Canada Attracts Investors

A leading Canadian financial publication estimates that there is now at least $599,000,000 of United States capital invested in Canada. Over $150,000,000 is in the shape of branch factories and warehouses of United States manufacturers, while nearly $124,000,000 is invested by residents of the United States in Canadian government, municipal and industrial bonds. United States life and fire insurance companies have $67,000,000 invested in the Dominion, while over $130,000,000 is invested in British Columbia mills, timber and mines. Investments in the prairie provinces are in lands, mines, packing plants, factories and warehouses.

The Drain on Scotland

Nearly 200,000 Scottish persons emigrated from Scotland during the past four years. This number is equal to two-thirds of the population of Edinburgh, or nearly to the combined population of Grimsby, Ipswich and Reading.

Light and Milk

Milk spoils quickly when kept in a strong light and investigators have found that the rays of light near the violet end of the spectrum seem to have the most detrimental effect. Strong light acts in the same manner upon sterilized milk and upon pasteurized milk as upon pure, fresh milk; after being exposed in plain glass bottles to full sunlight for a day, all three kinds of milk were found to be completely spoiled and unfit for use. On the other hand, says The Scientific American, red rays are beneficial, and milk that is put in bottles of red glass or in bottles wrapped with red paper, will keep in good condition much longer than milk bottled in glass that permits the passage of all the light waves.

LIVELY PROCEEDINGS

works. "No, nor an interruption either," was the reply. Mr. Scott appealed for a fair hearing and the sheriff called for order. Mr. Scott, continuing, said that as far as the provincial government was concerned, he always had supported it and was supporting it at the present time. (Applause.)

PACKED CONVENTION.

As far as his young opponent, Mr. Guthrie, was concerned, he had nothing to say of him as a man. As a candidate however, he was put forward by a packed convention which nominated Mr. Guthrie. He (Scott), had remarked that the convention hall was packed and that if NO CANDIDATE WOULD COME OUT AGAINST GUTHRIE HE WOULD COME OUT HIMSELF. (Applause.) HE WAS NOT A SPEAKER. HE WAS A WORKER. His friends knew that and would expect work and not speeches from him if he were elected. He appealed for votes on his merits. If anyone wished to vote against him let him do so. He was a candidate representing certain principles and it was for them that he wanted the votes. He would do his utmost to advance the interests of the people of York county. (Hear, hear!)

As he had said before, he was no speaker and perhaps had better give place to some one more fluent. Had he the experience in court-rooms and at political meetings that P. A. Guthrie or H. F. McLeod, M.P., had, he might have thirty minutes instead of the time allotted to him. (Laughter.)

In conclusion, Mr. Scott said that he was there to dictate to no person how he should vote. He appealed for Conservative votes as a Conservative who was decidedly opposed to the machine. (Applause.)

JOHN A. YOUNG.

John A. Young, M.P.P., was the next called as a speaker. A few nights ago, said Mr. Young, a lot of things had been said concerning him by a newspaper published in Fredericton. Those statements did not fit. They could judge between him and the Fredericton Mail.

Mr. Young claimed that Guthrie had been regularly nominated in convention. He supported Mr. Guthrie because he was the party standard-bearer. Please God he would work for him until the polls closed. As far as Mr. Pinder was concerned he was there to speak for himself.

JAMES K. PINDER.

Mr. James K. Pinder, M.P.P., was given a hearty reception. It was peculiar that two Conservatives were in the field but there were good reasons. On the last occasion that they had met in convention H. F. McLeod had been nominated by himself as member for Ottawa. The convention had been unanimous and Mr. McLeod had been sent to the federal capital to REPRESENT THE COUNTY AT LEAST TO HIS OWN SATISFACTION IF NOT TO THAT OF OTHERS. (Laughter and applause.)

Soon after Mr. McLeod took it upon himself to secure a candidate. He was against any man being boss or leader. (Applause.) He should not usurp the function of a convention. (Hear, hear!) Mr. McLeod had thrust forward a candidate by means of a packed convention and as a result, there had been a protest on the part of a large section of the party.

REFERS TO THE GLEANER.

Mr. Pinder then made reference directly to The Gleaner and the attacks it has made upon him since the nomination of James M. Scott and his remarks among the most interesting of the afternoon were received with laughter and applause.

"I went into the field in this county in opposition without a newspaper at my back," said Mr. Pinder. "I put things on the road to success and brought the party around to where it had been. What has been my reward? I got the abuse of the very paper I helped to establish and the attacks of the men I aided." (Continued on page five)

Oakham's Horseshoe Collection

The ancient castle at Oakham contains a unique collection of horse shoes—a collection which even in these days is constantly added to. There is an ancient custom whereby the lord of the manor is authorized to take, by force, if need be, a horse shoe from every peer of the realm who enters Oakham. It is no longer necessary to resort to force, and shoes of large size surmounted by coronets are usually supplied by those peers who enter the town. Motorists, of course, are equally liable if they are peers, but how the lord of the manor would get his horse shoe out of a motor car is another question.

Inscription on Money

Following a family tradition, the coffin of Miss Anne Joyce Strick, whose funeral took place at Swansea, had on it a five-shilling piece flattened out and the inscription written on it.

HARVEST OF THE SEA

Great Wealth in the Fisheries of the Pacific Coast

The halibut of British Columbia have an enviable reputation, for they are less over-grown and of finer texture than the Icelandic and North Sea fish; a length of five to six feet and weight of 250 pounds, is exceptional for the British Columbia halibut. The waters between Queen Charlotte Islands and the mainland, especially off Rose Spit and off the west shore of Banks Island were at one time veritably overcrowded with halibut.

Very large fish were often taken then, some weighing 150 pounds, but the general weight now is only from 20 to 40 pounds. The halibut are scattered all over the strait, but regular migrations have been noticed, and where the waters of Dixon entrance meet the currents, moving from the south through Hecate Strait, and food appears abundant, the fish con-

Greater than Panama's Bridge of Water

The Panama Canal is the logical outcome of the trend of modern commerce—it is monumental evidence of the present-day need for shortening distance—for lessening time and for reducing cost of distribution between maker and consumer.

In point of distance, the Panama will bring the Pacific nearer to the Atlantic by 1,000 miles. In point of time, the sea voyage between Halifax and Vancouver will be shortened by 24 days. In point of cost, the canal will very materially lessen the expense of carrying freight between these places. But there is a stronger factor than even the Panama in shortening distances, lessening cost and saving time between manufacturer and user.

It is Advertising—

It is the quickest—
It is the most direct—
And it is the cheapest—means of communication between the maker and user of goods.

For instance, Advertising enabled a manufacturer in Nova Scotia to carry a demand for his product from his factory to the Pacific Coast

— in a few days
— at an insignificant cost compared with slower and more laborious selling methods.

In one week, thousands learned of his product where it would have taken years for the news to get around without advertising.

To the Manufacturers of Canada:

You will be alert to take advantage of the Panama route for the physical transportation of your goods. Have you considered how quickly, how far, and at what small cost the Advertising Trade Route will carry demand for those goods?

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.
