For the Christian Visitor. The Infant's Grave.

Go, visit yonder lonely spot, Where weeping willows gently wave ; There half concealed 'mid lengthen'd grass, A silent mound-an infant's grave, There will you find

No sculptur'd marble marks the place ; It's parents were of humble birth ;-Yet fond affection heaves a sigh, While gazing on the lifeless earth Of kindred dear.

It was a mother's only joy-O'er it she watched with tender care ; Oft did the tear roll from her eye, When she beheld death's sable snare Set round her babe. But now it rests-and blooming flowers About its grave will sweetly twine :

Yes,-they will scent its hallowed clay. Till, 'mid the wreck of wasting time. They too, shall fall. J. M. K. W. STONES Upper Sackville, Sept. 3rd, 1856.

Tour through New-Brunswick. Maliseet Grammar and Tract-Adventure with a Priest. (No. V.)

I found, as I had found at a former visit, some who could understand Micmac, and some of them who speak English tolerably well for Indians. One of them, Gabriel Trimus, can read a write, and is every way an interesting specimen of manhood. He is a "mighty hunter before the Lord," and his services in this department, are often called into requisition by the officers, and by the Governor. The Governor is educating one of his sons. The Indian goes to government house daily, takes his food there, and receives lessons from the private tutor of the Governor's children. Gabriel had just returned with his Excellency and party, from an excursion to Restigouche, and was expecting to be off in a few days with an officer, for a month's hunting expedition. I happened, therefore, just at the right time, to obtain his services in explaining the wonders of the Maliseet language. No other man living, I suppose, could have rendered me the aid I obtained from him. He understood Micmac as well, for aught I could see, as he did his own language. To translate from the former into the latter, seemed perfect play to him And to work I went, digging for "roots,' fishing up different classes of verbs, and hunting for words and grammatical inflections.] soon satisfied myself that the two languages are but dialects of one family, and secondly. that they differ fully as much as Dutch and English. They have many words in common, which differ simply in the accented syllable. The Micmacs say that the name of the other tribe, is derived from the fact of their speaking Micmac words incorrectly. The name, as both tribes pronounce it, is Maliseet, and not Milliseet, as the white people pronounce it. There are many words, especially prefixes, in Micmac, resembling Latin and Greek. The first syllable in this name is an example. It is Mal, one means bad, exactly what Mal-us, in Latin means. "Mal-lee-sit," means, "he speaks badly." The inflection of the Maliseet verb is principally at the begining; in Micmac, it is at the end. The Maliseet has three ways of forming the future; the Micmac but one. Each language has a dual number-an interrogative form of the past. To use four persons in the dual and plural, a peculiar termination that indicates that the person or thing spoken of, is absent or dead. They each have a negative form of the verb-Active, passable and middle voices-Indicative, Imperative, Subjunctive, and Infinite moods, and a variety of inflection in conjugation, that is perfectly appalling. It requires the evidence of senses to enable us to believe that human powers are adequate to learn either of them. But what every " untutored Indian" has done must be possible to man. In the Phonetic Alphabet, I am furnished with a regular daguerrotype machine for securing and finding the words of each language or any other. I could write the words down by sound, and read them correctly after they were written. Friend Gabriel, could give me the Maliseet of any word in any mood, tense, case, number and person, as scon as he heard the corresponding Micmae form. He assisted me very dilligently for about a fortnight. The tract, we translated, comprises a brief introduction; then the greater part of the nineteenth of Exodus, and the Ten Commandments; the account of the birth of Christ. taken from the first and second chapters of Luke, the Lord's Prayer, the third of John, the fifteenth of Luke, and the three last chapters of the same Book, giving the account of the Crucifixion, and Resurrection.

his sortie. Gabriel yielded to his coaxing so far as to promise not to render me any further assistance in the translation, and I did not ask him to break his word. But would another assistant be found ? and would the Indians be beguiled by the misrepresentations of the priest, or would they still be friendly ? These were the questions urged long and earnestly at the mercy seat that evening, and also next morning, before I made my ac- she replied, "it is not caprice." customed visit to the Indians. Oh ! I prayed until it did my heart good to pray; I could ask God to forgive the poor priest to have mercy on his precious soul, and to deliver him out of the miserable thraidom of Popery, and to save the poor Indians. I could say, "Father forgive him, for he knows not what he does." I rose from my knees, feeling satisfied this call would come out right, that I would find some one to assist in finishing the correction, and that God would bless it to their souls, I was not disappointed. Who was ever disappointed in waiting upon God, and casting all his care upon him? He will save his chosen; he will fill up the number of the redeemed in spite of earth and hell. He has mercy in store for the Maleseets and Micwill have mercy."

