FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, Nov. 30—The coming winter promises to be a great season for furs, which means, in view of the prevailing tendency to utter extravagance, that tremendous sums will be spent during the winter months for furs of every description. This winter's modes admit great variety in the lines and general character of the fur coats and even the severely practical coat is no longer uniform as it was a season or two ago. The full length coat has been obliged to share its popularity with the coat of five-eighths length and many chic models are shorter still, while there are countless elegant fur wraps of the cape and mantelet type.

DRAPERY TOO

Drapery has crept into the province of furs and while of course having more limitations here than in frockdom it finds very charming expression in some of the lightest and supplest of the furs. Mole, for example draped very well. Fine baby lamb and caracul are easily handled and even ermine can be made to take graceful drapery lines.

The long, loose, straight fur coat, usually with collar of contrasting fur, is commonly chosen for motoring and hard service, but the dress coat, when not draped, is likely to show its vintage by some note in collar or sleeves. It is fairly sure to have fronts crossing and fastening well to the side. Sometimes it has a Russian air, but more often the fronts cross diagonally and are finished by a big collar or by some sort of rolling collar echoing the lines so popular in the frock collars and separate collars of lingerie, lace or net.

SHORT DRAPED COATS

Certain short draped coats of supple furs rounding away in the front are launched by extremists who are pushing the pegtop silhouette, but they are by no means graceful even for the slender woman and are not likely to be taken very seriously by the women of this country.

Some Russian coats of half length or longer, button up the left front, close on the left shoulder and have high close collars finished at the top by a narrow band of contrasting fur.
A model of this type usually is loosely belted or girdled across the back, if not all round, and the model, while good looking if well worn, is becoming only to the exceptional woman.

SOME WITHOUT COLLARS

Many of the new fur coats are made without collars for greater convenience in the wearing of separate neck furs. Linings are often of the handsome brocades, and in some of the most luxurious garments these linings are so rich in themselves that they add greatly to the cost of the coat.

Fur and draped mantels are much in vogue, and are lovely if worn over velvet or plush frocks without other wrap or drawn about the shoulders when an evening coat or afternoon is discarded. They are made up in various furs but are particularly effective in ermine and, with some costumes, are admirable in mole.

The enormous straight scarfs are still liked and are very cleverly worn by some women who have the knack of adjusting them. If skillful adjusted such a scarf may be substituted for a coat.

Street frocks, visiting frocks, house frocks, evening frocks, all call for fur trimmings and discreetly used these fur trimmings greatly enhance the beauty of any costume. So many of the three-piece and two-piece costumes have fur about the throat that there is an unusual call for hat and muff sets without neck pieces to match, but often the fur trimming is kept away from the throat, so that separate furs or sets with neck pieces en suite may be worn, and sometimes this appears only in some one place on the costume, perhaps a band on the skirt bottom or on a tunic.

GREYS GREATLY LIKED

The grays, particularly in the dark shades, are greatly liked. Taupes have been taken up too enthusiastically by the crowd to retain their prestige and are soon in every grade of costume, but common as the color now is, it has, in handsome materials, much cachet. The dark iron gray and gunmetal too are modish, though more trying than the taupe shades, and there are some lovely quarrel and pigeon grays which make attractive trimming.

ARCHBISHOP'S FAREWELL

In the Cathedral at St. John Friday evening, His Grace Arch-bishop Casey said farewell to the people of St. John. The occasion was marked by the presentation of addresses and burses of gold from the clergy and laity. The presentation from the clergy of the diocese was made by Rev. Dr. A. W. Mehan, and that from the Catholic people by W. J.
Mahoney.

At a recent banquet in Chicago, Charles Murphy expressed the hope that the Cubs and the White Sox would meet for the "City Championship" next fall. Evidently "Chubby" Charles hasn't hopes of his Cubs landing the 1913 pennant.

TENNANT & HOLDER

LAKE GEORGE

Lake George, Nov. 22—The weather for the past few days has been much warmer and we are afraid we are going to lose all our snow.

Mr. Fred Hoyt and Mr. Charles Courtney are busily engaged in hauling hay.

We are sorry to learn that Mr.
Thomas McLean is laid up with a severe attack of pleurisy. She's being attended by Dr. McKenzie.

Mr. Jack McLean is busily engaged in drawing plans for his father's new barn.

Mr. Henry McMurray has purchased a valuable horse and is also looking for a housekeeper.

Mr. George Morecraft is patiently waiting for the snow to disappear from the bushes so he may cut his supply of winter's wood. By the appearance of the weather he will not have to wait long.

Mr. Oscar Morris is busily engaged in sawing pulp-wood.

Mr. Guy McMurray is very much interested in the "Pussy Cat" parties which are being held at Ma-gundy.

Our school is progressing rapidly under the skillful management of Miss Carson of Dumfries.

Quite a number of our young men have taken their departure for the winter.

Miss Nellie Burke has gone to Mc-Adam to spend the winter.

Miss Eva Hoyt is home for a few days.

Mr. Ed. Brownrigg entertained quite a number of young folks last Saturday evening at Mr. Lawson's by singing a number of up-to-date songs, such as "Roses at the Door"
"The Italian Girl" etc.

Almost every Friday night we see the smiling face of Miss Barton, our former teacher who seems to enjoy coming back to this place, very much.

WHITE-SHEPPARD

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, November 27, at the residence of Mr. J. Wesley Sheppard Keswick, when his daughter, Nellie R. was united in marriage to Mr.
Frank G. White of Fredericton, by Rev. L. A. Fenwick, assisted by Rev. H. E. Cook.

The bridal party entered the parlor, which was beautifully dec'rated for the occasion to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, rendered by Mrs. Roy Bartt. The bride was becomingly gowned in a dress of ivory satin with pearl trimmings and was attended by Miss Myrtle Lawrence as bridesmaid and her sister Miss Flrerce, as maid of honor.
The groom was supported by Mr. E.
E. Sheppard. After the ceremony a pertook of the sumptuous wedding supper. The popularity of the principals in this event was amply attested in the numerous and beautif wedding remembrances. The happy couple will reside in Fredericton, the groom being a member of the staff of A. Murray & Co.
