THE FREEMAN'S HOME. BY J. G. WHITTIER.

Land of the forest and the rock-Of dark-blue lake and mighty river-Of mountains, reared aloft to mock The storm's career, the lightning's shock.

My own green land forever! The freeman's home—the martyr's grave— The nursery of giant men, Whose deeds have linked with every glen, And every hill, and every stream, The romance of some warrior dream!

O never may a son of thine, Where'er his wandering steps incline, Forget the sky which bent above His childhood, like a dream of love-The stream beneath the garden hill flowing, The broad-armed trees above it growing, The clear breeze through the foliage blowing, Or hear unmoved the taunt of scorn Breathed o'er the brave New England born, Or mark the stranger,s juguar hand

Disturb the ashes of thy dead, The buried glory of a land Whose soil with noble blood is red, And sanctified in every part-Nor feel resentment, like a brand, Unsheathing from his flery heart!

O greener hills may catch the sun Beneath the glorious heaven of France; And streams, rejoicing as they run,

Like Life beneath the day-beam's glance," May wander where the orange-bough With golden fruit is bending low; And there may bend a brighter sky O'er green and classic Italy-And pillar'd fane and ancient grave But record of another time, And over shaft and architrave

The green, luxuriant ivy climb; And far toward the rising sun, The palm may shake it leaves on high, Where flowers are opening, one by one, Like stars upon the twilight sky; And breezes soft as sighs of love Above the broad banana stray,

And through the Brahmin's sacred grove A thousand bright-hued pinions play! Yet unto thee, New England, still

Thy wandering sons shall stretch their arms And thy rude chart of rock and hill Geem dearer than the land of palms; The massy oak and mountain-pine More welcome than the banyan's shade,

And every free, blue stream of thine Seem richer than the golden bed Of oriental waves, which glow And sparkle with the wealth below !

Family Circle.

Wreck of Genius,

Genius and dissipation have too often been yoked in intimate fellowship, and many more intellects have been clouded and debased by a fatal love for the wine-cup. There is no sadder page in the literary history of this country than the life of Ed gar A. Poe, a man of erratic but brilliant genius, whose fragmentary productions are stamped with the highest originality, but who was wrecked early in life by a passion for the intoxicating bowl, and died a victim to his insane thirst. Dr. Snodgrass, the clergyman who attended him in his last sickness, gives an affecting narrative of his dying hours in the Woman's Temperance Paper of New-York :-

"On a chilly and wet November evening I received a note stating that a man answering to the name of Edgar Allen Poe, who claimed to know me, was at a drinking saloon in Lombardstreet, in Baltimore, in a state of deep intoxication and great destitution. I repaired immediately to the spot. It was an election day. When I entered the bar-room of the house, I instantly recognized the face of one whom I had often seen and knew well, although it wore an aspect of vacant stupidity that made me shudder. The intellectual flash of his eye had vanished, or rather had been quenched in the bowl, but the broad capacious forehead of the author of "The Raven," as you have appropriately designated him, was still there; with width in the region of ideality, such as few men ever possessed. But perhaps I would not have recognized him had I not been notified of his apparel. His hat-or rather the hat of somebody else, for he had evidently been robbed of his clothing, or cheated in an exchange-was a cheap palm leaf one, was without a band and soiled; his coat of commonest alpacca, andfevidently second hand; and his pants of grey mixed cassimere, dingy and badly fitted He were neither vest ner neckcloth, if I remenber right, while his shirt was sadly crumpled and soiled. He was so utterly stupefied with liquor that I thought it best not to seek recognition or conversation, especially as he was surrounded by a crowd of gentlemen actuated by idle curiosity rather than sympathy. I immediately ordered a s pom for him where he could be comfortable entil word to his relatives-for there were seves al in Baltimore. Just at this moment one or t wo of the persons referred to, getting information, arrived at the spot. They declined to take private care of him, for the reason that he had been very abusive and ungrateful on all occasions when drunk, and advised that be sent to a hospital He was accordingly placed in a coach and con veyed to the Washington College hospital, and put under the care of a competent and attentive resident physician of that Institution. So insensible was he, that we had to carry him to a carriage as if a corpse. The muscles of articulation seemed paralyzed to speechlessness, and mere incoherent mutterings were all that were heard, He died in the hospital after some three or four days, during which time he enjoyed only occasional and fitful seasons of consciousness. His disease, as will have been anticipated, was mania n potu; a disease whose finale is always fearful in its maniacal manifestations. In one of his more lucid moments when asked by the physicien whether he would like to see his friends he exclaimed: "Friends!-My best friend would at Baltimore. The truth, as I remarked, is bad humor. enough, and discreditable enough to his relatives, not to say the city where he died. He was interred in an old Presbyterian burying-ground in Green-street, which has not been used for many years. On a portion of it a church has since been erected, but not over his grave. In the removal of the dead which will sooner or later take place, it is quite probable the bones of " Poor Poe" will be collected among the remains of the friendless and the unknown, and removed beyond recognition, for nothing but a couple of pine boards were country in the old Congress as Adam's fire placed at his grave, in lieu of grave-stones.