Power of Divine Truth.

In a flourishing town on the Kennebec, the following illustration of the power of Divine truth occurred mtny years ago, in the ministerial experience of an aged Congregational pastor still living, which affords ample encouragement to the friends of the Bible cause yet to persevere, and to trust in the immutability of that injunction and promise : "Cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days. In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand, for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they shall be alike good. Among the worshippers in the Rev.Mr.E----'s church were a family of seven persons, iutelligent Irish Roman Catholics. They were constantly visited by the pastor with the rest of his flock, but little or no allusion was ever made to the difference of religious opinion between them. As years passed away, (the sons and daughters reached the adult age,) with the advance of population and ministerial effort, a priest forbade them doing so, as incalculable evils would The whole family accordingly absented themconsiderable period. At length one of the sons fell sick, and Mr. and a second son was taken down, and Mr. E----father asked of his son's condition, and when the plied :-worthy pastor informed him of that son's precious ing of his eternal peace and safety .- Such was then, and I can sell more on rainy days." the strong power of his early superstitus training, and now revived by the visits of the priest, over his feeble mind .- Again death visited the family, and a third child was struck down, with the same blessed results, spiritually, to the afflicted one. Death became in this case also but a harbinger of glorious immortality. Soon after this, a revival of religion occurred in the village, and the old man's only surviving daughters became converted and joined evangelical cnurches, and are still living, and walking as consistent members of them. Conscience stricken, but almost broken hearted, the aged father shut himself up for a time, and betook himself to the diligent study of that wonderful book, the biple. Under conviction so obtained by this means, he destroyed a will, long since made, which had given orders, in the event of his death, for a Roman Catholic interment, and avowed himself openly a Prodestant. And more than all this, in a short time, under the ministerial care I gness that's why I cough so." of Mr. E-, he departed this life rejoicing in his hope. The wife, who is still alive, has had no connection with Romanism ever since, although we would be glad to be enabled to record her conversion also. This single instance of the silent absortion of a whole family by Protestant influence, calmly and judiciously exercised, will, we trust, demonstrate the value of a free Bible and religious fiberty, and encourage the true friends of the Romanist and the foreigner to "go to stay, and you see I want to go; it would not and do likewise." Ella looked up from her sewing. Her eyes glowed with the intensity of her emotions, as

"What then, is it?"

"Whatever," said Ella, "James Dudley may have been to me once, it is ended. I can never mingle my soul with his. Is he not a disbeliever in the truths of the Bible? Have I not myself heard him speak with lightness of the most sacred things? Is not his wit too often used to cast ridicule upon religion? What to me would be all his fascinating gifts, his talents, his advantages, if I must link my fate with an infidel? For such, I have too much reason to believe James Dudley to be. No, I have dedicated myself to the service of Christ, to the love and worship of God, and I will never admit of such a hinderer in this work as he will prove."

Euphemia was overcome. She was herself Christion of many years standing, but in her strong desire that her sister might not be blind to the advantages proffered her, she had allowed macs. " He will have mercy on whom he the shining qualities of Dudley, and his high social position, to atone for his religious character. She had a large share of pride to see Ella the bride of James Dudley, would gratify her ambition. But now she saw her error, it was a weak ness, she was conscious, and in one usually so strict and uncompromising, too ! Her young sister, a beginner in the knowledge of God, a novice in the duties of Christianity, had reproved great, sunken blue eyes looked into mine when I paid him.

"You don't ask me to take a cent less !" said he, after hesitating a minute, "I think you must be very rich."

"Oh, no," I replied ; I am far from that ; and these things are more to me now than I gave you for them. Will you come again ?" "Yes Ma'am, If I don't go to mother soon."

" Are you hungry ?" "No, Ma'am, I never feel hungry now, I some-"Nobody, but I know I am. Perhaps I'll go before Christmas.

