Could Hardly Straighten Up For The Pain In Her Back.

Many women suffer from an excruciating pain in the back. They are not even able to look after the common duties of their household, and cannot even walk at times.

The whole trouble is that the kidneys have become affected, and when the kidneys get "out of kilter" the whole system becomes deranged. On the first sign of a weak, lame, aching back you should not neglect it, for if you do, you may be sure that some serious kidney trouble will follow.

What you want is a kidney medicine, for kidneys only. This you will find in Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's Kidney Pills know nothing but kidney disorders, because they're made for kidneys only.

Mrs. George Craigie, Rose Valley, P.E.I., writes: "I am writing to tell you what a wonderful cure Doan's Kidney Pills did for me. I was suffering with a lame back, and for several days I could hardly straighten up for the pain. I had used quite a lot of other kind of pills, but received no relief. Just then my sister told me about what 'Doan's' had done for her, so I decided to try them. I used three boxes and I am completely cured. I do not hesitate to recommend them to all."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

gold coin as a keepsake but he was really extremely wild and could not hide a scowl as he turned away.

PREFERRED THE LAMP.

Modern devices were being discussed at a dinner party the other evening, when Congressman Edwin S. Underhill of New York, recalled an amusing incident.

Some time ago a gas main was laid along a country road between two cities and many farmers took advantage of it to illuminate their homes. One of these was Joshua Jones.

"Them gals o' mine," remarked Mrs. Jones to a neighbor in speaking of the improvement some time later, "come right in the house, strike a match and light the thing without a bit o' fear but I wouldn't touch it with a ten-foot pole."

"You wouldn't!" exclaimed the wonderful neighbor. "Fer lands sake! What is there to be feared of?"

"Well, it's jet! this way," explained Mrs. Jones. "If ye light a lamp and it explodes ye kin chuck it out the window but that gas is nailed fast and if it explodes ye can't chuck it nowhere."

WHAT SHE KNEW.

Abbas II, the ex-Khedive of Egypt, who has probably bitterly repented by this time that he sided with Britain's enemies and thus lost his position, was once very neatly snubbed by a daring young American girl. Now, as everyone who has been to Egypt knows, the traveler's life there is made a perfect burden by the number of beggars who pester him for money.

When the American girl was introduced to the Khedive he said to her: "Have you been able to pick up any of our language?"

Pointing to her pocket and intimating the winning voice of the Egyptian beggars, she said: "Backsheesh, Excellency!"

The Khedive pretended to be highly amused at the "taking off" of his countrymen and handed the girl a

DUKE NICHOLAS THE MOST REMARKABLE MAN OF THE WAR

In the following article, the last of a series which he has written for The London Times, Mr. Stanley Washburn sums up his impressions of the Russian army. His confidence in the ultimate success of Great Britain's ally in the eastern theatre is founded largely on the generalship of the Grand Duke Nicholas, to whose soldierly qualities and patient strategy he pays a high tribute. Mr. Washburn says: "In what I have written I have tried to give the reader an idea of the assets, both material and moral, which Russia has at her disposal in the field during this campaign. If what I have said seems superficial and lacking in detail, it is because of the extremely limited facilities that have been given correspondents in this war

It is natural, I suppose, that the west should constantly call for a Russian general advance. But outside clamor has no effect whatever on this huge, well-poised Russian, living quietly with his staff in a special train in a little secluded grove on the plains of Western Russia. He knows perfectly well that it is but a question of time, be it one month or be it six, when the impetuosity of the Germans will exhaust themselves and then will come the opportunity for the Russians to advance. Under the conditions of the past few months it would be as difficult to sweep the Germans out of Poland as it would be to drive them out of Flanders. In the meantime, it is the Russian policy to let them dash themselves to bits against the wall of the Bzura-Rawka line. Each week increases the strength and the "tone" of the Russians and each week decreases the moral and physical assets of the Germans.

Grand Duke
Nikolai Nikolayevich

PATIENCE MEANS VICTORY.

