GERMAN ACT, CRIME
AGAINST CIVILIZATION

New York, Nov. 11.—The Herald today says editorially:

"If it is true, as cabled from Amsterdam, that Germany has threatened to prevent the American relief committee from distributing food and other supplies to suffering Belgians, the defenders of 'kultur' in this country will have more defending to do."

"Germany's attitude toward the action in Belgium is a crime against civilization. Having conquered and over-run a country with which they had neither quarrel nor excuse for quarrel, the Germans have stripped the country of not only its valuables but of its food supplies, and at the time when neutral nations are compelled in the interest of humanity to undertake the task of saving the Belgian people from starvation, Germans continue their pillage."

Now to their vandalism they add threat of preventing the distribution of supplies to the needy. The spectacle is one that not even the greatest admirer of German prowess can view with any feeling save disgust."

PEOPLE SHOULD GUARD AGAINST APPENDICITIS

Fredericton people who have stomach and bowel trouble should guard against appendicitis by taking simple backthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Adler-i-ka, the German remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis. JUST ONE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation INSTANTLY because this simple mixture draws off such a surprising amount of old foul matter from the body. George Y. Dibblee.

A NEW YORK SPORTSMAN
WRITES OF TRIP TO N. B.

A prominent New York merchant, Mr. Chas. B. McWilliams, had a varied experience last year after reaching Fredericton to engage in a hunting trip. He writes an interesting story to The Red and Gun and has some cheery words to say about the Victoria Hospital, where he was treated for typhoid.

In his article he says that in September, 1913, I determined upon a trip to New Brunswick, moose hunting, as with this exception, I have experienced most of the ordinary game expeditions. To this end I secured the consent of a New York friend to hunt on his "preserve," about fifty miles northwest of Blackville, but which "preserve" is really a certain large area to which he has obtained exclusive fishing and hunting rights and on which he has built himself commodious log cabins. Having previously secured through railroad tickets, etc., arranged for guides and provided for our stores we (Mr. Mohr a friend tried and true, and myself) started for Boston from the Grand Central Station, on the noon train October 1st, 1913. By the time we reached the Hub at six my fever had reached 103 degrees and on arrival at Fredericton, the next day, it had gone still higher. Then followed in rapid succession a doctor and then a second one in consultation, hospital, trained nurse and all the adjuncts and finally that go to make up a first class "cabin de luxe" case of typhoid. Well if I had to have the ailment, I could not have picked out a better place to have it.

The Victoria Hospital is a thorough one in every respect with all modern surgical equipment, X-Ray, pathological laboratory, etc., and is located right on the St. John River on the south side of a picturesque bend. From my window I could see the salmon jump in the river and often, in the early morning about sunrise, I could see flocks of wild ducks and geese on their migratory flight south. On one particular morning I counted twelve flocks of geese and I am sure that I did not get them all at that. On the opposite side of the river lies the pretty village of Marysville, with its little white farm-houses, with cows "mooing" and dogs barking and blue smoke curling up from the chimney tops to the blue October sky. Say, if any of you MUST have typhoid, go and have it out with in Room 9, Victoria Hospital, Fredericton. During this period, my friend Mohr had gone on, as originally planned, and shot his moose in less than one hour after his arrival at camp. However, that is another story. Finally, one day, my better half, who had come to Fredericton at my request, early in the siege, informed me that I was to be officially mustered out of the hospital the next day and here let me pay a word of tribute to the care taken of a Yankee by Mrs. Richards, the matron, and her assistants. It is largely due to their watchfulness and good care that I owe my rapid recovery to health. There followed two weeks at the Parker House, during which my wife and I formed a few friendships among the Fredericton gentry that compensated for all ills and which I trust will be everlasting. I also met Harry Allen, president of the Guides' Association, a fine fellow, who so ably represented his province at the Sportsmen's Show at New York, March 5-14, and Mr. Harold McMurray, secretary of the association. The latter, knowing the whole situation, and my particular anxiety that I should not return to New York "skunked," got in touch with Moses Davidson, a guide, as, owing to the long distance, it was impossible to carry out my original plans. It did not take long to make my arrangements with "Mose." That was October 31st and on that date my troubles, both fancied and real, ended, and my enjoyment began. I was no longer "spleeny," as one fair lady in Fredericton had dubbed me, the exact meaning of which is even yet in a mystery to me.

Finally we pulled up at Bob's house which, if you please, is The Hotel of Holtville, where we were introduced to a warm supper, Mrs. Holt and their five children. No race suicide at Holtville, believe me. Next morning at eight, in a cold northwest wind, we took saddle horses and rode twenty-five miles straight into the wind, stopping half an hour to "eat" (lunch) as the guides call it, and at four arrived at Davidson's log cabin on McGraw Brook. I was "all in" and so tired that I couldn't take off my farrigans, which duty Rob Ross promptly performed and, although he and the rest had tramped the entire distance, and very hard going it was, they were as fresh and as fit as when they had started. For the first three days I did nothing but loaf, eat and sleep and no wonder I soon got back half of the twenty pounds I had left in Fredericton, for who could not do justice to his breakfast on a cold morning, the frost on the window-pane, the wood stove crackling like a house afire and his honor Judge Theodore Pond setting before you boiled partridge and bacon, baked potatoes, pancakes and maple syrup and a big cup of steaming coffee.

EQUIPMENT READY FOR THE INFANTRY

Ottawa, Nov. 11—"Bravo, Australia. All Canada congratulates you."

That was the cable message sent this afternoon to Premier Fisher of Australia, by Sir George Foster, acting prime minister. The message, of course, relates to the work of the Australian cruiser Sydney in bringing to a close the spectacular career of the German commerce destroyer cruiser Emden.

The hope is expressed here that the commonwealth battleship Australia may be able to perform a similar service to Canada and the empire by riding the Pacific of the German squadron, still at large there. The naval department authorities here state that the Australia is big enough and fast enough to perform the feat single-handed if she is sent on the errand. At present, however, chief reliance is placed on the Japanese warships now searching for the enemy on this side of the Pacific. The Australia, it is believed, will keep within touch of home waters for the present.

The militia department reports that full equipment is now ready for the eight infantry battalions now mobilizing for the second contingent. This includes rifles, ammunition and clothing of every description. The uniforms are now being distributed and at some points rifles have already been issued to the men.

When a man comes home sick, his wife expects him to hold the baby while she mixes him a dose of some nasty stuff.
