GENS OF POETRY.

Companionship of the Dead.

Of may the spirits of the dead deceased,
To watch the silent slumbers of a friend,
To hover round his evening walk unseen,
And hold sweet converse on the dusky green,
To hail the spot where first their friendship
grew,
And heaven and nature opened to their view.

Unkindness.

Since life's best joys consist in peace and ease,
And though but few can serve, yet all may please.
Oh let th' ungentle spirit learn from hence,
A small unkindness is a great offence.

Never Give Up.

Never give up; for the wisest is boldest,
Knowing that Providence mingles the cup;
And of all the maxims the best, as the oldest,
Is the true watchword, NEVER GIVE UP!

The Family.

CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

OPENING THE GATE.

The following article from the Madison, (Georgia,) Family Visitor, contains a hint which many boys may profit by. There are too many youths who sit down and wait for others to "open the gate" for them when they meet with any difficulty, instead of using their own hands and strength to remove the obstacle.

"I wish that you would send a boy to open the gate for me," said a well grown boy of ten, to his mother, as he paused with his satchel upon his back, and surveyed its clasped fastenings.

"Why, John, can't you open the gate for yourself?" said Mrs. Easy. "A boy of your age and strength, ought certainly to be able to do that."

"I could do it, I suppose," said the child, "but it's heavy, and I don't like the trouble. The servant can open it for me just as well. Pray, what is the use of having servants, if they are not to wait upon us?"

The servant was sent to open the gate. The boy passed out, and went whistling on his way to school. When he reached his seat in the academy he drew from his satchel his arithmetic, and began to inspect his sums.

"I cannot do these," he whispered to his seat mate, "they are too hard."

"But you can try," replied his companion.

"I know I can," said John, "but it's too much trouble. Pray, what are teachers for, if not to help us out of our difficulties? I shall carry my slate to Professor Helpwell."

Alas! poor John. He had come to another closed gate—a gate leading into a beautiful science, "the laws of which are the mode in which God acts, in sustaining all the works of his hands"—the science of mathematics. He could have opened the gate, and entered in alone and explored the riches of the realm, but his mother had injudiciously let him rest with the idea that it is as well to have the gates opened for us as to exert our own strength. The result was, her son, like the young Hopeful sent to Mr. Wiseman, soon concluded that he had no "genius" for mathematics, and threw up the study.

The same was true of Latin. He could have learned the declension of the nouns and the conjugation of the verbs as well as other boys of his age, but his seat mate very kindly volunteered to "tell him in class," and what was the use in opening the gate into the Latin language when another would do it for him? Oh no! John Easy had no idea of tasking mental or physical strength when he could avoid it, and the consequence was that numerous gates remained closed to him all of his life—gates to honor—gates to riches—gates to happiness! Children ought to be early taught that it is best to help themselves.

DISCONTENT.

CHILDREN are apt to murmur and complain when everything does not go exactly right with them; and against this spirit of discontent we wish to warn you now while you are young, as it grows with your growth and strengthens with your strength; and, if there were no sin in so doing, nothing can be more disagreeable and odious than fretting and complaining.

You sit pouting over your slate, and say,

"These sums won't come right!" Depend upon it, it is you who "won't come right," and not the sums. A little girl is sitting on the floor, crying and fretting because her shoe "won't come on." And indeed hardly a day passes in which we do not see some child distressing itself and its parents for nothing, and merely because it indulges in this fretful, discontented spirit.

Few people have everything they wish or everything to suit them, and even these are not the happiest persons. They are happiest who are most content with what they have. People do not always think how great a sin they are committing when they repine at the lot in which God has placed them; but the spirit of discontent is the spirit of rebellion, and the heart is disobedient to God, because it will not submit to what he orders.

Do not let us hear you, then, grumble about the weather, or your food, or your clothing, or about anything you are asked to do: for in the homely rhyme,

"A cheerful spirit gets on quick;
A grumbler in the mud will stick."

Grumbling never helped any one; and, if you will try, the next time you are asked to do a thing which you usually fret over, to do it without fretting you will see that your complaining has always been a sad hindrance.

"Whatsoever thy hand finds to do, do it with thy might," cheerfully, actively, readily; for a half obedience is no obedience at all; and above all, do not fret.

We must give you, in closing, some beautiful lines of French as an illustration of a contented and discontented spirit:

"Some murmur when the sky is clear
And wholly bright to view,
If one small speck of dark appear
In their great heaven of blue;
And some with thankful love are filled,
If but one streak of light,
One ray of God's great mercy, gild
The darkness of the night,

In palaces are hearts that ask
In discontent and pride,
Why life is such a dreary task,
And all good things denied;
And hearts in poorest huts admire
How love has in their aid
(Love that not ever seems to tire)
Such rich provision made."

CHILSON'S

Patent Air Warming and Ventilating Furnace

(FOUR SIZES.)

THE fame of this well known FURNACE has now become so extended that it would become mere supererogation to enter into any elaborate detail of its construction. Since the period of its first appearance, it has attracted the attention, and gained the encomiums of many individuals, who hold high rank in the scientific world—and completed an entire revolution in the construction of House Warmers.

The antiquated and now exploded notion, of obtaining a sufficiency of pure warm air from a small surface of Red Hot Metal, in contact with which, an inadequate supply of Cold Air disseminates into the apartments above a sluggish current of burnt deoxygenated Hot air, unfit for respiration, is rapidly being supplanted by the introduction of our new House Warmers, which, from its peculiar construction, can never become overheated, and by its extensive and well proportioned surface, is capable of warming a large volume of atmospheric air.

Another prominent peculiarity of our Furnace, is its complete adaptation for Wood or Bituminous Coal; the flues being so arranged that they cannot become closed by soot or ashes; this point has never before received the attention of Furnace Manufacturers, and is indeed the only article in which this description of fuel can be used to any advantage.

And when we take into consideration the fact, that this has become the standard on which all new Furnaces are founded, and the only Heater on which attempts at infringement are constantly being made; and add thereto, that it has received numerous Medals and first Premiums from various Scientific Institutions—not to make mention of the "World's Fair," (where, in common with articles for similar purpose, from all parts of the world, it received the GREAT PRIZE MEDAL.)—it must convince every unprejudiced mind that this Furnace already holds the highest rank for the purposes to which it is applied.

Any information respecting our Furnace, or the general subject of "Heating and Ventilation," together with our pamphlets containing Cut of Furnace &c., and an Appendix of over 1000 References, will be promptly forwarded to all who address the Subscribers by Post.

We are also the Agents for, and have constantly on hand, an assortment of the Patent Mirror Marble Chimney Pieces—a new, cheap and elegant substitute for Marble—at prices varying from $18 to $150 each, a sample of which is in possession of the Editor of this paper. Besides the above, we have always in our Warehouse a large stock of Cooking, Office, Hall, and Parlor Stoves, Ranges, Registers, Ventilators, &c. &c., which we are happy to present for inspection at 51 and 53 Blackstone Street, Boston.
