Poetry.

AUTUMN.

Sweet Sabbath of the year. While evening shades decay, Thy parting steps methinks I hear Steal from the world away.

Amid thy silent flowers 'Tis sad, but sweet, to dwell, Where falling leaves and drooping flowers Around me breathe "Farewell.

Along thy sunset skies Their glories melt in shade, And like the things we, fondly prize, Seem lovelier as they fade.

A deep and crimson streak Thy dying leaves disclose; As on Consumption's waning cheek, 'Mid ruin, blooms the rose.

Thy scene each vision brings Of beauty in decay; Of fair and early faded things, Too exquisite to stay;

Of joys that come on more; Of flowers whose bloom is fled: Of farewells wept upon the shore; Of friends estranged or dead:

Of all that now may seem. To Memory's tearful eve, The vanished beauty of a dream, O'er which we gaze and sigh.

Family Circle.

The Soldiers' Return.

DURING our tedious passage to the north, l remarked among the steerage passengers, a man who seemed to keep himself apart from the rest. He wore the uniform of the Foot Artillery, and sported a Corporal's stripes. In the course of the afternoon, I stepped before the funnel and entered into conversation with him, learned that he had been an invalid and sent home from Canada, had passed the Board in London, obtained a pension of a shilling a day, and was returning to a border village, where he had been born, to ascertain whether any of a family were living, from whom he had been separated for nineteen years. He casually admitted, that during this long interval he had held on communications with his relations; and 1 set him down accordingly as some wild scapegrace, who had stolen from home, whose happiness his follies had compromised too often. He showed me his discharge; his character was excellent, but it only went to prove, how much men's conduct will depend upon the circumstances under which they act. He had been nineteen years a soldiers—a man "under authority"—obedient to another's will, subservient to strict discipline, with scarcely a free agency himself, and yet a contented and happy man. He returned home his own master, and older by twenty years. Alas! it was a fatal free agency for him, for time had not brought wisdom. The steward told me that he had run riot while his means allowed it, had missed a passage twice, and had on the preceding evening come on board, when not a shilling remained to waste in drunken dissipation. I desired he should be supplied with some little comforts during the voyage-and when we landed at Beawick, gave him a trifling sum to assist him to reach his native village, where he had obtained vague intelligence that some aged members of the family might still be found.

A few evenings afterwards, I was sitting in the parlor of one of the many little inns visited while rambling on the banks of the Tweed, when the waiteress informed me that a" a soger was speerint after the Colonel." He was directed to attend the presence, and my fellow voyager, the Artilleryman, entered the chamber, and made his military salaam.

"I thought you were now at Jedburgh." "I went there, sir, but there had not been any of my family for many years residing in the place. I met an old packer on the road. and he tells me there are some persons in this village of my name. I came here to make inquiries, and hearing that your honor was in the house, I made bold enough to ask for you.'

"Have you walked over?',

"Tis a long walk. Go down and get some supper before you commence inquiries."

The soldier bowed and left the room, and presently the host entered to give me directions for a route among the Cheviots, which I had contemplated to take the following day. I mentioned the soldier's errand.

"Sure enough," returned the host, "there are an auld dacent couple of the name here. What is the soger called?"

"William," I replied; for by that name his discharge and pension were filled up. "I'll s'ip across the street to the auld folk,"

He found the ancient couple seated at the fire, the old man reading a chapter in his Bible, as was his custom always before he and his aged partner retired for the night to rest. " No," said the landlord, " the man's name is Wolly."

"Then he's nae our bairn," returned the old man with a heavy sigh.

"Weel, weel-His will be done!" said his helpmate, turning her blue and faded eyes to heaven; "I thought the prayer I so often made wud be granted, and Jack would come home and get my blessin' ere I died."

"He has! he has!" exclaimed a broken voice, and the soldier, who had followed the host, unperceived, and listened at the cottage door, rushed into the room and dropped kneelng at his mother's feet. For a moment she turned her eyes with a fixed and glassy stere upon the returned wanderer. Her hand was laid upon his head—her lips parted, as if about to pronounce the promised blessing—but no sound issued, and slowly leaned forward on the bosom of the long-lost prodigal, who clasped her in his arms.

The Unsettled Account.

John L-, who had a large family about ment. him, and who was largely engaged in business for himself and for others. counts, or in looking over the fields. Intelligence of the revival had. reached the ears of L---'s family. His wife desired to attend the meetings, and as he had business to transact in the village, it was arranged that while he was transacting his business, the wife should attend our meeting, and be ready to return with her husband at the close of the morning service. She came to the sanctuary, and it was but a little while before the husband entered also, and took his seat in the rear of the house. God was pleased to accompany the word spoken on that occasion with power to the hearts of many, and among these were Mr. man was under pungent conviction for sin. "the sorrows of death encompassed him, and the pains of hell got hold upon him." His whole frame trembled with emotion, while "drops of grief" rolled down his cheeks in uuchecked streams.

