WHY CANADA GETS AMERICAN FARMERS

(Boston Sunday Post)

Statistics from Ottawa shows that during the year last taken account of the number of immigrants from the United States to Canada has been 150,000. This is an increase of 20,000 over the figures of the year before, and it shows that the great new lands of the Canadian northwest are more attractive than ever to the American settler.

Canada is very liberal to the newcomer who wants to make a home and improve the soil. She gives the poor man a better chance than this country can any longer do, and she is getting the reward of fine citizenry and energetic. She encourages good men and their families to go out to the great northwest and settle. She almost gives him the land to clear, she makes titles the easier to obtain and does a dozen different things to attract the desirable newcomer. And she is getting him.

At last good, comfortable old Uncle Sam is waking up to the loss of fine manhood material that Canada is inflicting upon him. The Senate has already passed a bill reducing the time limit for living on public land to get title from five to three years and allows the homesteader five months' vacation from the land every year. When this bill reached the House the other day, Speaker Clark deemed it of so much importance that he came down upon the floor and made a vigorous speech in its favor.

"To me the most painful feature of the day," said the Speaker, "is to see a constantly increasing stream of the very best American citizens going to Alberta and Manitoba. On one day in my county, one of the wealthiest and largest and most beautiful counties under the sun, 43 families loaded up an entire freight train as much as one of those big locomotives can pull, chartered the train and every one of them in a sleeping car, pulled out for Alberta. There was not a man among them who was not fairly well to do.

"Another man in my district sold his farm for $26,000, and his stock and other valuable assets ran the sum up to $40,000. He moved to Manitoba and entered or purchased 10,000 acres. He gave to each one of his eight children 1000 acres, keeping 2000 acres for himself. That is the kind of American citizens who are leaving this country and going to the British northwest.

"The immigration agent up there estimates that every American citizen who goes over there carries with him on the average $1000. I am in favor of arranging it so that no American citizen will want to depart from the United States to obtain a home in a foreign land."

There is a great country with an enormous population and a constant addition thereto by reason of immigration. But great as it is, it cannot afford to lose the kind of men who are going to the Canadian northwest at the rate of 150,000 a year. It is not the money they take with them that counts, but the energy, the splendid qualities of manhood, the good citizenship. This government must prove to them that it is no longer for their best interests to leave us.

What Canada can do to tempt our farmers to go over the border we can do and more, to induce them to stay in the "States."

DISEASE SPREAD BY LAUNDRIES

London, July 11—A striking danger to public health in all large cities and towns is suggested by the recently published results of experiments made by Professor Poncet, of Paris, with the perspiration of consumptives. He found that the perspiration of almost all tubercular patients contains germs of the disease. Further investigation revealed the startling fact that after the garments of these persons return from the laundry they still contain traces of the disease.

If we stop to think of the variety of soiled clothes which find their way into the wash from all classes of persons together with our own linen we must realize the full significance of Professor Poncet's discovery.

Investigation among some of the largest laundries in London has elicited the fact that there is no doubt that infections have been transferred through the handling of soiled clothing in laundries. In one of the laundries visited were steps taken to sterilize the great bulk of the clothing brought in for cleansing. "But," said a well known bacteri-

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

No Medicine so Beneficial to Brain and Nerves

Lying awake night makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day.

A lady changed from her old way of eating, to Grape-Nuts, and says: "For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank."

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloated feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely."

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts food she is well and says she doesn't think she could do without it."

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could realize what they meant by a 'bad stomach.' There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

BOSTON ANCHETS AT WINDSOR

London, July 12—The members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, paid a visit to Windsor today under escort of their namesake organization of London. The chief purpose of the pilgrimage to the royal borough was to place a tablet upon the house that now stands on the site where Robert Keayne, member of the Honorable Artillery Company of London, and founder and first captain of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, lived in the 17th century as a boy.

The majority of workers wind their wool in a tight round ball. This is a great mistake, as it impoverishes the wool and spoils the soft, fluffy appearance that is the great charm of woollen goods. The correct way to wind wool is not to wind it all. That sounds like an Irish bull, but it is nevertheless true. Coil it round and round on your lap until it looks like a bird's nest. It will not tangle, and you will be surprised how much easier your work will look when the wool is treated in this way.

ologist in the Lister Institute, "this does not mean that the laundries should be blamed. The knowledge of the facts is too recent and their meaning to the public too new. It is only now that scientists and physicians are realizing the danger of germ transmission from laundries."

"Take the case of consumption. Great progress has been made in preventing its spread and in showing the public how to take care of itself, and so keep free from the germs but before Professor Poncet's experiments were made, no one properly realized that the danger of infection extended to the simple act of having one's garments washed."

"Undoubtedly," he added, "there is far too great a laxity in the laws regulating public laundries. I would suggest the necessity of stringent laws compelling every laundry to use a steel sterilizing plant to purify every garment brought into the premises. Big, cylindrical boxes into which all laundry is placed, and steam, under high pressure, forced through every mesh and thread of the fabric, would effectively kill the hidden germs."

"To make the system effective it would be imperative that public laundries should undergo a careful and frequent inspection by officials under the jurisdiction of a department of health. Not only should the methods of disinfecting each garment be superintended, but all persons employed should from time to time be carefully examined to detect possible traces of disease."
