

attendance at the School have been studying Greek, Latin, French, Composition, Natural Philosophy, Geometry, Plane and Solid, and Trigonometry, under the Principal; and Geography, Use of the Globes, History of England, English Grammar, Arithmetic, Reading, Spelling, and Writing, under the English Master. On examining the Writing, the marks of improvement were very visible even in the worst hands. Specimens of English Composition, and Latin and French Exercises, were also examined, and gave much satisfaction both in the writing and grammatical execution. The more advanced students in Geometry elicited applause. And the various Latin, Greek, and French classes gave evidence of the pains that were taken with them, and of great advancement since the previous examination. Their Construing, their Parsing, and their Scanning were alike creditable. The President of the Board announced in his usual terms of commendation, his general satisfaction with the progress they had made, and taking hold of some of the Exercises in English Composition, which were on the subject of Obedience, he added, that he found in them many excellent sentiments which he should like to see practically exemplified, as the result would be a highly striking degree of progress in all their studies.—It was then announced that the holidays would now commence, and the School open again on Wednesday the 5th of January next.—lb.

May they have a safe, speedy and pleasant voyage, and may they meet prosperity and happiness in their new home.—New Brun.

On Tuesday the steamer Pilot, Capt. Leavitt, arrived from Digby and Annapolis with 54 head of cattle on board, besides 300 sheep, and large quantities of dead meats and poultry, which find a ready sale. Turkeys bring 8d. per lb., and 3s. are asked for geese.—lb.

FEMALE EDUCATION.

Last week we made a few observations upon Domestic training, we would follow them up by saying that few persons realize how much may be done in many pleasant ways at home during Vacations and play hours.—Let a parent make a companion of his child, converse with him familiarly, put to him questions, answer enquiries, communicate facts, the result of his reading or observations, to awaken his curiosity, explain difficulties, the meaning of things, and the reason of things—and all this in an easy and playful manner, without seeming to impose a task, and he himself will be astonished at the progress which will be made. The experiment is so simple that none need hesitate about its performance. The first important requisite is, that there be mutual confidence between parent and child; then, in every season, and in every place, there may be such lessons and recitations as shall benefit both; imparting new facts and principles to one, and elucidating new views and giving them new force to the other.

It is of the utmost importance also that Parents should assist the Teacher in every way, for little will be effected in the formation of character without the uniform, steady and strenuous co-operation of the Parent and Teacher. This is a consideration of great importance, and on it too great stress cannot be laid. At the same time too much must not be expected from a scholastic course. The time at school is short, the objects to be attained are numerous, and the obstacles are great. Parents are often led to desire premature evidence of improvement; they wish to see the fabric of knowledge rise like an exhalation; but the faithful teacher aims rather to lay the foundation deep and strong; a part of the building which is concealed from the eye of actual observation, but on which alone a solid superstructure can be raised.

The first thing to be done in this work of co-operation is to see that your children are well furnished with suitable books. Never find fault when you are requested to procure such books as are really necessary, for every farmer and mechanic knows that without suitable implements or tools to work with, he cannot accomplish the labour that he otherwise might. So in school, precisely—good books aid in doing more and doing it better—therefore, do not urge the objection mis-named economy, as a reason for not providing for your children all necessary school-books—and the teacher is, or should be the best judge in this matter.

In the second place, if you would co-operate with the teacher, you must see every morning that your children are made ready and sent to school in good time.

Thirdly, make it a rule to enquire of the children at the close of every day, What have you learned to-day? What lesson, if any, you have failed to recite? &c. &c.; thus showing the children that you feel a deep interest in knowing what they are doing, and thus manifest it by daily watching their progress.

These are some of the ways by which parents may greatly aid teachers in their arduous labours. Without some such aid and sympathy, there is scarcely a more forbidding vocation in which a man or woman with a conscience can be engaged—with sympathy and faithful co-operation from parents, there is hardly a more pleasant employment than that of teaching the young.

MOURING.

The end of all things is Death; business cannot bear us above the current of its black waters. Youth and beauty cannot exempt us from its rigorous exactions; wisdom cannot free us from its heavy claims; wealth can purchase no exemption from its demands; usefulness will not be regarded by its destroying ravages. But to enable survivors to express the sympathy, and to appear in proper habits of Mourning, James Garrett & Co. have made a great reduction in the prices of dress suited for this melancholy occasion; providing for the survivors the appropriate indications of respect for the memory of the departed at a cheap rate.

A Respectable Suit of Mourning—viz: Coat, Vest, and Pantaloon, for £2 10s. 0d. Boys Suits equally low.
