

CLEANSSES YOUR HAIR MAKES IT BEAUTIFUL

It Becomes Thick, Wavy, Lustrous and all Dandruff
Disappears

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy, and abundant and possess a incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of Dandruff, invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetables. It goes right to the root invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have plenty of soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25c bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

BRIEUX SENDS LETTER TO MAN WHO GETS NONE

Paris, Nov. 9.—A well known member of the Academy has written a letter to the man who never gets one, to be distributed in the French trenches. In it he says:

"Apparently there are very few amongst our soldiers who never receive any letters. But if there is such a one it is to him that I address this letter.

"I see you from here, my dear young fellow, I see your disappointment and your sadness when the quartermaster appears in sight with a number of letters in his hand and calls out this name and that and deals out to eager hands envelopes which contain the good wishes of the family and a mother's kisses. Everyone is grave and everyone listens for his name to be called out. Nothing for you.

"You fight, however, just as well as your comrades. And whilst you only do as well as they do, you really do something more. The other soldiers are fighting for the homes of their ancestors and for the defence of their property. You have neither home nor ancestors nor property and you fight with as much courage as those who are getting letters by every post.

"Don't be ashamed because no one has written to you. Do proud. Others have been born in a family whose position is made. You will have the satisfaction and the pride of making your own. They have received; you will give and your part is half the best.

"Once more, my son, courage and good luck. And let me send you a kiss, I who have no son and you who have no father.

(Sgd.) "BRIEUX,
"French Academician."

BEST STORIES OF THE WAR

Correspondents at the front or marooned in obscure places while the great European conflict rages manage daily to get through the wary censors some little grimly humorous or tragic sidelights of the war. Here are the best that have come over the cables or by mail.

A NEW FOR ENTERERS.

Winter begins officially in Russia today, with the closing of navigation on the Neva, but already snow is lying on the ground on the western frontier and in Poland there are severe frosts at night.

A new touch of horror is introduced by the freezing of the ground, which makes it practically impossible to dig graves for the great number of dead in the woods, where recent floods washed the bodies from the shallow graves to which they had been hastily buried.

The villagers report the presence of an unparalleled number of wolves and have petitioned the army authorities to detach soldiers to shoot them.

The Germans are suffering intensely from the cold. In every town which they occupied they carried off all the valuable winter clothing, furs, sheepskins and leather coats. At Lodi and Shradow, where there are great cloth factories, they commandeered the whole of the stocks and kept the plant working day and night providing materials for export to Germany. They failed, however, to bring away much of this owing to the destruction of the railway bridges by Polish guerrillas, whose activities are acknowledged to have contributed to the Russian success.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE.

Life in the trenches appears by no means to be the irksome and dreadful thing it is reported to be. According to soldiers just back in Paris from the firing line, troops that are supposed to face each other grimly across a fire-swept space only a few hundred yards wide are not the bloodthirsty fellows we all too often for.

They carry chivalry into their work and certain conventions, all making for comfort, have been tacitly established between them. For example, towards midnight both sides suspend fire in order that they may eat luncheon in peace. They would undoubtedly oblige each other when the evening meal is due but for the unhappy fact that the dinner hours of the contending armies do not tally.

Obviously, says a facetious Frenchman, it is somebody's duty to see that the meal hours of the opposing forces synchronize exactly. The soldiers entertain each other with music, the trenches on either side furnishing items turn and turn about.

KAISER'S CLOSE CALL.

Further details are now at hand of the Kaiser's narrow escape from death from bombs thrown by an airman attached to the allied army occupying the line from Nieuport to Ypres for five days. The emperor was present at the operations on the front and it was because of his presence that the enemy made such persistent and vigorous attacks on the Allies, regardless of the enormous sacrifice of life.

Last Sunday the Kaiser, with some of his aides, arrived by motor-car at a tavern at Thiel about five p.m. Apartments had been reserved for the emperor. Dinner was ready and his personal baggage had already been deposited in the bedroom prepared for him. He was in a hurry and did not dress for dinner, but immediately sat down to dine.

After the meal, instead of going to his room, he hurriedly left the tavern with two of his aides. He motored to the other end of the town, where fresh rooms were engaged. Twenty minutes after the Kaiser left the first tavern six bombs fell upon the building and the room where his baggage lay was destroyed. Two of his aides, who had remained in the tavern, were killed and the motor-car in the yard wrecked.

EXTRA! RUSSIA GOES DRY!

The official bulletin of the Prefect of Petrograd published on October 25, another addition to the prohibition of the sale of alcoholic drinks. Up to that date restaurants of the first class had the privilege of selling vodka and all other spirituous liquors in unlimited quantities. It was thought these establishments would only provide for the wealthier classes and there was no danger of the common people being able to secure strong drink. It seems, however, that habitual toppers even of the lower classes, arrayed themselves in clothes finer than they had ever worn before in their lives and, putting up a bold front, have entered first-class restaurants and got what they wanted.

