Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles.

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression, disturbed and restless, unrefreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, fright when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright at travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

When the nerves become affected in this way the heart generally becomes affected too.

All are curable if taken in time. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ENTRANCE OF ITALY DECISIVE EVENT OF WAR

New Dynamic Factor on the Side of the Allies Has One Million Men immediately Available For Attack

(New York Sun.)

It seems certain at this time of writing that Italy will enter the war today. Perhaps before another day dawns her soldiers will have clashed with those of Austria along the Trentine frontier.

There can be little doubt that this is the decisive event of the war. No amount of admiration for Germany's stupendous effort in holding her foes at bay to the east and west can efface from the cool, observant intelligence the preception that she has been showing signs of strain of late. The cessation of all boastful utterances, the general admission that desperate measures are necessary to enable her to win are significant of a new internal appraisal of the situation. Viewed from without the indications are broadly unfavorable.

In the eastern campaign brilliant strategy and showy victories secure her no real or lasting advantage. On the western battle front the tide has unmistakably set against her. Its movement is slow, very slow, but quite definite. All the real gains of the last month have been made by the Allies. They have been accomplished by improved methods of fighting, superior war material, greater numbers and robust morale.

German effort has been characterized by a resort to an inhuman and unlawful device, the gas bomb, indicative of desperation. Beyond that, it has shown no elasticity of contrivance, no evolution of method; the same old mass charges result in the same old failure and the same old slaughter. Villeneuve and Carenzy compared with St. Julien and Het Sass permit of only one conclusion as to the present relative effectiveness of the two fighting organizations.

The extreme reliance which, if German newspaper utterances mean anything, the government and people are placing on the submarine warfare against England is plainly an evidence of distress if not desperation. The feeling apparently prevalent in Germany that the destruction of British commerce is the only way left to victory speaks volumes as to the educational effect of the last nine months of struggle on land.

It seems only yesterday that the dash on Paris was as good as an accomplished fact in the German mind; it is no time since the Kaiser was directing his generals to wipe out Kitchener's "contemptible little band"—if the Kaiser didn't say it the German papers did. Today it is all changed. Germany realizes that she cannot possibly defeat her enemies in line of battle. Her waves of attack beat on a rock of courage and discipline and roll back broken into bloody spray. If she is to win at all it must be by turning the enemy's position and the only turning movement possible to her is by the sea route; it is the blow below the belt, the corsair stroke of submarine raiding with its reckless disregard of human life and human life.

Into this situation comes Italy with her great army and strong navy. She comes fired with hate and greed bent on the destruction, the dismemberment not only of her traditional foe, the Austrian empire, but also of Germany, a share of whose colonies she covets. What is to be the outcome of her intervention? Can it be doubted that the result must be disastrous to the Germanic cause?

Enthusiastic Teutons will no doubt try to minimize the effect of this new element in the situation. It will be pointed out that the Italians have not shown any very great fighting qualities in their wars during the last century or so. When Prussia was beating Austria with lightning speed in the Sadowa campaign, Austrian troops were driving Italian armies before them like sheep. Italy met not only defeat but almost disgrace in Abyssinia. The opening of her invasion of Tripoli failed to show any great skill of organization.

It will be argued further that as a hostile move on the part of Italy has been anticipated almost since the bethought seventy per cent will recover.

LED THOUGH WOUNDED.

"Where all battalions of the division did so well it is not possible to discriminate, unless the charge of the 4th Battalion, under Col. Birchall is given signal mention. We deeply regret the loss of such a gallant officer and splendid friend. Though twice wounded he continued to lead his battalion until he was fatally shot down. The first battalion also distinguished itself, going forward with the 4th Battalion in the attack on Pickem Ridge on the evening of the 23rd April. Not less gallant was the work of the 2nd Battalion, under Col. Watson, and the 3rd Battalion, under Col. Rennie, both attached to the 3rd Brigade in the attack on the St. Julien Ridge.

PERSONAL GRIEF.

"When the records of these battalions are published they will fill many pages of illustrious deeds but I refrain from mentioning them now, as the glory of the hour cannot outweigh the personal grief we all feel through the sudden taking off of the heroic dead of our brigade and comrades of the Canadian division.

"We are hastily reorganizing and expect to be sent forward again very shortly."
