GIRLS BLAMED FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

Washington, Feb. 6.—Gowns for high school girls constitute the chief indictment against the high cost of living in many Washington families, according to Mrs. Court F. Wood of the District Federation of Women's Clubs.

"High school girls in Washington" said Mrs. Wood, "wear dresses more fashionable and expensive than are ordinarily worn at fashionable colleges. Diaphanous and immodest gown are too plentiful in our high schools, and the girls whose parents can least afford it are the ones who wear the most expensive finery."
