

may in reference to the North-Esk chapel, that, "we were obliged to abandon it during the winter, in consequence of it having been plastered." It should read, "not having been plastered." The weather is hot and the crops abundant.

NEWCASTLE, GRAND LAKE, Aug. 23, 1856.

Dear Brother, I have just returned from Little River, Sheffield, (one of my preaching stations) where I have witnessed a very glorious revival. I have baptized, during the last few days, fifteen happy converts and the work is still progressing. Brother G. W. Springer has been with me and rendered valuable assistance. He is becoming increasingly useful in the gospel ministry. A few brethren who were organized into a church at Little River several years ago, by Elder Clark, are much encouraged, and in view of the large additions made to their number, they exclaim, "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." It is truly the work of the Lord. I have seldom witnessed a more glorious season. The sovereign grace of God has been displayed in causing many stubborn hearts to bow in submission to his will and humbly embrace the religion of Jesus. After preaching here to-morrow morning I expect to return to Little River, when I hope to baptize more converts and to eliminate the Lord's Sinner.

Yours, in Christ,
Isa. Walker.

County of Kent, N. B.

The Registrar of the County of Kent, N. B., under date of the 19th inst., writes as follows: "To-morrow is to be the day of nomination, when a fit and proper person is to be named to fill the seat vacated by the acceptance of the Surveyor Generalship by the Hon. John Montgomery. Mr. M. will be re-elected without opposition. The appointment of Mr. Montgomery has given great satisfaction throughout the County. The people look upon it as a just reward for his long and (to the County) valuable public service, and also as a recognition of the fact that North's right to a share of the 'loaves and fishes.' True it is that the South has too long monopolized the sweet morsels, and rolled them under their tongues with a gusto, which should cause the North could not enjoy them. I look upon Mr. M. being so well qualified as any non-scientific (or non-professional) man who has hitherto filled the Office."

Campbell is not a Port of Entry. C. Borsford, Esq., Deputy Treasurer, and J. S. Moser, Esq., late water of the same.

"These appointments are perhaps in the abstract unexceptionable, but they are at the same time peculiar. Two lawyers. The Profession must be at a discount, and law at a low ebb. May I say—ergo—the County prosperous. They in honor ought to abjure their gown in future, and confine their attention exclusively to 'Advocates, Permits, Packages, Punctures, Warehousing.'"

The Executive Council is in Session here at present; but it is more than whispered that its head and heart, the Hon. Mr. Chandler, is about to dissolve his connection with the Body, and the rumors are not all improbable.

The wheat is committing great ravages in the wheat crop in Prince Edward Island. It is feared that it will be almost a total failure.

The Episcopal Clergy are at present here from all parts of the Province. On Wednesday the Lord Bishop delivered his triennial charge, which is spoken of as an able production. We understand that the synodical subject will occupy the attention of the convocation, but with what degree of unanimity we have not learned.

CASTAWAY AT PICTON. We learn from the Eastern Chronicle that a ship-carpenter named James Lawdon, a worthy man, was killed last week at River John, while engaged in raising the stern-post of a new vessel, which fell upon him, fracturing his skull.

A lad of eleven years, son of Mr. James Head, was drowned at Picton on Saturday week. He was playing in a canoe with three other boys, without paddles, and the wind driving them off the shore, they all leaped overboard and swam for the land, but sank before reaching it. Aid being at hand, the other three were rescued, although they were far gone.

The weather at Picton has been very unfavorable for harvesting, and the blight appears to be spreading among the potatoes.

CONGRESS. The extra session of Congress was convened on Thursday, the 21st, and a quorum of both Houses being present, business was immediately proceeded with.

Thirty-eight Senators and one hundred and seventy members of the House were in attendance. In both houses the old standing Committee were continued. Thus far the session has been occupied almost entirely in efforts to reconcile the two houses upon the Army Bill. Both continue to adhere, however, to their respective action, and there seems to be no prospect of a settlement of the difficulty, unless the arrival of members now absent, alters the state of affairs.

The citizens of New York have remitted to the sufferers by the inundation in France the sum of ten thousand dollars, which, with the amount already forwarded by the French residents, is equal to 100,000 francs.

THE GREAT STORM. The great storm of last week did serious damage to crops, bridges, &c., along the Hudson River and its tributaries; also on the Connecticut River. The lower part of the city of Albany was submerged. Four bridges in the neighborhood were carried away, and many manufactories were more or less injured. It is estimated that between Hudson and Yonkers the destruction of property is not less than $200,000.