How to put off the Old Man .-- A into acquiescence. Keep in good humor. Fact.

Pass your hand over Deacon M.'s head, and about an inch and a half above, and a little forward of the ears, you find a protuberance which phrenologists call the bump of acquisitiveness.

By nature the Deacon loved mammon; by grace he loved God. Between them there was continual war. Both fought-one like Michael, and the other like the devil. As there was long war between the house of David and the house of Saul, so there was long war in the earthly house of the deacon.

As with Gad, so with the deacon; a troop overcame him, but he overcame at the last, as appears by the following circumstance:

In the same church with deacon M. was a poor brother. This poor man had the misfortune to lose his cow. She died. To get him another, the good deacon headed a subscription with five dollars, and paid it. This act disquieted mammon. Maminon, with true Iscariot zeal, began to rant and rave: "Why this waste? charity begins at home; the more you give the more you may; let people learn to take care of themselves."

The deacon was a Baptist; but he found that the baptismal water did neither drown wash away, nor wash clean the old man. The tempter backed mammon, and putting a glass to the deacon's eve, showed him, not the kingdoms and glories of this world, but the poor-house, wretchedness, poverty, and rags, and said, "All these things will your master give you in your old age as a reward of your charity."

To still these clamors, Deacon M. went to the destitute man, and told him he must give back the five dollars. The poor man returned it. This last act aroused the new mun, and now nature chinson, Dalhousie. and grace stood face to face.

To give, or not to give, that was the question. There stood the deacon, poising and balancing, and halting between two opinions. The deacon spoke : " My brother, some men are troubled with their old women; I am troubled with my old man. I must put off my old man, as the Jews put off their new man-crucify him, crucify him." Then unstrapping his pocket-book, he took out a ten said the deacon, "say another word, and I'll give John, for Providence. him twenty dollars." - Christian Secretary.

Life in a Powder Mill.

Dickens thus describes a visit to the Powder mill of Hounslow, near London :-

In this silent region, amid whose ninety-seven work-place no human voice eyer breaks upon the ear, and where, indeed, no human form is seen except in the isolated house in which his alloted task is performed, there are upward of two hundred and fifty workmen are employed. They are a peculiar race, not, of course, by nature, in most cases, but by the habit of years. The circumstances of momentary destruction in which they live, added to the most stringent and necessary regulations, have subdued their minds and their feelings to the condition of their hire. There is seldom any need to enforce these regalations. Some terrific explosion here, or in works of a similar kind elsewhere, leaves a fixed mark in their memories, and acts as a constant warning. Here, no shadows of a practical joke or caper of animal spirits ever transpires-no witticism, no chaffing, or slang.

A laugh is never heard; a smile seldom seen. Even the work is carried on by the men with as few words as possible, and these uttered in a low tone. Not that anybody fancies that mere sound will awaken the spirit of combustion or cause an explosion to take place. but that their feelings are alway kept subdued If one man's wishes to communicate one thing to another, or ask for anything from somehody at a short distance, he must go there; he is never permitted to shout or call out. There is a particular reason for this last regulation. Amid all this silence, whenever a shout does occur, everybody knows that some unminent danger is expected the next moment, and all rush away headlong from the direction of the shout. As to running toward it to offer any assistance, as is common in all other cases, it is thoroughly understood that none can be afforded. An accident here is immediate and beyond remedy.

If the shouting be continued for some time, (for a man might be drowning in a river,) that might cause one or two of the boldest to return ; but this would be a very rare occurrence. It is by no means to be inferred that the men are selfish and insensible to the perils of each other; on public in general. the contrary, they have the greatest consideration of each other, as well as for their employers, and think of the danger to the lives of others, and of property at stake at all times, and more especially in the more dangerous houses. The weil proprietors of the various gunpowder mills all knows of their effects. hisplay the same consideration for each other, and whenever any improvement tending to lessen danger is made by one, it is immediately New Prints and Engravings. men are good, and the hours very short : no artificial lights are ever used in the work. They leave the mills at half-past three in the afternoon,

Good Humor.

Keep in good humor. It is not great calamities that embitter existence; it is the petty vexations, the small jealousies, the little sappointments, the minor miseries, that ake the heart heavy and the temper sour.

Corner Dock Street and North Wharf, make the heart heavy and the temper be he who would take a pistol and blow my brains out, and thus reheve me of my agony." These were among his last words.

Now for the manner of his burial.

