"Tettr mother, Miss Carrington, is a brilliant conversationalist, when she meets with someone who is capa-ble of appreciating and replying to her sallies; and if I may say so with-out undue beasting. I chink she found that person in me. Indeed, had not that person in me. Indeed, had not ing to a certain extent on my own powers in this respect, I should have made a different plan. I think we both enjoyed the ride, at any rate in its earlier stages. I know, at least, the apa-letter. to "'It suggested an interview,' Mr. with-Mont.gue,' she told me sweetly, 'and und' the place which was mentioned was not this road on which we are now. "It seems that a few minutes after Mr. Scarborough and the two ladies left the Chinelas, Mrs. Carrington, who had been wake-red by the crunch-ing of their ootsteps on the gravel, got up and looked out from her win-dow. She saw a man in the garden, and he saw her at the window. He took a note from his pocket, held it up for her to see, and then la'd it on a garden seat in fall view from where she was standing. Then he went away. The man was Andrew Gilles, and she told me that he had in all probability been waiting in the gar den in concealment for a long time, hoping for a chance of de ivering the letter. THE floors and doors appear to wait until the dust germs congregate; the housewife hails each dawning day with grim and harrowing dismay. Says she: "My work will NEVER end; o'er dusty stretches I must bend, until, with aching back and hands I finish what the day demands."

The "Floor-and-Door-a"

Then Mrs. Jones, one afternoon, drop-ped in, at time most opportune. An optimist, she knew the wiles of house-

• Girl work and the endless doors, until when Hubby saw them, too, reflections said: "Why, howdy-do!"

"The Gold Dust Twins," said she, "I find, help leave the woes of dust behind. Each mark of sticky hands on doors, each tread of muddy feet on floors, all fade before the slightest touch of Gold Dust, and the work is such that, when the woodwork has been done, I find said work was only fun." This line of reasoning must show that those who've tried it OUGHT to know. If you, in one day's duties, find that there's a Grouch in ev'ry Grind, invite the Gold Dust Twins to share such tasks as tire and fret and wear.

From kitchen floor to bedroom suite, these tireless little chaps make neat, and best of all, the sum expense is measured up in meager cents. They put both dust and dirt to rout and run the last old microbe out.