After the services, a meeting was held for conversation and prayer. Many remained, and among them Mr. L- and his wife. Soon he was sobbing like a child, and crying, "O what shall I do?" The whole assembly were moved to tears, while many a thanksgiving went up to God, for the display of his mighty power. We bowed in prayer, and besought God to reveal himself in mercy to the contrite, broken hearted sinner; but the cry of anguish which came from the conscience. smitten soul, rose above the pleadings of the servant of God. It was the pleading of the publican, "God be merciful to me a sinner;" it was the midnight cry of the trembling jailer. "What must I do to be saved?"

Some hours after, he obtained relief to his soul, and rejoiced, believing in God with his companion, and then he rose in the midst of the congregation, and said, "My friend, I came down to this place to day for the purpose of settling my accounts with Mr. E --but not finding him at home I concluded, to come to this meeting, not expecting to be interested or profited, but to pass away the time, and to meet my companion; but I bless God I was brought here. I had hardly taken my seat before I felt that God had a controversy with me, and that there was a long unsettled between me and my God, which it was more important to settle than it was to settle my accounts with my fellow-man; O how many sins rose up before me. My whole life of rebellion and sin appeared to crush me to the earth; but blessed be God, I trust he has pardoned my sins, and blotted out my transgressions. Henceforth my life shall be devoted to his service who had done such great things for me." The next morning, Mr. L--- called all his family together, confessed, with tears, his neglect of duty to them, and asked them to forgive him, solemnly declaring that, by the help of God, it was his purpose to devote himself to the service of his long neglected Lord. He was about to erect a family altar, and to offer his first prayer in their hearing. Such a scene as followed this address-which was altogether unexpected—is not often witnessed. If a voice from heaven had spoken to that household, they could not have manifested more surprise; they were awe-struck. Some of them sat with blanched cheeks, others trembled in every limb; the younger children cried through fear, while all fell on their knees, and the father, amid sobs and tears, offered to God his first prayer around the domestic altar. The conversion of this man was a marked event. There was no doubt or uncertainty in the minds of any concerning the reality of the change. Men " took knowledge of him, that he had been with Jesus."

"Great is the work, his neighbors cried,

For many years he was a most valuable member of the church, ready to every good word and work, instant in season, out of season serving the Lord. He grew in grace, and ripened for glory. When the Master called, he was found ready and waiting, his lamp was trimmed and burning brightly. With joyful anticipation he looked forward to the day of "final reckoning," when he should be accepted in the Beloved, and crowned in everfasting glory. He has joined the church of the first-born in heaven, and his memory is

Dear reader, have you ever considered that God has a long unsettled account against you -an account made up of sins of commission and sins of omission, sins in thought, in word, is to be a day of settlement, a day of final accounts, when the Lord, the righteous Judge, will come and reckon with all his creatures? In that day, and before that bar, we must give an account of our stewardship. Are you prepared to give in your account with joy, and not with grief? That day will be a fearful one to the unpardoned sinner. Now is the day of salvation, now is the accepted time to secure the sattlement with our Lord, who is ready to pardon iniquity, transgression, and sin, and frankly to forgive the bankrupt sinner. Going in at the Eleventh Hour 'And about he eleventh hour he went out. and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?"-Matt. xx, 6.

An old sailor, who was very ragged, and whose white head spoke the lapse of years, was leaning against a post in conversation with another sailor. A member of the Bethel Union spoke to them, and particularly invited the old man to attend the prayer meeting. His companion, after hearing the nature of the invitation, said,

"Thomas, go in. Come! come! man, go into the meeting; it won't hurt you."

"Puh! puh!" cried the old seaman, " should not know what to do with myself. I never go to church or prayer-meetings; besides, I am too old. I am upwards of seventy; I am very wicked, and have always been so; it is too late for me to begin; it is of no use; all is over with me: I must go the devil."

After a moment's pause, the member, looking with pity upon the old veteran, answered, "You are the very man the prayer-meeting is held for."

' How so?" with much surprise. "Because Jesus Christ came into the world to save the chief of sinners. When young, suppose you were tempted to think it would be time enough to be religious when you came

" Ah, that I did," replied the sailor.

" Now you are old, you say it is too late. Listen no longer to these suggestions; come with me; no time is to be lost, for Jesus is waiting to save you, poor sinner, or he would have sent you to that place where hope never comes before this; your sins deserve it."

His companion then said, "Thomas, go to he prayer meeting. You have need, at v time of life, to prepare to die."

He went, and attended regularly. Some time after, he was asked, "Well, my aged friend, do you think you are too old in years to be saved? too old in sin for the blood of Christ to clease you?"

"No, sir," said he, "I bless God I do feel hope,—a blessed hope, which I would not give up for worlds-a hope which encourages me think that God will be merciful to me, old sinner as I am."

Origin of the Term Protestant.

