VALUE OF MAN'S SIZE
Modern Achievements Would be impossible to Tiny Men

If man were much larger or much smaller than he is he could not have accomplished many of the most important feats of civilization. For man, by his stature, is just the right size to make the best use of every thing around him. If a man were the size of an ant, for example, he could have made none of the machines with which he has conquered the world. The dimensions of such machines as he could have built would condemn them to uselessness, as the surface upon which friction must take place would be out of all proportion to the volume of the apparatus.

Such a man could not make a balloon that would float in the air. The delicacy of the materials he would have to employ would prevent this for when a certain point of tenuity is passed the gas diffuses quickly through the envelope. He could not build ships that would cross the ocean or float on any large body of water, because the dimensions of such vessels would have to be so inferior to the length and height of the waves as to make certain the immediate swamping of the tiny craft.

He could not even produce great heat, because the external surface of his furnace would be so large in proportion to their volume that most of the heat would be lost. This would cut him off from all the chemistry that involves high temperatures, and therefore from metallurgy and mechanics.

GUARDING AGAINST EVIL EYE

Syrian child wearing charms to ward off evil.

That the evil eye may be visited upon their children is the especial fear of Palestine and Syrian mothers and many "charms" are hung upon the little ones to ward it off. The more of these amulets a child has the better mother it is considered to have! Two beads on the neck are supposed to be particularly effective. The rest serve as ornaments as well and accord their small owners very much pleasure. They form the most important part of their costume.

Sawdust Bread

There is a bakery in Germany that turns out 20,000 loaves of sawdust bread daily and finds a ready market for this output. Although this "wooden bread" is intended for consumption for horses only, it is claimed by the manufacturer that in case of famine it would furnish a nutritious and highly satisfactory food for human beings. The sawdust is first subjected to a process of fermentation and various chemical manipulation, and is mixed with one-third part of rye flour. It is then formed into loaves and baked in an oven like any other bread.
