An Incident in School Life.

Incidents triffing in themselves have an important influence in determing the character for life. A word spoken in season, a cruel taunt, wounding the heart to its core, have been the turning points in destiny, and put a young mind on the high road to fortune, or sent it downward to ruin. Almost every person can recall some occurrence in early life which gave tone and impulse to effort, and imbued the mind with principles whose influence is even now controling. We give place to the following true marrative, as an illustration of this fact, and because it inculcates a truth which every man, woman and child may profitably bear in mind.

Years ago, when I was a boy, it was cusspelling schools in the winter term. These gatherings were always anticipated with great | Heaven. interest by the scholars, as at those times it was to be decided who was the best speller. Occasionally one school would visit another for a test of scholarship in this regard. Ah! how the little hearts would throb, and big ones thump, in their anxiety to beat the whole.

Once on a time a neighboring school sent word to ours, that on a certain day in the afternoon, they would meet in our school house for one of these contests. As the time was short, most of the other studies were suspended, and at school and at home in the evenings, all hands were studying to master the monosyllables, dissyllables, polysyllables, abbreviations, &c., &c., which the spelling-books contained.

At length the day arrived, and as our visitors were considered rather our superiors, our fears and anxieties were proportionately great. The scholars were ranged in a standing position, on opposite sides of the house, and the words pronounced to each side alternately, and the scholar that "missed" was to sit down. His game was up.

It did not take long to thin the ranks on both sides. In a short time our school had but eight on the floor, and theirs but six .-After a few rounds, the contest turned in their favor, as they had four standing to our two. For a long time it seemed as though these six had the book "by heart." At length the number was reduced to one on each side .--Our visitors were represented by an accomplished young lady, whose parents had recently arrived in town, and ours by myself, a ragged little boy of ten summers, who had set up night after night while my mother, with no other light than that produced by pine knots, pronounced my lessons to me. The interest of the spectators was excited to the highest pitch, as word after word was spelled by each. At length the young lady missed and I stood alone. Her teacher said she did not understand the word. She declared she did; that the honor was mine, and that I richly deserved it. That was a proud moment for me. I had spelled down both schools, and was declared victor. My cheeks burned, and my brain was dizzy with excitement.

Soon as the school was dismissed, my competitress came and sat down by my side and congratulated me on my success, inquired my name and age, and flatteringly predicted my future success in life.

Unaccustomed to such attentions, I doubtless acted as most little boys would under such circumstances, injudiciously. At this junc-ture, Master G., the son of the rich man, of our neighbourhood, tauntingly said to me, in the presence of my fair friend and a number of boys from the other school-"O, you needn't feel so big-your folks are poor, and your father is a drunkard."

I was happy no more—I was a drunkard's son—and how could I look my new friends in the face? My heart seemed to rise up in my throat, and almost suffocated me. The hot tears scalded my eyes-but I kept them back ; and soon as possible, quietly slipped away from my companions, procured my dinuer basket, and unobserved, left the scene of my triumph and disgrace, with a heavy heart, for my home. But what a home! "My folks were poor—and my father was a drunkard."
But why should I be reproached for that?
I could not prevent my father's drinking, and, assisted and encouraged by my mother, I had done all I could to keep my place in my class at school, and to assist her in her worse than

But there is another part to this story. The other day a gentleman called at my place of business, and asked if I did not recognize him. I told him I did not. "Do you remember," said he, "of being at a spelling-school at a certain time, and a rude, thoughtless boy twitting you of poverty and being a drunkard's son?" "I do most distinctly," said I. "Well," continued the gentleman, "I am that boy. There has not probably a month of my life passed since then, but I have thought of that remark with regret and shame, and as I am about leaving for California, perhaps to end my days there, I could not go without first calling on you, and asking your forgiveness for that act." Boys, I gave him my hand as a pledge of forgiveness. Did I do right? You all say yes. Well, then, let me close as I began. Boys, never twit another for what he cannot help. - Buffalo Courier.

> The first is, "Try your best to make others happy." "I never was happy," said a certain king, "till I began to take pleasure in the welfare of my people; but ever since then, in the darkest day, I have had sunshine in my heart."

> My second rule is, "Be content with little." There are many good reasons for this rule. We deserve but little, we require but little, and "better is little, with the fear of God, than great treasures and trouble therewith. Two men were determined to be rich, but they set about it in different ways: for the one strove to raise up his means to his desires, while the other did his best to bring down his desires to his means. The result was, the one who coveted much was always repining, while he who desired but little was always

THE PRAYERS OF JESUS .-- Some modern Spiritualists have grown so wise that they have got beyond the need of prayer! their natures are so lofty and pure, so etherial and refined, that they are not required to bend the knee and raise the voice of supplication. But if a strong mind does not need the help of religion -if a superior intellect is sufficient to itself. and can dispense with spiritual aid-surely no being ever had such right to discard the forms of devotion as our Saviour. And yet how often did he retire for prayer. The close affaity of his nature to the Divine drew him to it, as the sweetest and holiest communion .-And a sense of the immensity of his work under which his great spirit trembled, threw him upon the help of the Almighty. "When, he had sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray, and when the evening was come, he was there alone."-"And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed." "And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed." On another occasion, he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God."