I could not endure that, and tried to make him stay, but he would run and tell Mrs. Brown what good luck he had met with. He bade me good day again chcerfully, and went out into the cold rain, while I could only say, "God be with you, my child !"

He never came again, though I looked for him every day. At length, about New Year's I went to the place he called home. Mrs. Brown was there, but the little pilgrim! his weary feet were at rest ; and never more would his gentle knock be heard at the doors of those, who, like myself, forgot the necessity and stern want that often send about these wanderers from house to house and that their employment might be far more unseemly to them than annoying to us.

CHOLERA.

A certain eure for this disease may be found in the use of Perry Davis' Vegetable PAIN KILLER.

Sr. Louis, Mo. Dear Sir ----I felt it a duty I owe to the public, to make known the value of Davis' Pain Killer, and my experience in using it for some of the complainte for which it is highly recommended. In April last, on your recommendation, 1 purchased a one dollar bottle of you for pains with which I have long been afflicted, and made use of it on my trip down to New Orleans, with the most gratifying and beneficial effects. On my arrival in St. Louis, I called on you and got four large bottles, and stated to you my confidence in it as an infallible Cholera re-medy, and remarking to you that 1 wanted no other Cholera remedy on my boat. I made use of the four bottles on my trip to New Orleans and back, for Cho-lera and some other complaints for which it is recom-mended, and met with the most estonishing another lera and some other complaints for which it is recom-mended, and met with the most astonishing success-when I ordered from you six more one dollar bottles. Since then I have made two more trips to New Orleans and back, and on my previous trip up, I had more than Seventy cases of Cholera on board, when the PAIN KILLER was immediately used with the most astonishing results. In all cases where it was used in time it gave relief in a very short time; and I can with confidence say to the public, that in all o the first stages of Cholera, when taken in time, it is in my opinion an infallible remedy: and after a fair trial with it for several woeks, and for four trips to New Orleans and back, and using it for Cholera and for other complaints for which it is recommended, no New Orleans and back, and using it for Cholera and for other complaints for which it is recommended, no consideration whatever would induce me to leave port without a good supply—believing it to be a mcdicine that no officer of a boat or any family would be with-out a single day after using one bottle. THE YOUNG PEDDLER.

One rainy afternoon, in the earliest part of autumn, I heard a low knock at my back door, and began to visit the settlement, who, hearing that upon opening it, found a peddler. Now peddlers his erring sheep had attended Mr. E.'s ministry, are a very great vexation to me; they leave the gates open, they never have anything I want, and arise from their necessary contact with error. I don't like the faces that belong to most of them especially those of the strong men who go about selves from the public worship of God among with little packages of course goods, and I always Protestants, and but little was seen of them for a close the door upon them, saying to myselflazy.

This was a little boy, and he was pale and wet E----- was sent for to read and pray with him. He and looked so cold, I forgot he was a peddler heard and believed, and obtained a precious hope and asked him to come in by the fire. I thought before that honored instrument committed his he appeared as though he expected I was going mortal body to the grave. A short time elapsed, to buy something, for he commenced opening his tin box, but I had no such intention. He looked was again sent for, to whom he again delivered up in my face very earnestly and sadly, when I the same precious message of life. This one too told him to warm humself by the fire, and that I was hopefully converted. He also died, and the did not wish to purchase anything. He rose priest was sent for to commit his remains to the slowly from his seat, and there was something in dust. Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that so.d another; after a trial it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that ap-pears to me surprising; first, that it grows in our pas-tures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1846— second, that it should cure all kinds of humor. In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day : in April, 1854, I sold over one thousand bot-tles per day of it. Some of the wholesale Druggists who have been in business twenty and thirty years, say that bothing in the annals of patent medicines was ever like it. There is a universal praise of it from all quarters. In my own practice 1 always kept it strictly for hu-mors—but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found in it that I never suspected. Several cases of epileptic fits—a disease which was always considered incurable, Lave been cured by a few bottles. O, what a mercy if it will prove effectual in all cases of that awful malady—there are but few who ave seen more of it than I have. I know of several cases of Dropsy, all of them aged people, cured by it For the various diseases of the Liver, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Asthma, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side, Diseases of the Spine, and particularly in diseases of the Kidneys, &c., the disco-very has done more good than any medicine ever known.