The story goes that haters and milliners had been doing a rousing business selling bowler hats to men and women who hitherto had worn caps and shawls. A bowler on a man and a hat on a woman being in Russia a mark of superiority, if not of intelligence, there was no ban on champagne for the wearers.

This reached the ears of the commander-in-chief of the army, who has absolute powers. He accordingly instructed prefects of police throughout

Russia to prohibit the sale of vodka and strong drink of every description even in first-class restaurants.

"HE IS NOT A PRIEST!"

The following story illustrates the versatility of German spies:

A French battalion has just entered a village which for some time previously had been occupied by the Germans. The place had been pillaged and devastated, the inhabitants had fled but the church and the priest's house were still intact. The aged cure came forth to greet the soldiers with open arms.

That evening officers invited the venerable cleric to dinner and, as a matter of course, they invited him to say grace.

As he murmured a Latin prayer one officer, a Lieutenant, became strangely interested. He became absolutely astonished as the priest went on. The Lieutenant whispered to the colonel, and before the company had quite realized what was happening, four men with fixed bayonets had ranged themselves behind the cure.

"That man has never been a priest!" exclaimed the officer.

Forthwith the man was searched. He was a German spy and had disguised himself as a priest in the deserted village. The real pastor was a hostage.

ART OF PAINTING "TONE" AS DEVELOPED BY EDISON

Recording what he saw was one of man's earliest pastimes. Prehistoric caves—the ruins of Nineveh—the pyramids of Egypt—these reveal to us some of his early efforts to picture the impressions received through his sense of sight.

Centuries passed, before these crude outline drawings, without shades or expression, developed into the masterpieces of Rembrandt, Raphael and Rubens, where all the wealth of form and color makes the canvas seem to live. Nowadays the perfection of painting, photography, color printing and lithographing enables us to see and enjoy the beauties of the whole wide world, at trifling expense and without moving far from our own sister of recording and reproducing fireides.

But while the art of recording and reproducing things visible had thus been perfected through the ages, the sister art of recording and reproducing sound was only born some thirty-seven years ago, when Thomas A. Edison brought out his first phonograph.

As might be expected, this first phonograph, like man's first sketches, produced only barely recognizable outlines of the original. The wealth of overtones, which give expression and melody to voice or music were lost. But a start had been made. For the first time in the world's history, sound had been reproduced.

Since then it has been simply a case of development. But since Edison has been behind it, this development has been phenomenally rapid, reaching its climax in the wonderful Edison Diamond Disc and Ambrola Phonographs, recently perfected. Here at last are instruments that truly reproduce music and do not distort it.

This is accomplished by two distinctive Edison features, the diamond reproducer point, and the entirely new and remarkably hard material used in the records. The diamond point which, by the way, never has to be changed, is practically frictionless. Wonderfully sensitive, it follows the most minute waves in the hard record, searching out and faithfully reproducing the overtones, of the voice or music, and pouring out a flood of signing this reproducer, Edison, with deep, rich, mellow sweetness. In his characteristic thoroughness, constructed and tested out over 2,000 different models. The result amply repays the efforts spent on it, for the Edison Phonograph gives us, to use the inventor's own words, "Music at last."

A young barrister was defending an old convict on the charge of burglary and consulted a veteran member of the bar who happened to be standing near.

"How much time do you think should take up in addressing the jury?" he asked in a rather pompous manner.

"Take as long as you can," was the gruff reply. "The longer you take the longer you'll keep your client out of gaol."

War Cannot Slaughter MORE VICTIMS THAN PNEUMONIA.

Pneumonia is described as a preventable disease if taken in time.

Pneumonia is the scourge of the able-bodied men and women "a little run down perhaps" but strong in the belief that they can fight off a cold. Colds are not easily fought off in this northern climate.

On the first sign of a cough or cold, our advice to you is "Get Rid of It." The slight cold, the irritating cough, the tightness of the chest, if not attended to, will sooner or later develop into some serious lung or bronchial trouble.

GET A BOTTLE OF

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP and you will find after the first two or three doses have been taken the cough or cold will quickly disappear.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25c and 50c.

Be sure you see that the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, appears on both the label and wrapper.

Mrs. Edward Hugo, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "My little girl, three years old, contracted a bad cold which settled on her lungs, and turned into pneumonia, and she was given up by our doctor. I decided to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and by the time she had taken three bottles she was well again. I shall always keep a bottle of "Dr. Wood's" in the house."

CENSUS OF EMPIRE

An Interesting Analysis as to Race and Color

The British Empire has now a population of 419,000,000, of whom 57,000,000 live in the United Kingdom. Of the 362,000,000 who live outside the British Isles, the great majority is composed of the population of India. From comparative figures recently published some statistics of the population of the Empire outside the United Kingdom are here given showing the totals for race and color for the 362,000,000 people involved:

Brown	206,614,000
Black	23,819,000
