

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT, BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make it Thick, Glossy, Wavy, Luxuriant and Remove all Dandruff

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant, and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you will have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies, and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter and just try it.

NUMBERING 90

New Glasgow, N.S., March 11—In opposition to the theory that the high cost of living is responsible for the decrease in the birth rate on this continent, Mrs. A. Pushie of New Glasgow, proudly points to her family of eighty, all of which are living, with the exception of seven. The Pushie family consists of four sons and four daughters, twenty-one grandsons and twenty-two grand-daughters, twelve great grandsons and ten great grand-daughters. All have been born within a period of sixty years and with the exception of three, all are serving the British flag. Sixty live in Nova Scotia, three have tempor-

CONCESSIONS OF- FERED TO ULSTER

London, March 11—That the commons have responded to Mr. Asquith's appeal to make sacrifices in order to avoid strife in the country and are ready to do so, is the statement of the Westminster Gazette which blames the Unionist press for being quarrelsome over its politicians. It thinks that the premier's offer is a serious sacrifice from the home rulers' standpoint and greatly to the credit of Mr. Redmond and his party.

It believes that the parties will refuse to plunge into civil war solely over the difficulty regarding the time limit which is now the principal obstacle.

The Pall Mall Gazette flatly declares that the premier's terms are not even a basis for discussion and do not offer the beginning of an approach to an agreement.

The majority of the opposition papers are now laying chief stress on the question of a general election. The most significant symptom of the political situation is the premier's estimate of its beneficial effect in strengthening the money market. The Standard's editor states that on the whole Lloyd's is very well satisfied with the progress made in the Commons towards a settlement of the Irish question and the feeling prevails among those who have taken home rule risks that there is little cause of anxiety regarding liabilities.

CONCESSIONS OF- FERED TO ULSTER

London, March 11—Premier Asquith today laid before the House of Commons his proposed concessions to Ulster in regard to its position under the Irish Home Rule Bill.

The announcement, which had been so long and anxiously waited, was to the effect that before the bill became operative a poll should be taken of the parliamentary electors of each county to decide whether these should be an exclusion of the Ulster counties from the provisions of the bill for a period of six years from the first meeting of the new Irish parliament. If the majority of the voters was in favor of this scheme, the county would automatically be excluded from the prescribed period.

Before an attendance even bigger than that which listened to the introduction of the Irish Home Rule Bill, Premier Asquith began his statement as to the concession the government proposed to offer to Ulster, shortly before four o'clock. He prefaced his speech with the declaration that the government made these suggestions today, not because it was running away from the original bill but merely to allow the bill to start with the greatest prospect of success.

While there was a possibility of acute dissatisfaction and civil strife in Ulster, said the premier, yet if the bill should be shipwrecked, or postponed, the outlook was equally formidable.

Supporters of the bill were as convinced today as ever they had been of the soundness of its principles and machinery, continued the premier. He said they regarded it as a sincere and considerate attempt to place the Irish parliament on a solid foundation, without injustice or hardship to any class.

He informed the House that the negotiations for a compromise last August had failed to result even in an approach to an agreement, but had made all realize more than ever the difficulty of the situation. To meet Ulster's difficulties they had tried to devise home rule within home rule, but that proposition did not commend itself either to the Nationalists or the Unionists in Ireland.

By such a scheme, Ulster would have been exempted from the administrative and executive authority of Dublin government, while legislation to which Ulster objected could not come into force until it had been sanctioned by the British parliament.

Another suggestion considered was the inclusion of the whole of Ireland in the bill for legislative and executive purposes but giving to the Ulster counties the option of removing themselves for a time. Any sort of exclusion, said the premier, would tend to keep up the controversy and would involve serious administrative and financial difficulties. He said, however, he believed the Unionists themselves would find in some form of provisional exclusion a medium between the surrender of the principles and the application of force.

LORD DERBY MAY BY NEXT PREMIER

London, March 11—Lord Derby is being picked by many political observers as likely to prove a "dark horse" in the contest for the premiership if the Unionists return to power.

Those who most ardently supported Bonar Law are now believing that his leadership has proven a failure. He is over seventy years of age and he is a Liberal-Unionist, a party association which has never helped a man to the leadership of the Unionists.

Lord Derby on the other hand, who has been Unionist leader in Lancashire for many years, has never associated himself with the Tariff Reform which has helped to defeat the Unionists at three successive general elections. He is a "free trader," like most Lancastrians, and has further strengthened his position by taking a strong stand against those who threatened civil war if the Home Rule Bill is passed. While a staunch anti-Home Ruler, Lord Derby spoke very strongly against the Ulster men, should they rise against law and order. Again he denounced attempts to revive the royal veto, when a section of his party suggested that the king should be petitioned to withhold his signature from the Home Rule Bill. He, therefore, gained the reputation of being a strong constitutionalist.

The Lancashire leader has the advantage of having served in the House of Commons and has had considerable experience in the cabinet. He started his career as a member of the staff of the governor general of Canada; was chief press censor and private secretary to Lord Roberts during the South African War and was twice mentioned in dispatches for conspicuous services. Upon return to England, he became one of the Lords of the Treasury and later financial secretary to the War Office, where he remained until he entered the cabinet as postmaster general.

He had to retire from the House of Commons, where he represented the West Houghton Division of Lancashire for fourteen years, on the death of his father in 1906, but he has continued his interest in politics. If not actually premier when the Unionists return to power he is sure to fill one of the cabinet offices. His great wealth will, of course, help, but of even greater assistance is his intimacy with King George.
