Book II.

CHAPTER I—Van Vechten calls on his uncle, Theodore Van Vechten, big man in Wall street and known as the "Man of Iron," in search of information regarding the whereabouts of Paige Carey.CHAPTER II—Detective Flint shows Van Vechten a gold watch found in the House of Mystery. Van recognizes it as belonging to Paige Carey.CHAPTER III—The sweet-voiced girl helps Tom Phinney escape, but refuses to disclose her identity. Tom declares he will meet her again.CHAPTER IV—Detective Flint tells Van Vechten he has a theory that Paige has been kidnapped. Van goes to lay the case before his uncle.CHAPTER V—Messages are sent to Europe in an effort to trace Paige. Tom tells Van Vechten he is in love and relates his adventure.CHAPTER VI—A message from London reports that two ladies resembling Miss Carey and her companion, Mrs.
Devereaux, sailed for New York some time previously. A reward of $2,500 is offered.CHAPTER VII—It develops that the ladies visited the English home of Temple Bonner, owner of the House of Mystery. Flint has a theory that they are connected with the mystery of No. 1313.CHAPTER VIII—It is recalled that Temple Bonner was in love with a daughter of Captain Schuyler, who married Max Willard. The other daughter married a man named Devereaux. Bonner and Willard were intimate friends. A search is started for Willard.CHAPTER IX—Van Vechten enters the House of Mystery by the back door in time to hear John Collins threaten a girl.
He interferes and helps the girl escape.
But is rendered unconscious in the struggle with Collins.At last his patience was rewarded.
The intruder must have been holding his breath also, for Tom plainly heard an unmistakable exhalation, then a faint stir, a rustling of garments. And then a thrill went through him. He was suddenly aware of a faint, delicate fragrance. He knew that the intruder was a woman.
Could it be the girl of the wonderfully sweet voice?"If you are trying to find me," he said, scarcely above a whisper, "I am here."The first word was met with a stiffed, startled gasp."Oh!"
"Don't be frightened. Lord knows I'm harmless enough."Followed a silent pause; then came the soft froufrou of skirts, and he knew that the woman was groping her way toward him. He continued to guide her steps with low-voiced directions, and by and by he felt the contact of her foot. Next she was kneeling beside him."Whatever you do," he heard a tremulous whisper, "be quiet. If I am caught here it will spoil everything; I"Mr. Van Vechten," said Mr. Flint.
"Do you know where Miss Paige Carew is?"dread to think of the possible consequences. But I couldn't sleep for thinking of your predicament.""Just release me," said Tom, "and we can let consequences go hang. I can take care of 'em.""Oh, no-no-no!" came a tense whisper. "You don't know what you are talking about. You haven't the slightest idea of the circumstances.""Now listen to me—I must hurry. I have come here to release you. If everything is all right—I mean, if you can satisfy me that I am warranted in freeing you—you can go. Otherwise I must leave you as you are; and I—I don't want to do that.""And I don't want you to, believe me," breathed Tom, fervently. "Are you the girl who asked me my name downstairs?"

"Yes."

"I want to hear your voice again.
But more than anything else, I want tosee your face. If you're the same girl, I'll agree to anything—even to remaining here, like this, to die."

This rash declaration was ignored.

"Will you tell me your name now?" asked the girl."Tom Phinney," that young gentleman replied simply. "I shan't ask yours—not just at present—but I mean to know it some day. I mean to have you to myself some time, so that I can look at you to my heart's content. I know you are beautiful."The response to this, whisper though it was, revealed a flash of spirit."Much good it would do to you to ask! If you don't remain quiet I shall leave you at once."If silence was what she wanted, surely she could not complain of the intensity of that which immediately ensued. It remained so long unbroken that the girl's fortitude failed her."Well?" The tremulous whisper conveyed a distinct impression to Tom—she was afraid. "Are you going to stop talking so silly?"But he did not speak; indeed, he was once more holding his breath.

After another pause—

"Are you asleep?" the girl whispered.

"Have you—have you—fainted?"

Not a sound from Tom.

Presently he felt a little hand touch his breast, as lightly as a feather, and a warm glow flowed through him that effectively banished the chill of his damp clothing. Then the hand flattered to his face and, in the darkness, rested a moment upon his mouth.Afterwards Tom stoutly asserted that what he did was wholly inadverent, citing as valid corroborative evidence the fact that he had had no time to will the act; and at the same time he contended that because the act was inadvertent, it was sincere and therefore to be condoned.Anyhow, he kissed the softest and sweetest palm in all the world.The immediate result, however, nearly spelled disaster for this midnight enterprise. The hand was withdrawn as if it had touched a live coal, and the girl rose to her feet, utterly disregardful of the noise she made in doing so.Tom could hear her panting; in imagination he could see her standing white and rigid with terror, and he was promptly contrite."You are frightened," he said, ab-jectly apologetic."Oh, I am—I am!" she moaned. "If you knew what this meant for me you wouldn't be so foolish. All my life long I have been afraid of the dark—not just shivery afraid, but frightened clear out of my wits. And you—you" —Tom caught a sob—"you make it so much worse. I didn't know what had happened.""What do you think of me?" he groaned."I think you are a cheeky young man. I must have been insane ever to have thought of aiding you to escape.""Don't say that," he muttered in hoarse consternation. "Forgive me—please do. I shan't take back anything I've said or done, but I'll promise to be good—to do exactly what you say."

There fell another pause. Then—"Will you promise that?" whispered the girl."I have promised," Tom whispered back.

writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills.
About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not even sweep my floor.
I was advised to try your kidney pills.
Before I had used one box there was a great improvement as my back was much better. However, I kept on taking them until my back was completely cured. I highly recommend these pills for lame back."Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box,

ALL NOT LOST.

A boy who had been instructed to switch to a certain track all dirt trains that came out of the cut, let a long train of dump cars start by on the wrong track before he bethought himself and pulled the switch; the train was split in two and several of the cars were derailed.

"Why," the boy protested sadly, when he was rebuked, "I saved half de train, anyway!"—The Youth's
