"This baby looks like Mr. Marsh. He says he going marry Chakawana, but he lie. He going marry you because you are rich girl." He turned to Marsh. "What for you lie, eh?" He leaned forward with a frightful scowl. "I tell you long time ago I kill you if you don't marry my sister."

"Now I understand!" exclaimed Boyd. "It was you who stabbed him that night in the cannery."

"Yes, Chakawana tell him what the prices say 'bout woman what don't marry. My sister say she go to hell herself and don't care much, but it ain't right for little baby to go to hell too."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Mr. Wayland.

"The father say if white man take Indian woman and don't marry her she go to hell for thousand year—maybe two, three thousand year. Anyhow, she don't never see Jesus's house. That's bad thing!" The breed shook his head seriously. "Chakawana she's good girl, and she go to church. I give money to the priest, too—plenty money every time—but he says that's no good; she's got to be marry or she'll burn for always with little baby. And so that's make her scare, because little baby ain't do nothing to burn that way. Mr. Marsh he say it's all one lie, and he don't care if little baby do go to hell. You hear that? He don't care for little baby."

Constantine's eyes were full of tears as he strove laboriously to voice his religious teachings. He went on with growing agitation: "Chakawana she's mighty scare of that bad place, and she ask Mr. Marsh again to marry her, but he beat her. That's when I try to kill him. Maybe Mr. Emerson ain't come so quick Mr. Marsh go to hell himself."

Wayne Wayland turned upon Marsh. "Why don't you say something?" "I told you the best isn't mine!" he cried. "If it isn't Emerson's it's Cherry Malotte's. They want money, but I won't be led."

"You marry my sister?" asked Constantine.

"No!" snarled Willis Marsh. "You can all go to hell—and take the child with you."

Without a single warning cry the breed lunged swiftly. The others saw something gleam in his hand. Emerson jumped for him, and the three men went to the deck in a writhing tangle, sending the furniture spinning before them. Mildred heard Boyd Emerson cry to the sailors:

"Get out of the way! I've got him!" Then saw him locked in the Indian's arms. They had gained their feet now and spun backward, bringing up against the yacht's cabin with a crash of shivering glass. A knife, wrenched from the breed's grasp, went whirling over the side into the sea.

Wayne Wayland loosed his daughter's hold and thrust his way in among the sailors kneeling beside the man he had chosen for his son-in-law. Emerson joined him, then rose quickly, crying:

"Is there a doctor among your party?"

"Dr. Berry! Send for Berry! He's gone ashore!" exclaimed Mr. Wayland. "Quick! Somebody fetch Dr. Berry," Boyd directed.

As the sailors drew apart Mildred Wayne saw a sight that made her grow deathly faint and close her eyes.

CHAPTER XXII

FOR nearly an hour Boyd Emerson sat alone on the deck of the Grande Dame, a prey to conflicting emotions, the while he waited for Mildred to appear. There was no one to dispute his presence now, for the tourists who had followed Dr. Berry from the shore in hushed excitement avoided him, and the sailors made no effort to carry out their earlier instructions; hence he was allowed opportunity to adjust himself to the sudden change. It was not so much the unexpected downfall of Willis Marsh and the new light thus thrown upon his own enterprise that upset him as a puzzling alteration in his own purposes and inclinations. He had come out to the yacht defiantly to make good his threat and to force an understanding with Mildred Wayland, but now that he was here and his way made easy he began to question his own desires. Now that he thought about it that note, instead of making him with dismay, had rather left him relieved. It was as if he had been freed of a burden, and this caused him a vague uneasiness. Was it because he was tired by the struggle for this girl for whom he had labored so faithfully? After three years of unflinching devotion was he truly relieved to have her dismiss him? Or was it that here in this primal country, stripped of all conventions, he saw her and himself in a new light? He did not know.

The late twilight was fading when Mildred came from her stateroom. She found Boyd pacing the deck, a clear between his teeth. "Where are those people?" she inquired.

