

Like Comfort?

Then what's the use of breaking down your vigor when there's a way to make and keep your daily life comfortable?

Most persons need all the vitality they can secure. Some have an excess and proceed to destroy it with one or more of the sedative drugs among the most common of which are tea and coffee. They could use that vigor to "get ahead" in business or whatever pursuit they are engaged in, but, strange to say, many prefer to nullify it with drugs.

However, each one must make choice and pay the bill.

The one who can cut out tea and coffee when they are known to cause sleepless nights and nervous troubles will surely win the laurels.

The change from tea or coffee and their aches and ills to well-made with health and comfort is really quite easy.

Postum has a dark brown color which changes to rich golden brown when cream is added, and the snappy, distinctive flavour (when made according to directions) is very like the mild, high grades of Java coffee.

The change brings refreshing sleep, drives out the tea and coffee troubles and the old condition of health and comfort returns.

There's really no joy and comfort on earth quite so satisfying as the perfect poise of mind and body, generally yours for the taking.

ELIJAH'S SUCCESSOR IN MAINE ASYLUM

Boston, March 13.—Rev. Arthur Hersey, son of a prominent Woodstock lumber merchant, was taken to an asylum this morning at Augusta, Me. His wife accompanied him to Augusta, as she is anxious to be near him. Rev. Mr. Hersey was, up to a short time ago, engaged in mission work at Vancouver. He claims to have had a message from God to proceed to Shiloh and take over the duties of Rev. Elijah Sanford, who is now serving a term in Atlanta Penitentiary for manslaughter.

THREE KILLED IN HEADON COLLISION

Terre Haute, March 13.—Three train men were killed and several passengers were injured at Green Castle, Ind., last night when East bound passenger train No. 2 known as the "Twenty Four Hour Train, St. Louis to New York," collided head on with a stationary freight train. Confusion of orders is said to have been responsible for the crash.

NAGEL STUMPING NEW ENGLAND

Boston, Mass., Mar. 15.—Presumably to offset the effect of the recent visit of Colonel Roosevelt to Boston, Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel came to New England today to deliver several addresses for President Taft. Mr. Nagel is booked to speak in Springfield tonight and in Providence tomorrow night. Early next week this section is to receive a visit from President Taft himself. The President will be in Boston Monday for the Evacuation Day celebration and will spend the next two days in New Hampshire, where Governor Bass is stirring things up in the interest of the Roosevelt candidacy.

THE NATIONALIST CAUSE RUBBED OFF THE MAP

(H. F. Gadsby in Montreal Herald.)
Ottawa, March 10.—All Gaul, Caesar tell us, was divided into three parts. So are the Nationalists of Quebec. The three parts are:

1. Voters.
2. Members of parliament.
3. Writers and other leaders of thought.

The voters, honest, open-faced, believing in their cause, though under great discouragement, still exist and must be reckoned with. The voters are either very simple, credulous souls, who are led by their feelings, or young college students who like big, unsettling ideas, because they are big and unsettling—in a word, low-brows who do not think and high-brows who do but who are in love with the ferment of new opinions. What they will do when they find that they have been tricked by their leaders, who promised everything and did nothing, is a question. They may accept the fate of third parties in general—the fate of the P.A.A., of the Grange, of the Patrons of Industry, of the Canada Firsts—which is to be swallowed by the party in power—or they may fly into an effective rage and help Laurier to turn the deluders out. Ask a Quebec Liberal what about it, and he will reply: "Time will tell. I stopped prophesying September 21, 1911."

As far as members of parliament go the Nationalist cause rubbed itself off the map in the last five days. It has been working up to this supreme act of self-effacement for the last four months. The rank-and-file Nationalists in the Green Chamber were always ready to oblige with a little crisising, especially after Armand Lavergne's visits. They liked Armand and wanted to give him a good time.

Besides, crisising gave them an appetite for the good dinners with which they were choked off and so the Nationalist M.P.'s, loving Armand, would say good naturedly: "Let the boy have his crisis. Don't send him away crying," and another strike would be pulled off and Premier Borden would get a few more gray hairs in his head, but it would be just fun all the time. Sheer playfulness. No harm meant. Bolting? Well, you might call it that. But they always kept to the track. They never jumped the fence. They may have frisked around a bit at the post and given the starter some trouble, but they had little notion of throwing the race. Come to think of it, your Nationalist bolter doesn't holt very far from his $2,500 a year and pickings.