The Hartford Courant says: "The Commodore, which as far back as the memory of man goes, has been peaceful and calm in August, has got her temper up, and for hundreds of miles along her banks destruction reigns. Men and beast suffer, crops destroyed, property injured, business stopped, and the rich and poor in trouble."

The steamer Nautilus, from Galveston for New Orleans, with live stock and passengers, which was out in the late terrible storm that produced such devastation at East Island, is undoubtedly lost. The steward of the Nautilus has been picked up off the Banks, and is unable to give any account of the fate of the vessel.

EUROPE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor arrived at Paris from Plombières, at half-past six on Saturday evening. His Majesty was received at the Strasbourg station by their Excellencies the Ministers, the Prefect of the Seine and his Secretary-General, the Prefect of Police, and the directors of the railway. His Majesty entered an open carriage, accompanied by his Aide-de-Camp General Espinasse, the Prince de la Tour d'Auvergne, and the Marquis Lagrange, and proceeded to the Tuilleries, where the Empress was awaiting his arrival. Their Majesties then left together for St. Cloud. His Majesty was enthusiastically cheered by the population on the Boulevards and at the railway station.

His Majesty, says the Moniteur, "is in the enjoyment of perfect health." At St. Cloud a letter from Vienna of the 4th, in the Bourne Gazette, says: "A conference, which lasted several hours, took place yesterday between the Ambassador at Naples, Prince Petrucci, and Count Buol, previously to which the latter had conversed at length with Baron de Brouquembourg. Count Buol again pointed out to the Ambassador of the Two Sicilies the grave nature of the existing circumstances, and assured him that, in the event of the representations of the Western Powers not being hearkened to, the latter would assuredly break off diplomatic relations with the Cabinet of Naples, and reserve to themselves future measures. Count Buol added that Austria, having exhausted all means of persuasion, would only oppose a passive attitude to the ulterior steps of the Western Powers. He recalled the attention of Prince Petrucci once more to the danger to which the conduct of the Neapolitan Government exposed not only the kingdom of the Two Sicilies, but all Italy, a danger to which Austria could not remain indifferent. Prince Petrucci appeared penetrated with the truth of these observations, and promised to do all he could to modify the present position, and he hinted that the Neapolitan Cabinet had begun to hesitate in its policy, and that he hoped before long to transmit certain concessions which would respond to the principal demands of the Western Powers. Immediately after this interview despatches were sent from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and from the Neapolitan Embassy to Naples."

A Paris letter of the 2nd, in the Augsburg Gazette, says: "Baron Brenier, Minister of France at Naples, yesterday informed the French Government by a telegraphic dispatch that the King of Naples had at last resolved on making some modifications in the policy of severity which he has hitherto followed. On the 28th ult. it is stated that King Ferdinand signed several pardons of persons condemned for political offences, and Baron Brenier expressed the firm assurance that in a short time still more important proofs will be given that the internal policy of the King has become milder. Thus the difference between the Government of the Two Sicilies and the Western Powers has taken a favourable turn, and this result must be ascribed principally to the intervention of the Austrian cabinet. It is known that the reply of King Ferdinand to the note of the Cabinets of London and Paris was a refusal, and that the King himself inserted in it some passages which might have personally offended the Emperor Napoleon. The cabinet of Vienna considered that this was a great fault on the Neapolitan Government, and one which might have produced grave consequences. Accordingly Count Buol attempted to recommend to the Austrian Minister at Naples to do all that was possible to induce the Neapolitan cabinet to repair the harm done before the Emperor Napoleon should adopt some energetic measures. The good advice of the cabinet of Vienna has this been attended with full success, and by the acts of grace to which we refer the relations of Naples with the Western Powers have entered into a new line. There is reason to hope that all the differences will be removed if Austria continues her mediation."

The Paris correspondent of The Times thinks he deserves a probable popular rising in Naples. The account, he writes from that city, "exhibits a state of things in that capital which would hardly leave us much room for surprise if any day a telegraph brought us news of a revolutionary movement. Discontent grows bolder, and has spread to the army, and the vigilance of the police no longer prevents in the open streets, conversations and criticisms hostile to the government. Although the steps taken by the Western Powers have as yet produced no result in the quarter to which they were directed, although the remonstrances of France and England have been unheeded, and those of Austria (if really made and not counterbalanced by a private understanding) have not yet had time to bear fruit, the fact of English and French expostulations, and of the attention and sympathy which their condition excites in Europe, is well known to the Neapolitans, and doubtless contributes to arouse them to the assertion and defence of their rights as men; and to resistance of the tyranny under which they suffer. There are clandestine presses at Naples, where information interesting to the popular cause is printed, and whence also issue proclamations, which are widely circulated, and which incite to calm order, respect of property, and to their utmost to let it be seen that it is not anarchy, but justice and humanity, oppressed beyond endurance that array themselves against the Government. We are told by a correspondent from Italy, that many military men are heard to speak disrespectfully of the Government, and that the native troops are impatient at seeing all the honors in the hands of the Swiss. The feeling here among persons well-informed, and available to appreciate the situation is that we shall quickly hear of an outbreak."

