

Mr. Scollard's Bill to extend the Suspension of the Militia Law, passed—extended to 1st May, 1856.

Mr. Wilmot presented a petition from Carleton against voting at St. John Civic Election, without regard to Wards. Also a petition in favor of the erection of a Wharf at Indian Town.

Several petitions presented against the repeal or suspension of the Liquor Law.

On Saturday, Mr. Ryan brought in a Bill to substitute fixed weight, for bushel measure in the sale of Potatoes, Grains, &c.

Tuesday, March 15.—Mr. English, by leave, brought in a bill to erect the Parish of Woodstock, County of Carleton, into three separate towns or Parishes.

Hon. Provincial Secretary laid a communication before the House from the Governor General to the authorities of this Province, acknowledging the receipt of £1000 towards the relief of the sufferers by the fire in Montreal.

The House went into Committee of the whole to take into consideration the Report relative to the Fisheries and Reciprocal Trade.—(Dr. Gordon in the chair.)

Mr. Hanington moved that the Report be adopted, and that an Address be presented to her Majesty, and that the Legislative Council be required to concur therein.

Mr. Williston objected to the wording of the paragraph, which says that the prosperity of the Province does not depend on reciprocity with the United States; the word not should be erased.

Mr. Hanington said he would not go for an Address to Her Majesty that would state that our prosperity depended on reciprocity with the United States; and the report of a select Committee could not be altered; he would press the adoption of the report.

Mr. Johnson said that the words "does not solely depend" might be better, yet taking the whole tenor of the report, it implies that though we can prosper without reciprocity, yet we can better with it. Americans want our fisheries, the navigation of our rivers; but will they give us the registry of our ships? We want to deal as nations and Colonies, as we would as individuals. The only doctrine that can be safely adopted is universal free trade, or a general protection without partiality.

Mr. Harding alluded to language that had been used by Americans, amounting almost to a declaration of war. The Colonies had heretofore been looked upon by Great Britain as administering to her greatness, but the Province is now tied down by restrictions, and if the Mother Country does not give us what we have a right to expect, we must speak in stronger language. He would go that the report and address be received.

The Attorney General said he had read the report carefully, and could coincide with the expressions which it contained. We must look at the fisheries prospectively; the timber of our forests is gradually leaving us, and shortly we must look to our fisheries as the main staple trade of our Province. They must eventually constitute our chief trade, and the Province must in a constitutional manner show to the Home Government the benefit accruing from the fisheries. The treaty of 1818 is the basis on which we must predicate our rights to the fisheries, and we must urge the necessity of our rights in this important source of wealth and trade. There never was a period when we should more forcibly speak out; the prosperity of the Province was not entirely depending on reciprocity, and although it was desirable, yet we should not make too much sacrifice to get it.

Mr. Needham thought the arguments of hon. members premature, as discussion would arise when the address came up. Why, he asked, allow the Americans to participate in the fisheries, when by the Hon. Attorney General's statement, our staple trade prospectively is the fishery? If the treaty of 1818 is the basis on which to predicate our appeal, the right conceded in 1837 gives us the power to keep them, and enter into no treaty. He would warn the Attorney General and would warn the House, that the day was coming when they would repent any treaty that would concede to the Americans the right of catching our fish.

Mr. McLeod considered the reportably drawn up, but agreed with Mr. Needham in many things he had stated, and thought if full participation was allowed the Americans to come within three miles of the shore, our people would soon have to retire three miles from the shore.

Mr. Barberie said that although objections were made to the phraseology of the report, yet it contained in few words a full explanation of our rights. The country had a right to be thankful for the protection afforded last year, and with such protection from the British Government, there need be no fear as to the invasion of our rights.

Hon. Surveyor General thought there was not much to be gained by reciprocity with the United States, and instanced in proof of his opinion, a New-Brunswick farmer shearing his sheep, sending the wool to the State of Maine, and getting sattuinet in return. Such a course of trade being advantageous, he considered a humbug. Water runs as free in New-Brunswick as in Maine, and there is nothing to hinder factories from manufacturing as cheap here as there. The hon. gentleman concluded by hoping that in framing the Address to Her Majesty, careful attention be paid to the Navigation Laws in the Province. They must take a decided stand with the United States, and not give them one iota unless we received a full and fair equivalent.

After some remarks from Mr. Hathoway in favour of reciprocity, the Report was accepted, and the resolution passed to prepare an Address to Her Majesty. Mr. Hanington was named to request the Legislative Council to concur in the same.

Mr. Smith brought before the House certain resolutions asking for information relating to expenses connected with the College.

OXYGENATED BITTERS.

Certificate from a well-known citizen of St. John, New Brunswick.

Exchange Hotel, Boston, Nov. 4th 1850.

Gentlemen—It is with great pleasure that I inform you of the decided benefit I received from the use of the Oxygenated Bitters, which you recommended to me some four weeks since. You know that I was very much debilitated at the time, and unable to walk but a short distance, without stopping to regain my strength. I had been sick so long and was suffering under such a complication of diseases, I had no faith that any medicine whatever could do me much good. The effect of your Bitters upon my system was surprising. I was greatly improved in a few hours, and in three days, felt comparatively well. I have since gained very rapidly in strength and flesh, and have every prospect of recovering my former health, which I never expected again to enjoy.

I have for some years past resided in the Province of New Brunswick. My health has been declining for two or three years past, and about nine months since, I was prostrated by a severe fit of sickness, which confined me to my bed for three or four months, during which time, my life was despaired of by myself and friends; but, by the skill and attention of my physicians (for which I can never be sufficiently thankful, under Divine Providence,) I recovered my health so far as to be able to visit Boston. I was not perceptibly benefited, however, by the change, until I commenced taking your Bitters. The seat of my disease was in the liver, accompanied by extreme prostration, nervousness, and general debility, cold extremities, and a very diminished circulation, which I was obliged to keep up by the use of alcoholic stimulants, only getting temporary relief, and feeling worse without them. Your Bitters immediately restored the circulation, giving tone and energy to the whole system. I consider myself in a better state of health now than I have enjoyed for three years past. I have used but one bottle of medicine as yet, but shall continue the use of them, fully believing, as I do, that they will restore me to perfect health.

I am, gentlemen, with much respect,

Your obedient servant,

FREDERIC J. AYERS.

OBITUARY.

Died, on Thursday 5th March, Laura Frances Sophia Perrigo, second daughter of Asa Perrigo, of Salisbury, Westmoreland, aged 10 years, 11 months and 1 day. For fifteen days and nights we watched by her bedside, during all which time she appeared calm and composed; no murmur or complaint was heard to escape her lips. She seemed to have a knowledge that her end was approaching, and though for the most part of the time too weak to speak, yet a few days before her death she called her brothers and sisters to her and kissed them, and told her sister she was going to Heaven. A little before her speech left her, she took her father's hand and pressed it to her, and when asked if she knew she was dying, with a mild, serene and lovely countenance she said, O yes.

During her illness, friends and neighbours were remarkably kind and attentive, for which they have our sincere thanks, and may rest assured that by us their kindness will long be remembered.

Funeral sermon on Sunday following by her grandfather, the Rev. Joseph Crandal, from Luke x. part of 14th verse, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God."

Fair is the Flower that buds and blooms
And fades and withers and decays;
But fairer far the lovely Flower
That lives and blooms in endless day.