The name of Protestant took its rise from the following circumstance: At a diet of the princes of the empire, held at Spires, in Germany, in the year 1529, it was decreed by the majority there present, "that in those places where the edict of Worms had been received, it would be lawful for no one to change his religion; that in no places where the new religion was exercised, it should be maintain. ed till the meeting of a council, if the ancient religion could not be restored without danger of disturbing the public peace; but that the mass should not be abolished, nor the Catholics hindered from the free exercise of their religion, nor any of them allowed to embrace Lutherianism; that the Sacramentarians should be banished the empire; that the Anabaptists should be punished with death; and that no preacher should explain the gospel in any other sense than what was approved by the church." Six princes of the empire their protested against this decree, viz : John, elector of Saxony ; Gerge, margrave of Brandenbung; Earrset and Francis, dukes of Brunswick and Lunenburg; Philip, landgrave of Hesse; and Wolfgang, prince of Anhalt; to these were joined the following free cities of Germany, viz: Strasburg, Nuremburg, Ulm, Constance, Lindlaw, Meinmingburg, Kempen, Nordlingen, Halibrun, Reutlingen, Isne, St. Gall, Wessenburg and Windscheim; and from this protest the Lutherans first obtained the name of Protestant s which was afterwards given in common to all who separated themselves from the practices of the church of Rome.

CHOLERA.

A certain eure for this disease may be found in the use of Perry Davis' Vegetable PAIN KILLER.
Sr. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sir. —I felt it a duty I owe to the public, to make known the value of Davis Pain Killer, and my experience in using it for some of the complaints for which it is highly recommended. In April last, on your recommendation, I purchased a one dollar bottle of you for pains with which I have long been afflicted, and made use of it on my trip down to New Orleans, with the most gratifying and beneficial effects.

On my return trip to this city, the Cholera made its appearance among some of my passengers. I made appearance among some of my passengers. I made use of the Pain Killer, having no other remedy on board, and to my surprise and gratfication found it gave immediate relief. On my arrival in St. Louis, I called on you and got four large bottles, and stated to you my confidence in it as an infallible Cholera remedy, and remarking to you that I wanted no other Cholera remedy on my boat. I made use of the four bottles on my trip to New Orleans and back, for Cholera and some other complaints for which it is recommended, and met with the most astonishing success-when I ordered from you six more one dollar bottles. Since then I have made two more trips to New Orleans and back, and on my previous trip up, I had more than Seventy cases of Cholera on board, when the PAIN KILLER was immediately used with the most astonishing results. In all cases where it was used in time it gave relief in a very short time; and I can with confidence say to the public, that in all o the first stages of Cholera, when taken in time, it is in my opinion an infallible remedy: and after a fair trial with it for several weeks, and for four trips to New Orleans and back, and using it for Cholera and for other complaints for which it is recommenced, no consideration whatever would induce me to leave port without a good supply—believing it to be a medicine that no officer of a boat or any family would be without a single day after using one bottle.

J. M. BROADWELL, Capt. Stm'r Atlantic.

I most cordially unite with Capt. Broadwell in re-commending Perry Davis' Pain Killer to the public, having myself been severely attacked with the Cho-lera, and found relief in a few hours by using the Pain Killer, and have administered it to more than fifty persons attacked with the Cholera, and when used in time, a cure was effected in a few hours, and take pleasure in recommending it to the public as an in-valuable medicine, that no individual should be without a single hour.

Perry Davis—Six:—The benefits I have received from the use of your invaluable remedy, the Pain Killer, induces me to pen a word of praise for it. Experience has convinced me that for Headache. I am confident that through the blessing of God, it saved me from the cholera during the summer of 1849. Travelling amid heat, dust, toil, change of diet and constant exposure to an infected atmosphere, my sys tem was daily predisposed to dysentary, attacks, accompanied with pain' for which the Pain Killer was a sovereign remedy: one teaspoonful curing the worst case in an hour, or at most, half a day !—My brothers in the ministry have used it with much success in various diseases I have heard many cases the country over, of Dysentary being cured by its use. Put in the teeth, it would stop the tooth-ache.

Gratitude, and a desire for its general use, has drawn from me this unsolicited testimonial in its

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVER Y

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after a trial it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that apntself. There are two things about this herb that appears to me surprising; first, that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plential, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1846—second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles her day: in April, 1864, I sold over one thousand bottles per day of it.

In my own practice 1 always kept it strictly for humors—but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and conderful virtues have been found in it that I never suspected.

Several cases of epileptic fits—a disease which was always considered incurable, have been cured by a few bottles. O, what a mercy if it will prove effectual in all cases of that awful malady—there are but few who are seen more of it than I have.

I know of several cases of Dropsy, all of them aged people, cured by it. For the various diseases of the Liver, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Asthma, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side, Diseases of the Spine, and particularly in diseases of the Kidneys, &c., the discovery has done more good than any medicine ever known.
