

OLD POTATOES IN NEW WAY

STUFFED POTATOES

Cut baked potatoes in half, remove the pulp, mash it, add enough milk for the usual consistency of mashed potatoes, and season with butter, salt and pepper. Fill the cases with this mixture, dot the tops with butter or brush with milk, and bake for eight or ten minutes in a hot oven. Potatoes may be stuffed in the morning and heated at noon or in the evening for dinner.

Variations—To the mashed potatoes before the cases are filled, may be added any one or a combination of the following:

- (a) Beaten white of egg (one egg to three medium-sized potatoes.)
- (b) Grated cheese (one-half cupful to three medium-sized potatoes.)
- (c) Chopped meat (one-half cupful to three medium-sized potatoes.)
- (d) Chopped parsley (one tablespoonful to three medium-sized potatoes.)

SCALLOPED POTATOES

Remove the skin from boiled potatoes and cut in slices one-fourth inch thick. Arrange the sliced potatoes in layers in a buttered baking dish covering each layer with white sauce. Sprinkle the top with buttered crumbs and bake for about twenty minutes.

Raw potatoes may be used, the loss being minimized by careful paring. In this case, sprinkle each layer with flour, butter, pepper salt and lastly pour in just enough milk to be seen through the top layer. Bake for about an hour, or until the potatoes are tender.

Variations—Add in layers:
(a) Hard-cooked egg, sliced.
(b) Grated cheese.
(c) Minced ham.

BOILED POTATOES

Select potatoes of uniform size; wash them with a brush and plunge them into boiling salted water (one teaspoonful salt to one quart water). Cook them with the cover of kettle ajar until tender, from twenty to thirty minutes. Drain the potatoes; remove the skins; dress the potatoes with butter if desired, and serve them immediately. If it is necessary for the potatoes to stand a few minutes before being served, cover them with a cloth, not a lid, in order that the steam as it condenses may be absorbed by the cloth and not returned to the potatoes to make them soggy. (This is the reason for serving potatoes in an uncovered dish.)

STEAMED POTATOES

Prepare the potatoes as for boiling. Place them in a steamer, cover tightly, and steam for about thirty minutes, or until tender. Serve them in the same way as boiled potatoes.

Riced or mashed potatoes may be very satisfactorily substituted for part or all of the bread crumbs generally used in making a meat loaf. They may also be used with the meat in sausage cakes.

POTATO STUFFING FOR FOWL

Two cupfuls hot mashed potatoes one and a quarter cupful of bread crumbs, one-third cupful butter, one egg, one teaspoonful sage, one-quarter cupful finely chopped fat salt pork, one finely chopped onion.

Add to the potatoes the other ingredients in the order in which they are given.—From Pamphlet issued by Department of Agriculture, Cornell University.

TOMMY MURPHY HAS FINE GRAND CIRCUIT STRING

Twenty-nine Horses Left Poughkeepsie—First Appearance Grand Rapids.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., June 30—Tommy Murphy, the trainer and driver, left here today with his Grand Circuit racers. There were twenty-nine horses in the lot and they went to Grand Rapids, Mich.

The first appearance of the horses on the Grand Circuit will be July 19 at Cleveland. After the completion of the Grand Circuit Murphy will take his horses to the Pacific Coast for the cases at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Murphy announced the list of horses today. The pacers are Directum I, Frank Bogash Jr., Peter Worthing, Peter Ferrin, Peter S., Ben Locenda, Dustless McKinney, Jean, Irene Beau, Major Ong, Hedgewood Boy Jr., Anna Bradford and Hal S. The trotters are Mary Guy, Strafford, Silver Axworthy, Peter Volo, Peter Scott, Bridget Axworthy, Whiteley, Sadie S., Helen Worth, Great Isle, Lulu Lumine, Bindela, Mirthful, Sunlock, Boma and Polly Overton.

About twenty-five horses of those which Murphy has been training will remain here. He expects to get four more horses at Grand Rapids.

"HUNTING AND FISHING"

"Hunting and Fishing" is a concise and comprehensive guide to the numerous hunting and fishing resorts of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, issued by the Canadian Government Railways. The foreword says:

While Quebec and the Maritime Provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were the earliest settled portions of Canada, they still remain its best big game territory—in fact, the latter statement could be extended so as to include the whole of the North American continent, and there would be no exaggeration. There are hundreds of square miles of forests and barrens, where the moose, caribou, deer and bear roam as free as did their kind a hundred years ago—nay, in the case of the moose, caribou and deer, they are distinctly better off than were their forebears, owing to the strict enforcement of the provincial game laws, which is also accountable for the marked increase of these denizens of the forests in recent years.

What has been said of this country as a great region for hunting, is equally true of it with regard to the fishing. Although many of the noted streams are under lease, there are still opportunities for salmon fishing, while there is no lack of the best angling for trout. With such a stretch of coast line it will readily be understood there are innumerable opportunities for deep sea fishing. This sport not only includes the ordinary specimens of the finny tribe—cod, haddock and mackerel—but the more exclusive dwellers of the deep, such as tuna and the swordfish.

Excellent wild fowl shooting is to be obtained. Duck, partridge, plover, woodcock, snipe, are plentiful, and the fall shooting of geese, duck and brant are worthy of special mention.

The guides are well organized and can properly outfit and equip parties for an outing that may last two or three weeks or more, having chains of camps furnished with every thing the hunter may require, and the necessary camp wagons and canoes. And this vast game and fish preserve is so easy of access. The sportsman has but to glance at the map, trace the line of the Intercolonial Railway from Montreal to its Atlantic terminus, note how the country is intersected with rivers and streams, and virtually select the station on the line from which to make his incursion into the woods.

The object of this booklet is to help in the selection. The sportsman will be told the kind of game and fish to be procured, and how and where to procure it, the guides and their charges, and best outfitting places, the hotels and boarding house accommodations, and fish and game laws of the various provinces, customs regulations, and useful hints as to the proper equipment. Should further information be desired, and he will write the General Passenger Department of the Canadian Government Railways, every endeavor will be made to obtain the sportsman's requirements.
