

Poetry.

THE GOLDEN GATE.

A lady stood at the golden gate,
At the golden gate shut close and lorn;
The little spring-birds chirped merry and sweet,
The little spring-flowers sprang up at her feet;
She smiled back a spring-smile, gay and young—
'Twill open, open to me ere long!
'Wait,' said the lady—'wait, wait:
There never was night that had no morn.'

The lady sat at the golden gate;
The May had withered from off the thorn;
Warm July roses crushed cheek to cheek
In a rapturous stillness faint and weak;
And a languid love-air filled the breeze,
And birds ceased singing in nest hung-trees:
'Wait,' said the lady—'wait, wait:
There never was night that had no morn.'

The lady knelt at the golden gate,
The dumb, closed gate—forlorn, forlorn;
The sun laid on her his burning hand,
The reapers' song came over the land,
And the same round moon that lighted the sheaves, Shewed at her feet dead, drifted leaves:
'Alas!' sighed the lady. 'Yet, wait, wait:
There never was night that had no morn.'

The lady crouched at the golden gate, With steadfast watch—but so lorn, so lorn!
The earth lay whitening in one shroud,
The winds in the woods howled long and loud;
Till the frosty stars shot arrowy rays,
And fixed forever her death-strong gaze.
A soul rose singing: 'No more I wait:
On earth was night—in heaven is morn.'

The Sunbeam, Dew-drop, and Rose.

A dew-drop hung trembling like a timid thing Upon the soft velvet leaf of a rose. It sparkled and flashed, each time the breeze wooed the rose buds with myriads of brilliant hues, till it seemed as if a rainbow had been imprisoned within its crystal bosom, and was struggling to escape. Now the rose beheld its beauty, and thought she had never seen so lovely a creature; so she spoke to it gently, in a voice that seemed like the essence of a summer wind.

"Beautiful dew-drop!" said the rose, "I love you. You are like the stars that I see looking down from heaven on me when the winds waken me at night; but I love you more than I do them, for you are near me, and they are far away. Come dwell with me ever, sweet gem of the morning, and to thee will I unlock all the fragrance of my bosom."

The rose as she spoke, unfolded her delicate leaves, until the dew-drop beheld the crimson depths of her heart, glowing with love and passion.
Just then a sly sunbeam peeped out from behind an embroidered cloud, and saw the dew-drop, which was quivering with emotion at the declaration of the rose.

"Heed not that foolish flower, sweet dew-drop!" cried the sunbeam; "she would never love you as I can. Be mine and I will bear thee up amongst the highest stars of heaven, and when I look at thee thou shalt outshine them all."

The dew-drop was bewildered, and knew not what to say. It would gladly have reigned in the golden heavens, and been the queen of the stars, but it feared the fierce ardor of the sunbeam; and then the rose kept whispering such sweet things to it with its mossy lips, that it could not help loving its gentle voice. So it thought a little, and then replied to the sunbeam thus—

"O, golden sunbeam! who gazest at me with thine eyes of splendor; thou art far too great for me to love thee. What would I, a poor, timid dew-drop, do, wedded to such magnificence as thine? At thy first embrace, I should melt away and vanish like the morning mist upon the hills.
But the sweet rose I love dearly. Her kisses are laden with perfume, and from her bosom steals forth all the fragrance of love. O fond and beautiful flower! in thy rosy chalice I will dwell for ever and be happy!"

So saying, the dew-drop slid gently down into the glowing bosom of the rose, and nestled among her velvet leaves.

Sensible dew-drop! well didst thou know that it is not the love that dazzles most which brings the greatest peace. The love of the sunbeam would have been fatal to thee, while that of the rose gave thee happiness and contentment. Love, like the skylark, though sometimes soaring to Heaven, still builds its nest upon the earth!—*Ex-

FEMALE LOVELINESS never appeared to so good advantage as when set off with simplicity of dress; and our dear human angels, if they would make good their title to that name, should carefully avoid ornaments which properly belong to Indian squaws and African princesses. These tinselries may serve to give effect on the stage or on the ballroom floor, but in daily life there is no substitute for the charm of simplicity. The absence of a true taste and refinement or delicacy cannot be compensated for by the possession of the most princely fortune. Mind measures gold, but gold cannot measure mind. Through dress the mind may be read, as through the delicate tissue of the lettered page. A modest woman will dress modestly. A really refined and intellectual woman will wear the marks of careful selection and taste.
