THE LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS.

Oh! believe not the language of love
Was ever yet spoken with flowers;
'Tis the language of regions above,
And not of a world such as ours.

In the morning of life we all feel
Full keenly, Love's magical dart:
But how can the tongue e'er reveal,
What is known, only known, to the heart?

Use not as Love's type, then, the flower
Whose beauty fades fleetly away;
Whose perfume but lasts for an hour,
Whose freshness is gone in a day.

If the tongue and the lips are too weak,
To express the full force of its power:
If the eye can but look, and not speak,
Oh! what can we say—with a flower.

Frail offspring of earth is the rose,
And to bloom but on earth was it given;
While love, in the heart where it glows,
Is the link that connects it with heaven.

Then believe not the language of love
Was ever yet spoken with flowers;
'Tis the language of regions above,
And not of a world such as ours.

WORKING A TRAVERSE.—The following is the singular history of Mr. Labouchere, at present a member of the British Cabinet.

In 1822 he was a clerk in the banking house of Mr. Hope at Amsterdam, and was sent by his patron to Mr. Baring the celebrated Banker of London, to negotiate a loan.—He displayed in this affair so much ability, that he attracted the attention of the English banker.

"Ah!" said he one day to Mr. Baring, "you have a charming daughter, will you not accord me her hand?"

"Young man no pleasantry! I like you much, but how could Miss Baring become the wife of a common clerk?"

"But," said Mr. Labouchere, "if I were associated with Mr. Hope?"

"Ah, that is very different and would most materially lessen the inequality between you."

Mr. L. returned to Amsterdam, and said to his patron:—

"I must be your partner!"

"My friend, why do you think of that?" You are without fortune, and——"

"But if I were a member of Mr. Baring's family?"

"Indeed! Why, in that case, I would give you a partnership on the spot!"

On the strength of these two promises, Mr. L. returned to England, and about two months afterwards married Miss Baring, because he had the promise of Mr. Hope to make him partner as soon as he was married to her, and became associated with Mr. Hope because he was married to Miss Baring.

NEW GOODS.