In the meantime the campaign in Russia is sapping the German armies and the German people of their life-blood. Their armies contain the very cream of their middle class—artisans, mechanics, small tradesmen and even professional men and students serving in their ranks. Each costly advance is being bought by the blood and the brains that have built up the great Teuton empire. The Russians are losing, and no doubt heavily, but their losses are mostly of their peasant soldiers, losses which economically will not touch the industrial life of Russia in the smallest degree, even if she loses millions. It seems to the writer that the patient, waiting game that Russia is playing against Germany, is itself the greatest tribute to the Grand Duke's sagacity and to his fitness for leadership. With abiding faith in his army and in the future, and with an incredible amount of patience, he is playing his own game in a way that will ultimately mean victory.

THE WORK OF RUSSIA.

The policy of Russia is undoubtedly to weaken the Germans, absorbing as many of the Teuton Army Corps as possible on the Eastern front, while she proceeds patiently with her task of digesting the residue of the Austro-Hungarian armies. If Russia does this, and does it successfully, she is doing all that her allies should expect of demand of her. When Germany has been sapped to the dregs and her initiative broken, some one, be it in the east or in the west, may break through her lines and force the war home. Russia is setting systematically about this all-important task. Every corps absorbed on this eastern campaign of the Germans is just so many thousand men kept away from the western front and every costly victory or still more costly repulse of the Teutons in Poland or in East Prussia is making the task just so much the lighter for the western allies.

Only two men fought at Hagen, but they succeeded in running the European war pretty nearly off the first page.

At any rate the aspirants for the heavy-weight champion of the world have little to fear today from the Black Hand.

RUSSIA'S GREATEST ASSET.

"One who has seen and studied the army at first hand comes to feel a growing confidence in the future. This optimism, engendered by the observation of the machine, is solidified into conviction of ultimate success when one sees the Grand Duke Nicholas, for in this single personality, in the opinion of the writer, is contained a greater asset to Russia than in the rest of her army organization combined. When the smoke of battle has cleared away and too painstaking historian, in the seclusion of his study, reinforced by the perspective of times, comes to write of this whole war, he will, I believe, put his finger upon the Grand Duke as perhaps the most remarkable single individual whom the year of 1914 has brought into the public eye.

AN ABSOLUTE AUTOCRAT.

"The Grand Duke has supplied to this campaign elements that have made final success possible for the Russians. He is a big man with a far reaching vision, political acumen and a determination to wade steadily forward to victory irrespective of all obstacles and all temporary setbacks. He has had sufficient intuition of men's characters to surround himself at his headquarters with men of capacity. What he himself lacks he has realized and remedied by placing men about him who do possess it. His chief of staff is a masterly strategist, while in his other departments he has picked men each of whom is the best that Russia can produce. He, himself with an iron character and incomparable determination, binds the whole into a cohesive unit. In the army he is an absolute autocrat. He has one fixed idea and that is the success of Russia, regardless of cost. For once, Russia has a commander-in-chief and a general staff who have but one criterion and one standard—success and efficiency.

PULLMAN PORTERS TELL OF TIPPING

Chicago, April 7.—The tips they receive form the largest part of their income, according to the sleeping car porters, who testified before the United States Commission on Industrial Relations, yesterday. Tom Crenshaw, who has run between Savannah Ill., and St. Louis for 21 years, said his salary was $42 monthly and his tips averaged $75. G. H. Sylvester, porter of the Twentieth Century Limited, New York to Chicago, said his tips averaged $77 monthly and if Congress passed an anti-tipping law porters would have to quit. During the session a former Pullman car conductor said that conductors do not consider it dishonest to "knock down" on seat sales.

IT ALL CAME FROM STRAIN AND COLD

But G. K. McDonald Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills

NOVA SCOTIA MAN AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS FOUND A CURE THROUGH READING AN ADVERTISEMENT.

Harrigan Cove, Halifax Co., N.S., April 12th (Special).—After suffering for fifteen years from lame back and kidney trouble Mr. George K. MacDonald a well known resident of this place is telling his neighbors of the great benefit he has received from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble started from a strain and a cold," Mr. MacDonald states. "I was troubled with stiffness of the joints and cramps in the muscles. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing, my limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins."

"My back ached and I suffered from rheumatism, when reading an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"I am only too pleased to say that the treatment was successful. Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great deal of good."

Mr. MacDonald's symptoms show that he was troubled with kidney disease. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

Fixing an arbitrary date for the resumption of the wearing of low shoes is all right from the view point of the "buy now" propaganda. And if our April continues on the plan of Easter Day, it will also mean a harvest for the "cold feet" doctors.
