

More Horrors of German Savagery Related in Report

More of the unspeakable atrocities committed by the German invaders against the inhabitants of Belgium, are contained in the fifth report, which has been made by the Commission of Inquiry into the violation of the rules of the rights of the people, the laws and customs of war. The document, a copy of which has been received here by Mr. Clarence de Sola, the Belgian consul, is signed by the president of the commission and is addressed to Mr. Poulet, minister of arts and science, minister of justice and interior.

Most of the outrages complained of in this report were committed by the Landstrum, which had no more respect for life, property, honor or religion than the regular soldiers of the line. Even wounded soldiers were maltreated by the German troops. A typical instance is the following:

"A Belgian soldier, a volunteer in the Sixth Regiment of the line, has exposed to us the odious treatment to which numerous wounded and Belgian prisoners have been submitted at Aerschot. Wounded in the left arm, he had been made prisoner by the Germans on the morning of Aug. 18th. He, with twenty-seven other prisoners, were conducted on the high road which borders the Demer. Two German companies were found here. All the prisoners were chased in front of them and fired at. Those who, in order to escape the fusillade, threw themselves into the Demer, were there despatched by rifle fire. The witness, at the first discharge, threw himself on the ground, feigning death. A German soldier approached him and seeing that he lived, undertook to put an end to him by a rifle shot. An officer intervened, saying that a bullet would be 'de trop' and ordered him to be thrown into the Demer. The witness was able to cling to the branch of a tree and with his feet on the stones on the river bottom, he passed the night in the water, his head only being above the surface. The next day he came out of the river entered an abandoned house, through the gardens, re-clothed himself in civil attire, and, joining himself to the fleeing inhabitants, managed to make his escape. Of the twenty-eight prisoners he and one other were the only ones to escape.

WIDOW'S TERRIBLE TALE.

The agony of Madame Tielmans, widow of the burgomaster of Aerschot, is indicated in a letter which she has written.

Towards four o'clock of the afternoon, my husband was distributing cigars to sentinels posted at the door I was with him. Seeing that the general and his aides-de-camp were looking at us from the balcony above, I advised my husband to enter again. At that moment, casting a glance towards the Grand Place on which more than two thousand Germans were engaged, I distinctly saw two columns of smoke, followed by a fusillade; the Germans were firing on the houses, were in fact, attacking the houses. My husband, my children and the servants only had time to rush into the staircase leading down into the cellar. The Germans even fired into the halls. After several moments of unspeakable anguish, one of the general's aides-de-camp came down, saying:

"The general is dead. Where is the burgomaster?"

My husband said to me: "This will be a serious matter for me."

As he went forward I said to the aide-de-camp:

"You can state, sir, that my husband has not fired."

"That makes no difference," he answered, "he is responsible."

My husband was led away. My son, who was at my side, led us into another cellar. The same aide-de-camp returned to take him away from me, making him walk in front of him by kicking him. The poor child could scarcely walk. In the morning, on their entry into the town, the Germans had fired into the windows of the houses; a bullet had entered into the room in which my son happened to be, and, ricocheting, had wounded him in the calf. After the departure of my husband and son I was left all over the house by the Germans, who pointed their revolvers at my head. I was made to see their dead general.

A Word With Subscribers

an misconception that in times of War a newspaper makes money. As a matter of fact, any newspaper which tries to do its duty by its subscribers, loses money during war time. This is true of The Daily and Semi-Weekly Mail. Both of these papers, in spite of their tremendous increase in circulation, are not making any profit out of the war. This being the case, we have to ask our subscribers who are in arrears to be good enough to REMIT. If we are properly doing our duty toward you as a subscriber, we have to ask that you will carry out your duty to us by remitting promptly any amount that may be owing to us.

If you want to help us make our paper better, send us your subscription in advance. We assure you that we will spend it in improving our news service.

Accounts are now being sent out, and we will be very much indebted to you if you will give the same your prompt attention.