SHE FAINTED WITH THE AGONY

"Fruit-a-lives" Cured Her Kidneys

MISS MAGGIE JANNACK

MOUNTAIN, ONT., DEC. 14th, 1910
"I desire to let the world know the great debt I owe 'Fruit-a-lives' which saved my life when I had given up hope of ever being well again."

For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen. The pain in my side and legs would be so bad that I would faint with the agony. Five different doctors attended me and all said it was Kidney Disease and gave me no hope of getting well.

A kind neighbor visited me and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick who had been cured of a sickness like mine. I took 'Fruit-a-lives' and in a short time, I began to feel better—the swelling went down—the pains were easier—and soon I was well.

I have gained over 30 pounds since taking 'Fruit-a-lives'—and my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle.

(MISS) MAGGIE JANNACK.
'Fruit-a-lives' are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.—or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT TO HOLD ENQUIRY

St. Petersburg, May 3.—The Minister of Commerce stated in the duma yesterday that the government would conduct a comprehensive enquiry into the deplorable circumstances whereby striking miners were shot down by soldiers, in the Lena gold fields, April 17. One hundred and seven gold miners were killed, and eighty wounded in a fight with Russian soldiers at the Lena gold mining works. No details of the fighting or its cause, have been received, but fifty four thousand workmen in the district have gone on strike to protect.

CALLED TO HALIFAX

In the course of accounts of the doings of well known clergymen the Maritime Baptist says:—Of Rev. M. L. Gregg of Laconia, N.H., who has accepted the call of the North church Halifax, and is soon to enter upon his work there, a correspondent of The Watchman says: "His departure from Laconia will be a distinct loss to the church, the city and the State. He is a courteous Christian gentleman, a tireless worker, an able preacher and a wise leader in church affairs. Rev. Mr. Gregg was formerly a student at U.N.B. and has preached in this city, Gibson and Marysville.

PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN SURELY PUTS THE STOMACH IN ORDER

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of Indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome a sour, gassy Stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula, plainly written on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why it makes Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distress go in five minutes, and relieves at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour, undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion and Dyspepsia or an out-of-order stomach with the common, every-day cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe theirs is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefy in the digestive tract and intestines, and besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

LARGER FARMS COST LESS

Small farms cannot always be operated as economically as can larger farms. That is, on the smaller farm as much use cannot be made of the necessary equipment as can be made on a larger acreage.

A minimum amount of equipment and of labor is necessary no matter what the size of the farm. There must usually be a horse or horses for certain purposes and a minimum amount of machinery, no matter how small the holding. But on the small farm, the amount of work to be done often does not keep the horses busy. Yet as much money is invested in these horses as in those used on a farm large enough to keep them constantly employed.

In effect, the man who works the small holding pays interest on his horse investment without getting a return service whenever his teams are idle.

This is merely an illustration. The same is true of many other parts of the operating equipment. The farm wagon, for example, ought to be kept busy at some work that represents a money income—hauling 'manure', which represents soil improvement, or carrying building materials, which represents another form of investment, and so on.

Other machinery ought likewise to be kept profitably in use as much as possible. It is a mistake to assume that the wear and tear of machinery in use offsets the profit-income from it. Deterioration goes on just the same in either case; but many manufacturers estimate a higher percentage of deterioration in machinery that is in use.

It is evident that on a small farm the number of different purposes toward which machinery or man or horses labor can be turned, is less than it would be on a larger farm, and that the amount of time necessary in completing any one job will also be less.

The hired men on a small farm are likely to be more often unoccupied except at a make-shift job than are those on a larger place.

In plain words this means that the operator has to invest the same amount of money for the minimum equipment whether he works a small or a somewhat larger acreage. But with the larger acreage he has more opportunity of keeping this investment, or the equipment that represents it, constantly employed toward ends that mean a substantial return to him.

The farmer, therefore, ought to control enough land to supply profitable employment for the equipment that he must in any case provide. If manufacturers and railway operators dread equipment that represents "dead" investment, the farmer ought to dread it too. No one has to 'cut closer corners than he.
