PERSISTENCY IN ADVERTISING

One stroke of a bell in a thick fog does not give a lasting impression of its location, but when followed by repeated strokes at regular intervals the densest fog, the darkest night can not long conceal its whereabouts. Likewise a single insertion of an advertisement—as compared with regular and systematic ADVERTISING—is in its effect not unlike a sound which, heard but faintly once is lost in space and soon forgot.—Printing Art.

Slight Misunderstanding
Drowsily the hotel manager turned in his bed.

Whirr-r, whirr-r rang the telephone. Muttering something very low, he reached out for the receiver.

"Send someone up to Room 77," once," came the voice of old Mrs. Moneybags.

"I trust you are not ill, madam?" he inquired.

"I soon shall be if something is not done!" replied the old lady, in excited tones.

Hurriedly dressing, the manager went to Room 77.

"Now, listen!" said the old lady in wrathful key. "What is that noise overhead. It has been going on for the last two hours, and has nearly driven me mad."

"I cannot understand it, madam," answered the manager, listening curiously, to the bumps and bangs overhead. "The gentleman in that room is ill."

Quickly he ran upstairs, and inquired the cause of the disturbance. The occupier of the room was a Frenchman.

"It sees the medicine, m'sieur," he explained, on being questioned. "The doctor did say, 'Take two nights running, then skip a night.' M'sieur, pardon, but I was doing the skip!"

Like and Like

"What are you doing, dear?" a mother said to her little four-year-old daughter.

"I'm writing a letter to Alice," the youngster replied.

"But, dear," said the mother, "you don't know how to write."

The little girl, however, as she calmly continued her pencil scrawl, answered:

"Well, mother, Alice doesn't know how to read."

Not Missed

A commercial traveller was bragging about the magnitude of the firm he represented.

"I suppose your house is a pretty big establishment?" said the customer.

"Big? You can't have any idea of its dimensions. Last week we took an inventory of the employees, and found out for the first time that three cashiers and four bookkeepers were missing. That will give you some idea of the magnitude of our business."

Aeroplane Poison

That's a terrible poison that has been discovered of late.

"What's that?"

"And is it deadly?"

"Yes."

"Tnd how much does it take to kill a man?"

"One drop."

SILK FROM SPRUCEWOOD

Beautiful Cloth Spun From Filaments of Great Logs

Silk dresses are now made from wood. There is the cleverly "mercerized" cotton, but machinery and chemicals have gone a step even beyond that in rivalling the art of the silk-spinning worm. The process of making silk yarn from a spruce log is a remarkably speedy one, and the results astonish you when you see the wood thrown carelessly into a great vat to appear a few hours later in shining thread. The wood is first cut into thin sheets, after which it is put into a tank for chemical treatment. It is chewed and mashed by the machinery and "digested" by the strong chemicals until it closely resembles molasses in color and consistency. The solution is then forced through well-heated tubes, each with an outlet containing just as many perforations as there are to be filament in the thread. Simultaneously it is sprayed with a chemical which "fixes" the thread, shrinking and hardening it. But to the wearer of silk, a garment made from wood pulp looks every bit as good as the product of the silkworm.

Cloth of this kind wears like leather, and is cheaper than the cheapest cloth. The value of the material thus spun is that it dyes extremely well, the colors coming up admirably, and it is as a matter of fact, a good imitation of silk.

The people of Tibet have for a long time now worn clothes constructed of wood. In Ecuador the bark of a tree which grows on the slopes of the Andes is utilized for making blankets. Usually the blanket is six feet long and five feet wide, and is as soft and pliable as though it were made from flannel. It is about the thickness of a good flannel blanket, and can be rolled up and put in a strap without hurting or injuring it. This tree or bark blanket is merely a strip of bark cut from a section of the trunk of the demajagua tree. The Indians make a cutting around the trunk to get it, and they prepare it by soaking it in water until it is soft. It is then pounded so that the rough outside can be stripped off and the inside alone left. The inside is of fine fibres so joined together by Nature that it makes a beautiful blanket, warm enough to be used as a cover, and soft enough for a mattress.

Sheep Thrive on Electricity

A California scientist claims to have greatly increased the breeding capacity of sheep as well as the yield of wool by pasturing them under high voltage electric wires.

One Pound, One Horsepower

That he can produce one horsepower for each pound his engine weighs is the claim of the French inventor of a motor depending upon the explosive force of gunpowder for power.

The Challenge Accepted

An Irishman in France had been challenged to a duel.

"Sure," he cried, "we'll fight with shillelaghs."

"That won't do," cried his second; "as the challenged party you have the right to choose the weapons, but chivalry demands that you should decide upon a weapon with which Frenchmen are familiar."

"Is that so?" said the generous Irishman; "then we'll fight it out with gullotines."

PETS STEP HIGHER AFTER BEATING SEPTEMBER MORNS

The Pets trimmed the September Morns 3 to 1 in six innings of pretty good baseball last night. It was anybody's game right to the last and the Morns looked dangerous at various stages but always lacked their necessary push to take the lead while the Pets displayed an ability to pull out of tight corners.

Campbell was in the box for the Morns and pitched good ball until the sixth inning when with men on base bunts put him to the bad. On one occasion he tossed the ball over third base with disastrous results errors behind him also were costly. With the stick Campbell was good making two of his team's three hits. The Morns scored three lone tallies in the sixth on a base on balls and a single.

The Pets batted Campbell hard in the sixth when they put on a two run lead and won the game. In the field they did good work catches by Dolan and Melrose being features. Verner O'Ree for the September Morns also did some good.

The box score follows:
