INTERESTING RECORD OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTIONS

Washington, D.C., June 21—The convention which opens at Baltimore next Tuesday will be the twenty-first national assemblage of the Democratic party, while the one now in session in Chicago is only the fifteenth Republican national gathering. But the Democratic party surpasses the Republican in age much more than this difference would indicate. Born in the bank controversy of 1791, christened by Jefferson, its founder, in 1792, and strengthened in the division among the people which Washington's neutrality proclamation at the beginning of the Anglo-French war in 1793 caused, the Democratic party passed its centennial mark more than a decade ago.

But the history of the party's conventions dates back only to 1832, in which year the national delegates convention method of nominating candidates for president and vice-president was adopted. The first national Democratic convention was held on May 12, 1832, at Baltimore, and adopted two rules which have guided the actions of all subsequent conventions. One of these provided that the delegates, when so instructed, should cast the votes of their states as a unit and the other that no candidate should be nominated without a two-thirds majority. Andrew Jackson was nominated for president and Martin Van Buren for vice-president. They were elected.

The second national Democratic convention met on May 25, 1836, also at Baltimore, and nominated Martin Van Buren for president and Richard M. Johnson for vice-president. The ticket was successful in the subsequent election.

The third convention, held on May 5, 1840, at Baltimore, re-nominated Van Buren, but named no candidate for vice president, leaving that to the several states. It also put forward the first complete platform ever adopted by the party. Parts of this platform were incorporated into the deliverance of every national Democratic convention prior to the civil war, and its leading ideas have reappeared in many of the party platforms of the last fifty years.

In 1844 the national Democratic convention again assembled in Baltimore. Van Buren had a majority of the instructed delegates for his nomination. James K. Polk was a candidate for vice-president. Unfortunately for Van Buren he was not on the popular side in regards to the burning question of the annexation of Texas. Again the two-thirds rule was introduced and assured Van Buren's defeat. After a three days' struggle the nomination was given to Polk.

In the convention of 1848, also in Baltimore, took place the first of the great "walk-outs" in Democratic national assemblages, and others being in 1860 and 1866. The party in

New York was divided into two hostile factions. The national convention attempted to patch up a truce between them by admitting the delegations which each chose, allowing each to cast half the votes. The result was that the faction whose choice was defeated indignantly withdrew from the convention. Lewis Cass of Michigan, was named for president, and William O. Butler of Kentucky, for vice-president. This ticket was defeated by Taylor and Fillmore, Whigs.

Franklin Pierce of New Hampshire, a "dark horse" whose name had not been publicly mentioned as a candidate, won the presidential nomination at the national Democratic convention held in Baltimore in 1852. William R. King of Alabama, was nominated for vice-president but did not live to fill the office.

The convention which met at Cincinnati on June 2, 1856, lasted four days and resulted in the nomination of James Buchanan of Pennsylvania for president and John C. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, for vice-president.

The most fateful convention which was held in the United States was that which opened at Charleston, S. C., on April 23, 1860, which lasted ten days and took 57 unavailing ballots, and which split the party into a northern and southern section, each of which had a separate convention in another place and put up a ticket of its own. One faction named Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois, and Herschel V. Johnson of Georgia, while the other nominated John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky, and Joseph Lane of Oregon. Both were defeated at the polls by Abraham Lincoln and Hannibal Hamlin, Republicans.

The main purpose for holding the Democratic national convention which met in Chicago on August 30, 1864, was to prevent the party organization from going wholly to pieces. The convention adopted a platform which declared the war a failure and nominated Gen. George B. McClellan of New Jersey, for president and George H. Pendleton of Ohio, for vice-president. Only three states ratified the convention's action.

In the convention of 1868, the only one ever held in New York, Horatio Seymour of New York, was named for president and F. P. Blair of Missouri, for vice-president. This ticket was easily beaten by Republican ticket of Grant and Colfax.

In 1872 the convention of the Democrats was held at Baltimore. It accepted Horace Greeley, the nominee of the seceding element of the Republican party, and named B. Gratz Brown of Missouri, for vice-president but the regular Republicans in that year repeated their victory of 1868.

In their convention of 1876, in St. Louis, the Democrats nominated their strongest and ablest man, Samuel J.

SHE FAINTED WITH THE AGONY

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Her Kidneys

MISS MAGGIE JANNACK

MOUNTAIN, ONT., DEC. 14th, 1910
"I desire to let the world know the great debt I owe 'Fruit-a-tives' which saved my life when I had given up hope of ever being well again."

For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen. The pain in my side and legs would be so bad that I would faint with the agony. Five different doctors attended me and all said it was Kidney Disease and gave me no hope of getting well.

A kind neighbor visited me and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick who had been cured of a sickness like mine. I took "Fruit-a-tives" and in a short time, I began to feel better—the swelling went down—the pains were easier—and soon I was well.

I have gained over 30 pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives"—and my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle."
(MISS MAGGIE JANNACK.)

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.—or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.
