IRISH HOME RULE

BILL PASSED

BONAR LAW

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition assailed the bill fiercely.
The government, he declared, was setting up custom houses, not to create a union, but to destroy the union which already existed. He denounced the safeguards in the bill as utterly futile, condemned the financial provisions and drew a gloomy picture of Ireland's future under Home Rule.

Every new parliament of inexperience men said the speaker had tried to get the millennium in a hurry.
The new Irish parliament would launch all sorts of schemes for improving the condition of the country borrowing money for the purpose. As a result the imperial parliament would become liable for a huge capital sum it would not have sanctioned, and for expenditure over which it had absolutely no control.

Referring to the example of South Africa which had been cited to justify home rule in Ireland, Mr. Law said that in South Africa the two races wanted the union, but that one of the races in Ireland numbering 1,000, 000 was bitterly opposed to home rule.

He asked in such circumstances under what principle did the Prime Minister justify forcing the acceptance of the bill on Ulster. In conclusion, the opposition leader declared that the government never could carry the bill through unless it was first submitted to the judgement of the country.

PREMIER ASQUITH

Premier Asquith wound up the debate for the government in a brief and forceful speech which aroused great enthusiasm on the part of his supporters. No serious attempt, he said, had been made by the opposition to meet the argument with which he opened the discussion—the character and persistence of the Irish demand. Had this demand been made under similar conditions by any community of their own race throughout the Empire, there was not a man on either side who would not say it was entitled to consideration.

A demand so persistent, continued the Prime Minister, was one which a democratic parliament in these days was bound to assent to. If the Irish vote were eliminated in the House of Commons there still would be a majority of fifty or sixty for Home Rule.

Referring to the Ulster threats, Mr.
Asquith said that he believed the British people to be just and generous. They detested intolerance and persecution in any form, but they were not the people to be frightened out of what they believed to be just by language of intimidation. The government had asked repeatedly what further safeguards were desired but the only answer of the opposition was that they would receive Ulster nothing but unyielding and uncompromising resistance.

Dealing with the safeguards, the premier said that if the Irish parliament passed acts transcending the bounds of the government had set, these became void. No one was bound to obey them, no one could be punished for disobeying them. The bill was final in the sense that it was settlement of a longstanding warfare, but no one claimed for it that there might not be necessity hereafter to modify some of its provisions, or that they were not going to proceed further in the path of devolution.

In conclusion Premier Asquith said that the claim of Ireland was of paramount urgency because there was no part of the United Kingdom to which the Imperial parliament owed so long and so deep a debt.

WITNESSES TESTIFY

AT TITANIC ENQUIRY

London, May 9—The escape of Sir Cosmo and Lady Duff-Gordon from the Titanic in lifeboat No. 1, which was less than half full, was inquired into searchingly this afternoon by Lord Mersey's commission.

Charles Hendrickson, a fireman of the Titanic, and one of the crew in the boat in question, on being asked why he did not return to the scene of the disaster to try and rescue some of those in the water who were crying for help, said that he suggested that the boat should return but Sir Cosmo objected on the ground that it would be dangerous. Lady Duff-Gordon agreed with her husband and the boat would not return.

Lord Mersey asked the witness:
"You mean to tell me that because two passengers objected the rest of you kept your mouths shut and did not go to the rescue?"

Hendrickson replied: "That's right."

GOT £5 REWARD

Witness said that Sir Cosmo Duff-Gordon gave each member of the crew of the boat £5 ($25) but he insisted that no arrangement to that effect had been made and the first he heard of a reward was after the life boat reached the Carpathia.

Hendrickson had previously testified that his boat, which could hold thirty-four persons, contained only twelve made up of seven members of the crew and two women and three men passengers and one of the women, witnesses said, was Lord Duff-Gordon, but he did not know who the other one was. He was asked if it was Mrs. Astor but his reply was that he did not know.

The objections of Sir Cosmo Duff-Gordon to go back to the scene of the Titanic's sinking was that it would be dangerous as the boat might be swamped. Hendrickson agreed with Sir Cosmo that it would be dangerous, but said they might have returned as, with so many men in the boat they would have been able to keep those in the water from swamping her.

Witness added that with proper organization it would have been possible to load all the boats to their full capacity.

At the request of the attorney for the White Star Line, Hendrickson will be called to the stand tomorrow for cross-examination. Other seamen also testified today that the boats did not return to the immediate vicinity of the wreck because the passengers feared the boats would be swamped.

EX-COUNTY MASTER OF ORANGE ORDER DISMISSED

Moncton Transcript.—Mr. M. C.
Lockhart, I.C.R. fuel inspector, who came home from Cumberland County for a week-end, received a letter from the I.C.R., notifying him that his services were no longer required.

This was the first intimation that Mr. Lockhart received. The information itself has been current on the streets of Moncton for the last four days, but Mr. Lockhart being in Cumberland County attending to his duties, knew nothing about the matter.

Mr. Lockhart is the ex-county master of the Orange Order for Westmorland County.

It is reported that the Orange Order will take this question up and demand justice and fair play for the members of their organization.

had a pedigree like his, that's all,"—

MARYSVILLE MAN'S COMPLAINT

To the Editor of The Mail.

Dear Sir,—I would like for somebody in authority to tell me what kind of laws you have in the City of Fredericton. On the evening of Sunday, April the 14th I drove to Fredericton in company with my daughter for the purpose of attending church. At the corner of York and King streets I undertook to pass a carriage driven by Mr. Collins of Marysville. His horse was walking and mine was trotting. As I was in the act of passing my horse taking fright made a quick start and for the moment became unmanageable. I brought the animal to an ordinary trot as quickly as I could. Policeman Hart, noticed the incident and called out "easy there."

I thought nothing further of the matter until yesterday when I was haled to the police court to answer to a charge of fast driving. Not having the time to fight the case and knowing that it would be cheaper to pay the fine and costs, than to attempt to do so I permitted myself to be fined by the police magistrate.

I consider the whole proceedings discreditable to the authorities of the city.

It certainly looks to me as if they would rather see a man go to perdition than see a man go to church. In future it will be necessary for me to remain at home with my daughter on Sunday rather than to attempt to attend service at your churches.

Thanking you for space Mr. Editor
I am,
Yours very truly
M. F. REID
