Is able to tell you all the things he likes in a girl—but never the combination of things that will make him love her.

Hard boiled eggs chopped fine and mixed with mustard, a little cream and seasoning will make a delicious sandwich.

LIVER AND BOWELS

Don't Stay Constipated, Headachy,
Bilious, With Breath Bad or Stomach Sour.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from a cold, constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets tonight; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, bad cold, offensive breath and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A Ten-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

Any man who has managed to stay single has a certain amount of respect for the woman who has managed to get married.

Will scarcely tell you that he is no older than he feels without suspecting that you are wondering if he is no wiser than he looks.

Is likely to buy orchids for the girl he is courting to wear, carnations for the girl to whom he is engaged to smile—and then "the fragrant weed" for his wife's husband to smoke.

May confide in some woman to the extent of assuring her that he has confidence in none!

Admires a girl a little for attracting other men—and likes it better if she is not attracted by them.

Proudly declares his intentions when they are very remote or very nified girl—but few men like a diet them out of the comfortable "middle distance" to find out just what they are.

Occasionally enjoys "sauce piquante" with his roast beef or a few unexpected twists and flavors in the mind and manners of a dignified girl—but few men like a diet of red peppers and ginger.

RESOURCES COMMISSION

of the commission it will probably not tell enough truth to shame the devil. It takes a lot of truth to shame his Satanic majesty and the chances are that he is in no danger from the Dominion Resources Commission that will naturally tell just as much truth as the public mind can absorb without straining, which is as much truth as the ordinary blue book usually contains. The Dominion Resources Commission will tell the truth but it won't rub it in. That could hardly be expected of a number of gentlemen whose main duty is to find something reassuring.

Along that line we may expect the commission to develop many constructive ideas, not original ideas, nor yet very new, but constructive and therefore comforting. For instance, it will point out the necessity of increased production, which everybody admits, but it will not press it to the extent of demanding easier tariffs with the United States in order to create easier markets for the increased products the farmers are cajoled into producing. For illustration take the increased wheat production in the Northwest which is denied the United States market for party purposes.

GOOD SUGGESTIONS.

No doubt the commission will also draw attention to the necessity of making country life more attractive and more profitable if the increased production is to take care of war debts, newly acquired government railways and such. One thing they are almost sure to ask for is good roads so that transportation will be easier and cheaper and the cost of food correspondingly diminished to the city consumer who dwells in a ring fence of protected interests and pays high taxes for the privilege of being robbed by the tradesmen. The commission, we repeat, will be strong for good roads and the government will receive encouragement to bring in again its Good Roads Bill, the object of which was to put the good roads wherever they would do good work in hauling in good votes. If the principle of the bill is modified so that the good roads can be used to carry food products as well as votes, it will pass the House flying.

HAND-PICKED IMMIGRANTS.

It's a safe bet that the commission will call attention in stately language to the fact that what this country needs to pay interest charges and to build up traffic for three transcontinental railways—one and a half of which will probably be on the government's hands—is immigration, hand-picked, personally-conducted immigrants who will be escorted to the land allotment, say, of forty acres each—forty acres is as much as one man can cultivate—settled there, helped, if necessary, with money, seed and machinery, in a word, anchored instead of drifting off into the cities as they do at present. The commission, we repeat, will point out the advisability of giving free land to the settler if the government has any land left to give, or selling it to him at a reasonable price if the railways have any of that kind of land to sell. It may possibly argue that it is more profitable to have millions of small holders paying all the taxes the land can bear than two or three railways who won't pay land taxes at all but it won't be the first time attention has been called to that fact.

The Dominion Resources Commission may strive to make the farmer happier and more prosperous by suggesting cheap loans, co-operative marketing, better roads, improved farming methods and other devices known to habitual investigators but one hardly sees how a commission with a boss middleman in the middle of it can logically hand out tips to the farmer on how to sell for more money what the consumer is going to buy for less. Middlemen are what you might call the crux of the situation and as they have not hitherto been regarded as resources the Dominion Resources Commission will probably find it convenient to overlook them.