THEIR LIMIT THE FENCE.

And so it happened that in four months from the opening of parliament nearly all the bolters, kickers and crib-biters had quieted down and become gentle performers under the saddle or in harness and would eat their oats from Premier Borden's hand as peacefully as old Dobbin. For a while it looked as if Sevigny of Dorchester, was going to give them a run for their money with his navy resolution, but it soon transpired that that was Sevigny's way of prancing in front of the grand stand and had nothing to do with his real intention of keeping close to the sweepstakes.

When it came to a showdown on the Manitoba boundary bill the twenty-two rip-roaring, bit-champing ground-pawing, battle-sniffing Buccephalus from Quebec were as tame as gold fish. Bob Rogers had gone round and shot the dope into them that Roblin could be trusted to take care of minority rights in Keewatin and the dope certainly had a soothing effect. All but five of them remembered that they were Conservatives first and Nationalists afterwards, and that their first duty was to stick to the party that was in office. Lamarche, Guilbault, Paquet, Sevigny and Bellemare bolted but not as you might say, badly. They did it as if one bolt was all that could be expected of them and that they would be good and behave ever afterwards.

As for Mondou of Yamaska, he wobbled all over the track, voting one way, speaking another, amending another. Mondou is an epileptic debater. He doesn't argue—he throws fits. His oratorical style may be described as sellit powers, and vichy and must be very alarming to nervous women in the galleries. When Mondou's adjectives begin to fizz they get up his nose and cause him to stutter. Ah, those speeches of Mondou's. As Captain Tom Wallace exclaims when he is wetting Nationalists down in the restaurant upstairs, "Mong Doo, Mondou."

Passing from the common or front row, Blondin, Nantel, Monk, Pelleier—we name them in ascending order of importance—how do they look and act when it comes to cases? What was their stand on the Manitoba boundary bill and the separate schools which they pledged their Nationalist supporters to give in the new territory?

Forgive us while we present a little portrait gallery, a sort of catalogue raisonnee, of the Big Four, in, and to some extent, out of parliament.

Blondin, a tall, solemn, sallow man, forty and portly, a fire-eater in the hustings, a lion's-tail twister, but still as mushrooms in the House. Is a notary by profession, and politician not entirely for his health. Not a word out of Blondin since he came to parliament. Now that he is deputy speaker he considers that his perilous speaking days are over. Least said, soonest mended. Blondin looks on the deputy speakership as a big job, and on the reversion of the speakership, if this government wins again, as a bigger job. Has been stified with five thousand dollars worth of kindness and free quarters. Blondin is a wise young man and a very presentable office of parliament. He said nothing on the Keewatin school question.

Nantel, elderly, stout, comfortable, rosy. In St. Jerome, the village bigwig and chief money-lender. Balzac is full of pictures of just such characters as Nantel, shrewd, thrifty, prosperous, not too remote from the soil. The world goes well with Nantel and he shows it. His fur-lined overcoat says "rich man" more than fur-lined overcoats usually do. He values a dollar but spends his money generously with a view to profitable investment in influential friendships. A good liver and an easy disposition. Unctuous smile like an accident to a butter-tub. Minister of Inland Revenue, a position of much fame and considerable emolument to the country lawyer from St. Jerome. Would give it up, however, for a safe judgeship. Nantel said nothing on the Keewatin school question.

CONTRACTED HEAVY COLD

Was In Bed Two Months.

DOCTORS DID NOT SEEM TO DO HER ANY GOOD.

A cold, however slight, should never be neglected, for if it is not treated in time it will, in all possibility, lead to bronchitis, pneumonia, asthma, or some other serious throat or lung troubles.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains the lung healing virtues of the Norway Pine tree, which, combined with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines, makes it without a doubt the best remedy for all coughs and colds.

Miss N. McCumber, St. Martin's N.B., writes:—"In January last I contracted a heavy cold which kept me in bed nearly two months, and the doctors didn't seem to be able to do me any good. I tried several proprietary medicines, but all in vain. One day a friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and when I had taken three bottles I was completely cured, and I feel as well to-day as I ever did, and I am sure my lungs are once more sound, thanks to that wonderful remedy."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.
