After all, it may turn out that for military easons the Generals resolved to let the e ngineering department, I have never heard it said that our artillery, as long as they had p owder, shot and guns, were not ready to m eet any enemy. But all this has nothing to do with the siege, with exceeding warmth at everything within

EFFECTS OF THE FIRST TERRIFIC

The iron storm tore over the Russian lines, and ruins in their rear. The terrible files of gret also to have to record the death of Captain iron, about four miles in front, rushed across through the heart as he was posting his sentries. the plain, carrying death and ruin with it, to the core. A volley so startling, simulta- greatly distressed. They are strengthening their bably never yet uttered since the cannon found its voice. The Russians seemed for a while utterly paralyzed, their batteries were not manned with strength enough to enable them to reply to such an overlapping and crushing fire; but the French, leaping to their guns with astounding energy, rapidity, and strength, kept on tilling the very air with the hurlling storm, and sent it in unbroken furv against their enemies.

THE BOMBARDMENT SWELLS. More than 200 pieces of artillery of large callibre, admirably served and well directed. played incessantly on the hostile lines. In a few moments a great veil of smoke-" a war cloud rolling dun"-spread from the guns ed up into tumult, or rattled from end to end Nothing is known of the plan of attack. of the line like the file-fire of infantry. Stone walls went down before the guns at once; but the earthworks yawned to receive shot and shell alike. However, so swift and incessant was the passage of these missiles through the embrasures and along the tops of the parapets, that the enemy had to lie close, and could scarcely show themselves in the front line of defences.

RUSSIAN FIRE.

For a few minutes, then, the French had it all their own way, and appeared to be on the point of sweeping away the place without resistance; but, after they had fired a few rounds from each of their numerous guns, the Russian artillerymen got to work and began to return our allies' fire. They made good practice, but fired slowly and with precision, as if they could not afford to throw away an ounce of powder. The French were stimulated rather than impeded by such a reply to their astonishing volleys, and their shot flew with increased rapidity along the lines of the defences, and bounded in among the houses of the town.

REDAN AND MALAKOFF SILENCED. Our Quarry Battery, armed with two mortars and eight cohorns, just 400 yards below the Redan, plies the suburb in the rear of the Malakoff vigorously, and keeps the top of the Redan clear. Redan and Malakoff are alike so that the gabions are sticking out, and are "Moniteur." tumbling down in all directions. There is no more of that fine polishing and of that cabinet makers work which the Russians bestowed on their batteries; our constant fire by night,our riflemen, and incessant shelling have prevented their assiduous anxiety as to external appearance being gratified.

A PAUSE IN THE TEMPEST.

let their guns cool and to rest themselves the Allies, 200 by the Russians. The Russians crept out to repair the damages to their works, and shook sandbags full of earth from the parquette over the outside of their parapets. Their gunners also took advantage of this sudden cessation to open on our sailors' batteries in the left attack, and caused us some little annoyance from the "crow's nest."

It is not known then resumed their cannonade with the same aswhy this evident want of unanimity existed, tounding vigor as at dawn, and at 10 o'clock, and why we did not open fire at the same and never ceased their volleys of shot and shell against the place till 71 o'clock., when dark ness General Pelissier was over at our head, set in, and all the mortars and heavy guns, Engquarters and had an interview with General lish as well as French, opened with shell against the whole line of defences.

DESTRUCTION of RUSSIAN VESSELS. A description of this scene is now impossible. There was not one instant in which the shell s did not whistle through the air-not a momer it in and heavy ordnance and abundance of am- which the sky was not seamed by their fiery munition. I am by no means prepared to curves or illuminated by their explosion. Our practice was beyond all praise. Every shell upon, nor do I insinuate that there was the burst as it ought, and the lines of the Russian smallest want of unanimity between the earthworks, of the Redan, of the Malakoff, and of all their batteries, were rendered plainly visible by the constant light of the bursting shells. "Well, this is a remembering such services, to find fault with sight! to see one of these confounded ships us if we had not accumulated such masses of touched at last!" These and many different and stronger expressions were audible on all sides.