A striking anecdote of the Madrid coup d'etat is given by a writer in the Times. "The day on which the Council of Ministers was held, when Espartero presented his resignation to the Queen, the two Marshals (Espartero and O'Donnell) happened to meet on the staircase of the palace, as one was quitting it and the other entering. 'I fully expected what has happened,' Espartero said. 'So did I,' was the reply. 'Some day a full responsibility will be exacted of you for what has occurred,' said Espartero. 'It is you who are responsible,' O'Donnell replied, 'for what has taken place for the last two years (forgetting that he, O'Donnell, was his colleague the whole of that time). Now I have the upper hand, and I will and shall conquer, or I will fly Madrid in ruins (corresponding to Madrid), and if I am driven to extremity I will carry off the Queen by force, if necessary, and deposit her in a place of safety.' The news of the surrender of Saragossa is now fully confirmed, and the details given. General Espartero and all who resisted were permitted to withdraw into France; and the National Guard were required to surrender their arms; the other troops are to be reorganized. Gen. Dulce published a proclamation to the inhabitants, of a rather generous character, for a victor on the side of despotism.

Espartero has left for Logrono, and at an audience to take leave of the Queen and King, had been received by their Majesties with their customary kindness. This interview, according to the Epoca lasted a long time, but without anything important taking place at it. The following are the terms in which it relates the interview between Espartero and the Queen: General Espartero having obtained an audience to take leave, was received by their Majesties on Sunday week at six in the evening. The Queen, as it appears, began the interview, by addressing to him these words: 'Duke, how have you been since we saw each other? Where have you been, that neither I nor any one have heard anything of you?' These two questions made a deep impression on the General, who simply replied: 'Madam, I retire into private life. I can no longer serve either my Queen or my country; but at Logrono I shall pray to Heaven for my Queen and my country. I shall not be faithless to my oath; nor to the flag which I have sworn to defend. I retire to my private house, and there (if I be allowed to remain undisturbed, which I do not believe) my body may be broken, but not my spirit.' The General then took leave of their Majesties, kissing their hands, and the Queen charged them with compliments to the Duchess to Victory.

The South is quiet, but disturbances, as might be expected, have not altogether ceased. We find from the Spanish journals, that (Aug. 6th) Carlist chiefs are at the head of the bands that overrun Catalonia at this moment. By a royal decree, published in the Gaceta of the 7th, the resignations of M. M. Olazaga and Gonzalez of the posts of ambassadors at Paris and London have been accepted. It is said that General Serrano has been appointed as ambassador to Paris.

Russia. Accounts reached Berlin, on Tuesday last week, that the vessels of the English squadron still in the East had received orders to concentrate themselves in the Black Sea, in order to watch over the execution of Art. 20 of the treaty of peace, which is still remaining unexecuted, in consequence of the non-restoration of Kara, and the occupation of the Isle of Serpents by the Russians. The same account adds that Russia having made concessions on the above points, the English Admiral had now received a counter-order, and that the affair was being arranged.

It is stated that the Austrian cabinet has addressed a note to Russia couched in extremely energetic language, and containing a serious protest against the Russian occupation of the Isle of Serpents, at the mouth of the Danube. It sets forth that one of the principal results obtained by the treaty of peace—viz., the free navigation of the Danube, would be endangered and even neutralized by this measure.

A letter from the frontiers of Poland says that all the hopes entertained in that province of political amelioration and development of internal interests have completely vanished. Prince Gortchakoff had not responded to the expectations of the Poles.

The Emperor and Empress of Russia have gone to Helsingfors, in the Gulf of Finland, to inspect the fleet, under the command of the Grand Admiral. Their Majesties intend to proceed thence to Helsingfors, to visit their son.

Le Nord announces that the coronation of the Emperor Alexander at Moscow will not take place before the 7th of September, and that His Imperial Majesty will not make his entry into the city before the 25th of this month.

The Russian authorities have resumed the exercise of their functions, throughout the whole extent of the Crimea.