If our Master found it thus useful to pray if hours of devotion were refreshing to him, they are to us as springs of water in the de-sert. Thoughtful minds love retirement, to commune with Nature and with themselves. Religious men delight in seclusion, because they find the solitude filled with a Divine presence, which shods around tranquility and peace. Moses, Elijah, and John the Bapt ist, prepared themselves for their work by a long retirement from the world. So Christ loved to be alone in the wilderness, or on the mountain the solution of the solution tain top, where none but God could hear.-

EXPERIMENTS WITH MEADOW MUCK .- I have recently witnessed the results of an experiment with meadow muck, which may interest some of your agricultural readers.

This experiment was made on the farm of Rev. Henry Werd Beecher, in Lenox, under the care of Mr. O. C. Bullard, his Brother-in-

Last winter, Mr. Bullard was getting out muck from an extensive meadow, for his barn vard and compost heap. As an experiment, he spread a quantity-between one and two small sled loads-green from the meadow, upon a spot one rod by two, of a mowing field. It was laid on the top of the snow, and an inch and a half or two inches thick. This Spring he covered another similar space. This is in a large field, sloping to the east, that has been laid down to herds grass sever- will be disposed of at reduced prices. al years. There is a good deal of the white weed, or daisy over most of the field, and How TO BE HAPPY .- I will give you two there are numerous little spots where the > where the muck was spread on the snow in the Winter, is covered with a thick, rank, deep green growth of herds grass and clover, and will give at least two thirds more hay than any of the fields around it. It can be seen at a distance, like the spots in a field where there have been manure heaps. The ground is perfectly covered with the grass, giving no signs of moss. This luxuriant growth is overtopping the daisy, none of which is yet in blossom, while in all the rest of the extensive fields, it is in full blossom.

> The spot where the muck was spread this Spring, is distinctly seen; but the crop of grass is not more than a quarter or a third larger than the average around it.

The result of this experiment seems to show, that the muck spread in the Winter together with the snow that it was spread upon, operated as a mulching to protect the roots of the grass from the action of the frost. None of it is thrown out the ground or winter-killed. It has overcome and killed out the moss, and retarded, if not in a great measure destroyed, the daisy, and it has also imparted mellownoss, and, no doubt, more or less richness to will be sold, wholesale or retail, at a very small profit GEO. to be superior to any that I have yet examined. GEORGE F. RC ... Nours, very truly, New York, May 25, 1854.

[From Edwin Bruce.] Mr. Henry Mason,—Dear Sir.—It is with nuch pleasure that I offer my testimony as to the excellence of the improved "Model Melodeons" manufactured by Mason & Hamlin. I have examined them with much satisfaction, am prepared to express my congdent opin-ion, that they are the most perfect Instruments of the kind manufactured, so far as I know. I might mention several points, in which I think they excel, as the following: the Tone, both as regards Quality and Quantity; the Action, which is exceedingly prompt, and the tune, which is as perfect as any instrument well can be. I have no doubt that the " Model Melodeons' are destined to become universal favorites, as they re y deserve. Yours, &c., EDWIN BRUCE Conductor of Music as Bowdoin Street Chusch. ally deserve. MEDICATED INHALATION. — A New Method !—A most wonderful discovery has recently been made by Dr. Curris for the cure of Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Coughs, colds, and all Lung, Complaints, by Medicated Inhalation. Dr. Curris's Hygean Vapon and Cherry Syrup, has accomplished the most wonderful cures of Asthma, and Cousumption in the City of New York and vicinity for a few months past, ever knowe to man. It is producing an months past, ever knowe to man. It is producing an impression on Diseases of the Lings never before witnessed by the medical profession. [See certificates in hands of Agents.]

The Inhaler is worn on the breast under the linen, without the least inconvenience, the heat of the body being sufficient to evaporate the fluid.—aupplying the lungs constantly with a bearing and agreeable vapor, passing into all the air-cells and passages of the lungs that cannot possibly be reached by any other medicine. Here is a case of ASTHMA CURED. BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 20th., 1853.

"After having carefully examined the Melodeons of Messrs. Mason and Hamlin, I am enabled to say, that, in my opinion, they are decidedly superior to any others with which I am acquainted."

[From George F. Root,]

Henry Mason, Esq.,—Dear Sir,—Having had an opportunity of examining Mason & Hamlin's "Model Melodeons." I'm happy to bear testimony to their 1853.—I came to New York in the ship Telegraph CONSUMPTION CURED.—New York, Dec. 27td 1853.—I came to New York in the ship Telegraph my native place is St. John, New Brunswick, when I reached the city, my health was very poor, had a very bad cough, raised a good deal of matter, which was frequently mixed with blood, bad pain in my left side, and was very weak and emaciated. My friends and physician pronounced my case consumption, and beyond the reach of medicine. I accidentally heard of Dr. Curtis's Hygeana, or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup, and obtained a package, which I verily believe was the means of saving my life. Soon after wearing the Inhaler, I found it relieved the pressure on my lungs, and after a while the disease made its appearance upon the Inhaler. I took the Cherry Syrup as directed, and continued to do so, my cough gradually growing better until it entirely left me, and I now consider myself cured. I still wear the Inhaler, as the use of it is rather pleasant, and believing it strengthening and purifying to the lungs. I feel unwilling t present to dispense with it.