It is not precisely known how the thing was done. Some say it was done by the Frenchothers by ourselves; and bombs, red-hot shot and 1 rench open first, and that the cannonade was rockets have been been variously named as the a. matter of arrangement. THE SECOND DAY'S BOMBARDMENT. SEPT. 6,-Last night a steady fire was kept up along the front, to prevent Russians repairing and meantime our allies are pounding away damages. At 10 p m, orders were sent to our batteries to open as soon as there was a good light next morning, but they were limited to 50 rounds each. At 52, the whole of the batteries from Inkermann to Quarantire opened with a grand crash. The Russians were silent as beore. The cannonade was maintained as it was vesterday. A council of Generals was held to-day at head quarters, the sick were cleared out of the field sault would take place to-morrow, noon. The firing was tremendous all day, but clouds of dust, which a high wind from the north drifted into our faces, rendered a view of the place impossible. SEPT. 8 .- All comers from Balaklava and the rear of the camp are stopped by a line of sentries. Another line of sentries in front prevents any one going as far as Cathcart's Hill, except staff Officers or men on duty. The fire is exceedingly heavy. The assault takes place at noon. The 4th Division is now under arms.

POSITION AND PROSPECT OF THE

ALLIES. The position and prospects of the Allies, as presented by the journals of the countries. are, in the highest degree encouraging and seductive. They are animated by victory, and already rewarded by plentiful spoils; they will assault the enemy from the South and route them; they will send an expedition, by sea, some twenty miles to the North, which descending from that direction on the enemy, again will route them harder than ever; they will go at them behind, on the flank, around, between, above and below, and route them worse than before. Then they have destroyed or rather compelled the Russians to destroy, the fleet that worried the Sultan. Then the Russians have no provisions, or if they have it will now be easy to intercept the supplies; and then the famous silent, ragged and torn. Obituary.

George Whitfield Fowler, son of Deacon Ammon Fowler, of Upham Vale, K. C., departed this life on the 25th of July, 1855, deeply lamented by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. Our much loved friend and brother received his first religious impressions in the days of his early childhood. He entertained the warmest regard for the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ, and for Christian people, from his earliest recollection. He oft wept that the Church in Upham was in that divided state, that he could feel no heart to unite with it. His spirit, when at the Baptist Seminary, in Fredericton, was stirred within him to come out and own publicly his attachment to Christ, which he did in April, 1853. In regard to which we find the following in his journal: "This is a memorable day in my history —a day which records my determination to come out from the world, and join the people of God, as the people of my choice. The day on which I renounce my sins and turn to the open arms of a crucified and risen Saviour. He longed to tell to a dving world the love which he had found in Jesus. And after he left the Institution at Fredericton, he studied in a high school in the United States in view of the Christian Ministry. During the time that he was in the States his letters to his parents and others were soul-cheering, and on his return home his prayers and addresses were of that interesting character, that all seemed struck with the conviction that he was called of God to the work of warning sinners to flee from the wrath to come. His intentions were to return to his studies in Boston this last spring on his return from England and Ireland, to which places he went last Fall-by his Doctor's advice, in order to recruit his health. Finding his health failing, he returned home, and after some months his dear Redeemer reached forth his hand from behind the curtain of Eternity, and took him to himself. He was perfectly resigned, and rejoiced to go home to his eternal rest. Brethren Smith, Jackson, and Burns attended his funeral as also the writer. Bro. Jackson performed the burial services. Bro. Smith preached the sermon from the cheering words-"Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ," and Bro. Burns mingled his tears and exhortions in the service of the day. Deacon-Fowler spoke at the close of the service in a most impressive manner. The assembly was large, and many tears were shed, and we all felt that the day was not very far distant when we should mingle in the society of our dear departed bro-ther in that place where our knowledge will be unerring—our holiness unspotted, and our joy unspeakable and eternal. May God sanctify the bereavement to all our good.

46 Charlotte-street and Reed's Point. DR. NOBLE'S INVIGORATING BALM: This admirable preparation is the most effectual remedy known for Baldness and falling off of the Hair, giving it a rich glossy appearance, unequalled by anything of the kind. It contains no alcohol or alkaline substance, (as all the washes do which are now used,) and will restore the natural colour after those articles have deprived the hair of it. We can refer enquirers to persons, both old and young, many of whom have een bald several years, and have had their hair restored by this preparation. It acts by assisting nature and will in no way prove injurious. Prepared and sold by. FELLOWS & CO.,
