovered that this ceremony contains latent possibilities of one of the deadliest of insults and The Recorder's despatch would seem to indicate that this was fully realized by Mr. Dennis's fellow-members at Ottawa. Hence their obvious anxiety for a meeting on the field of honor. Some authorities on the punctilio of the duello, however, contend that it is absolutely impossible for this conflict to take place, except by consent of Mr. Butts. They urge the contention that if Mr. Butts desired a meeting he would have "tweaked" the senator's nose. This ceremony, they claimed, was originally employed to obtain redress against an inferior whom the aggrieved party could not meet with honor, therefore there would seem to be no chance for a "pistol-for-two-and-coffee-for-one" affair unless Mr. Butts recedes from the attitude he took on Thursday night. It is even said that under the circumstances any hint of a challenge would be an affront to Mr. Butts.

MORE MODERN USE.

In addition to its ancient application, the "tweak" has a more modern use. According to the dictionaries, it appears that almost identically the same operation Mr. Butts performed on the senator's olfactory apparatus also occurs in the slaying of pigs, when the butcher removes the caudal appendage with a "rapidly rotating movement." So striking was the similarity that one of the civic luminaries decided that as he could not run the legislation of the province to suit his self-constituted authority, he might at least gain some immortality by correcting the Encyclopedia, so he composed the following addition to the definitions of "tweak" which doubtless will soon appear in all standard works:

"4. A contemptuous revolving motion, restricted in modern times to pig's tails and some senator's noses. Invariably used to describe the supralative of contempt."

BEWARE OF THE FAREWELL DINNER

The farewell dinner to the man or woman about to start on an ocean voyage is too often a delusion and a snare. If the traveller happens to be a little sensitive to the motion of the ship and susceptible to the influence of the watery wastes, it becomes him or her to lead the simple life before the date of embarkation. Many a voyager with a sensitive, nervous organization has been rendered miserable on the first day or two of a sea voyage because he submitted to the hospitality of friends who overdid it.

It has become widely recognized that the best travellers on sea and land are not only those who have the strongest digestion but whose nervous system is in the best of condition. The man who smokes and drinks too freely is apt to find himself uncomfortable on the approach of stormy weather. In more than one instance I have known of men to be cured of the tobacco habit by one painful experience on shipboard, attributed to the smoking of a strong cigar. It is a curious fact that many who long for an ocean voyage and who are exceedingly fond of ocean travel are deterred from undertaking the journey because of their fear of an attack of seasickness. Of course the steamer is always blamed, though in these days of big vessels, with their anti-rolling tanks, seasickness has no longer an excuse. Someone has made a calculation that a greater number are deterred by the fear of seasickness than by anxiety regarding their safety. This is not surprising. In these times, when the wireless brings the ship at sea into communication with other ships out with the land, and when by the scientific use of oil the most troubled waters have their furrows smoothed, a shipwreck with consequent loss of life has become so unusual that it attracts world-wide attention.

A writer devoted to figures, has calculated that one thousand lives are lost by fire or drowning at sea. This is a good record and if the figures are true they bring with them reassurance to those who are moved by the spirit of wanderlust. And this is all the more gratifying because travel both by rail and sea was never cheaper than it is today.—D. D. Hills in Leslie's.

AT HOME.

Andrew Carnegie tells how until a comparatively recent date, the old-time Scotch prejudices were retained by the hard-headed professors at the University of Aberdeen.

There was a certain Prof. Cameron, who had a weariness for the refinement and minor graces of life; so, just after "at home" cards became fashionable, one of the dullest specimens of the old professional regime was the recipient of a missive from Cameron, which read as follows:—

"Prof. and Mrs. Cameron present their compliments to Prof. Pirie, and hope that he is well. Prof. and Mrs. Cameron will be at home on Thursday evening the 12th instant at 8.30 o'clock."

The crusty old chap referred to replied as follows:—

"Prof. Pirie returns the compliments of Prof. and Mrs. Cameron, and begs to inform them that he is very well. Prof. Pirie is glad to learn that Prof. and Mrs. Cameron will be at home on Thursday evening, the 12th instant, at 8.30 o'clock. Prof. Pirie will also be at home."—London Telegraph.
