

MAGIC "NERVILINE" CURES TOOTHACHE, EARACHE

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN

CURES COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT, TIGHT CHEST AND HOARSENESS.

It's when sickness comes at night, when you are far from the dentist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere, you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trials 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

THE CURSE OF A LAZY WIFE.

A tourist in the mountains of Tennessee had dinner with a querulous old mountaineer, who yawned about hard times fifteen minutes at a stretch.

"Why, man," said the tourist "you ought to be able to make lots of money shipping green corn to the Northern markets."

"Yes, I orter," was the sullen reply.

"You have the land, I suppose, and can get the seed."

"Yes, I guess so."

"Then why don't you go into the speculation?"

"No use, stranger," sadly replied the cracker, "the old woman is too lazy to do the plowin' and plantin'."

THE USUAL EXPERIENCE.

"How long did it take you to learn to run a motor car?"

"Oh, three or four."

"Weeks?"

"No, motor cars."

Hick—This match won't light.

Hike—That's funny. It lit all right a minute ago.

A QUIET MAID.

The conversation at a dinner party the other evening turned to the domestic problem, when Miss Ellie Loader, a Kansas suffrage worker, recalled an appropriate story.

Some time ago, Miss Loader said, Mrs. Smith was entertaining a number of women friends, when a maid quietly entered the parlor, did the business for which she was called and just as quietly retired. Instantly several of the guests were favorably impressed.

"You have been getting a new maid, Mary," exclaimed one of the party, her eyes following the domestic. "How long have you had her?"

"Not very long," rather indifferently replied Mrs. Smith. "We got her about two weeks ago."

"She looks like a veritable gem," was the admiring comment. "How nice and quiet she is."

"Yes," returned the hostess. "She is very quiet. As a matter of fact, she doesn't even disturb the dust when she is cleaning a room."

Fable of a Land-tiller

Once there lived a farmer who worked so hard he was too tired to go to church on Sunday. His hired men refused to stand for the first and last call to breakfast at 3.45 a.m. and left before the end of the week. His wife milked the cows and hoed the garden because help was so hard to keep. The farmer voted against hard roads, and when he was elected to the School Board hired for teacher a young girl just out of High School because she would take the job for thirty dollars a month. In short, he squeezed the dollars so hard the eagle screamed. He would steal acorns from a blind pig.

When the farmer was fifty he had a half section of good black land in the corn belt and money in the bank. He moved to town to enjoy a hard-earned rest. But his stomach was so tired of corn bread and bacon that it went on strike, and the farmer ate milk toast. He could predict a storm before the first cloud appeared, by the creaking of his joints, and he had to call for help to turn over in bed. One day his doctor said he had made enough money to buy a new touring car, and the farmer died of heart disease.

Is 83 Years Old And Her Heart Does Not Bother Her.

Thanks to MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. McLaren, Commanda, Ont., writes us under date of February 9th, 1914. "Sixteen years ago I took bad with my heart and nerves, and was not able to do anything. I tried a good many doctors, but they did me no good; in fact one doctor gave me up to die. I heard about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I thought I would give them a trial, and after using a couple of boxes I saw that I was improving. I kept on using them for quite a long time. I am eighty-three years old and my heart does not bother me at all.

"I am raising a little girl who was never very strong, and the doctor said that she had palpitation of the heart, so I started to give them to her. She is now twelve years old, and they are doing her more good than I can possibly tell you. I would advise anyone who has a weak heart to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, as they have done wonders for us."

FIGHTING GERMANY, AUSTRIA AND DRINK

London, March 29—"We are fighting Germany, Austria and drink, and so far as I can see the greatest of these three deadly foes is drink," said David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, replying today to a deputation of the shipbuilding employers' federation, the members of which were unanimous in urging that in order at the present time there should be a total prohibition during the war of the sale of intoxicating liquors. This should apply not only to public houses but also to private clubs, so as to operate equally with all classes of the community.

It was stated despite the fact that work was being carried on night and day, seven days in the week, the total working time on the average in nearly all the British shipyards was actually less than before the war and the average there were many men doing splendid and strenuous work, probably as good as the men in the trenches but many did not even approximately reducing the average.

Notwithstanding the curtailment of the hours during which the receipts of the public houses in the greatly increased in some cases forty per cent. As an instance of one of many similar cases that of a battleship coming in for immediate repairs was cited. She was delayed a whole day through the absence of riveters, who were drinking and carousing.

In one yard the riveters have been working on the average only 40 hours a week and in another yard only 36 hours.

In the conclusion the deputation which included representatives of the leading shipbuilders of the country drew attention to the example set by France and Russia and urged upon the chancellor the need of drastic and immediate action.

The chancellor of the exchequer in the course of his reply, said the reason why the government had not heretofore taken more drastic action on the liquor question was because it needed to be assured that it was not going adverse to public sentiment; otherwise more harm would be done than good. The government must feel that it had every class in the community behind it when taking action which interfered severely with individual liberties. But now he was sure that the country was beginning to realize the gravity of the situation.

"I have a growing conviction based on accumulating evidence," continued the chancellor, "that nothing but root and branch methods would be of the slightest avail in dealing with the evil. I believe it is the general feeling that if we are to settle, German militarism we must first of all settle with the drink."

Mr. Lloyd-George intimated that Lord Kitchener the secretary for war and Field Marshal French, in command of the British expeditionary forces on the continent were of the same opinion, and he promised to lay the statements of the deputation before the cabinet. He said in conclusion:

"I had the privilege of an audience with His Majesty this morning and I am permitted by him to say that he is deeply concerned on this question—very deeply concerned—and the concern which is felt by him and I am certain is shared by all his subjects in this country."

Mayor Mitchel of New York, is opposed to "jitney busses." He says the heavy traffic will make them objectionable.