The exclaimed: Friends: My oct the mean flow of the heart heavy and the temper soul.

Don't let them. Anger is a pure waste of vitality; it is always folish, and always disgraceful, except in some very rare cases, when it is kindled by seeing some wrong.

Corner Dock Street and North Whari, and always disgraceful, except in some very rare cases, when it is kindled by seeing some wrong.

The remains of the author of." The Raven" do done to another; and even that noble rage not lie mouldering in a corner of Potter's Field, seldom mends the matter. Keep in good

> No man does his best except when he is cheerful. A light heart makes nimble hands, and keeps the mind free and alert. No misfortune is so great as one that sours the temper. Until cheerfulness is lost nothing is lost. Keep in good humor.

The company of a good humored man is a perpetual feast; he is welcomed everywhere eyes glisten at his approach, and difficulties vanish in his presence. Franklins in. domitable good humor did as much for his or Jefferson's wisdom; be c'othed wisdom with smiles, and softened contentious minds

A good consience, a sound stomach, clean skin, are elements of good humor. Get them, and, keep them, and be sure to keep in good humor.

G. W. STONE'S Vegetable Liquid Cathartic. HE public do not require to be told that a mild, safe, and reliable Cathartic, in a liquid form, agreeable to the faste, and one which purges without violence, is a desideratum in medicine; this fact will be admitted by all. Such a discovery has been often attempted, but without success, until the introdu of the above named remedy. No patent medicine ever met with such ready ap-No patent medicine ever met with such ready approval by physicians as this. Many regular practitioners are using it daily, all of whom have spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Persons, for the want of a better, have been obliged to resort to the use of those drastic, nauseous, and oftentimes injurious purgatives, such as castor oil, salts, senna, jallop, rhubarb, alloes, gamboge, &c., all of which cause more or less debility, and fail to accomplish the object for which they are taken; on the contrary, they often increase the difficulty and render the patient less curable. None of these enter into the composition of this invaluable remedy. It is composed of barks, increase the difficulty and render the patient less curable. None of these enter into the composition of this invaluable remedy. It is composed of barks, roots and seeds, the medical properties of which are exactly adapted to the cure of those complaints for which it is recommended. By a combination of those properties the public were put in possession of the most valuable preparation ever produced. This medicine is not intended simply as a Cathartic; its value as such is insignificant, when compared with its power of purifying the blood from all humors, regulating the action of the bowels, curing Dyspepsia, restoring the action of the bowels, curing Dyspepsia, restoring the appetite, producing a healthy action of the Liverr freeing the Stomach from bile, and invigorating and strengthening the whole system. It is a certain cure for the Piles, and those suffering from that complaint should give it a trial. It is also warranted to cure canker in its worst forms. For all diseases of the Bowels it cannot be recommended too highly. In Summer Complaints, such as Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Cholera Morbus, &c., it will be found invaluable.

Reader, as sure as the sun rises in the East, just so sure you will be benefited by the use of this medicine for any of the above complaints, and as sure will it relieve those suffering from Rheumstism, Neuralgia, Tic Doloureux, Gout, Headache, and Pain in the Side and Stomach, caused by Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, Indigestion, General Debility, &c., is often produced by Wind in the Stomach, which this remedy will expel at once. It is also an excellent remedy for Sea Siekness. Those having occasion to travel by water will find it invaluable. Manufactured by G. W. STONE & CO., Lowell,

General Agents.

TEMPERANCE HOTEL

The above establishment being pleasantly situated offers many inducements to parties desirous of spending a portion of the Summer months in the country. There is a good STABLE, capable of holding thirty horses; together with a good well of Water attached to the premises.

A good O TLER in attendance night and day.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after a trial it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appears to me surprising; first, that it grows in our pas-tures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1846—second, that it should cure all kinds of humor. In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day: in April, 1854, I sold over one thousand bottles per day of it. Some of the wholesale Druggists who have been in business twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in the annals of patent medicines was ever like it. There is a universal praise of it from all quarters. In my own practice I always kept it strictly for humors—but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found in it that I never suspected.

ONDERFUL CURES by the Cramp and WONDERFUL CURES by the Cramp and Pain Killer.—Dea, Henry Hunt was cured of NEURALGIA or NCIATIC RHEUMATISM after having been under the cure of a physician six months. The Cramp and Pain Killer was the first thing that afferded him any permanent relief. David Barker was cured of a Rheumatic Pain in the Knee, after three or four days and nights of intense suffering, by one bottle of the Cramp and Pain Killer. T. H. Carmon—suffering from Cramp in the Limbs, the cords of his legs knotting up in large bunches, was cured by the Cramp and Pain Killer. At another time a few applications entirely cured him of an exceedingly bad Rheumatic affection in the back.
